PURCHASE OF INFERIOR METERS REVEALED AS WATER INQUIRY BEGINS

Investigation Head Lauds Post's Initiative in Baring Conditions.

By AUSTIN T. ROGERS.

A thorough investigation of the admitted loss of one-third of the District's water supply and the fact that 14,000 water meters in the District are out of order and inoperative was started yesterday by Capt. Hugh S. Oram, Assistant Engineer Commissioner, following a conference with Col. William B. Ladue, Engineer Commissioner.

This investigation is a direct result of disclosures made by The Post, and concerning it Capt. Oram said last night:

"I am glad The Post has revealed this state of affairs in the water department, which it now appears has been in existence for several years, but of which the Commissioners were unaware. It may now be possible to get at the root of things and find the proper means for correcting those things which need correction."

Funds Provided.

During the past several years the water department has received appropriations annually for the purpose of extending the District water meter service. During the past year the fund provided for this work was $30,000.

But instead of increasing the meter service, the water department has been slipping behind annually, it has been charged, all its resources being required for the work of trying to keep inferior defective meters repaired as fast as complaints are received. That it has failed also in that respect is proved by the fact that, although the department reports more than 6,000 defective meters repaired during the past year, there are still 14,000 meters out of order.

In 1925 the percentage of water consumers served through meters was 86.60 per cent of the total number of consumers. But despite the fact that Congress has appropriated money each year for the purpose of putting every consumer in the District on a meter basis, the per centage has declined. On June 30, of this year, 84.6 per cent of the consumers had metered service.

Inferior Meters Bought.

Another fact which was learned in the District Building yesterday is that, because of insufficient specifications, the Water Department recently was stuck with a purchase of 19,000 inferior meters, of which 7,000 are now in the ground, constituting about half of the total of 14,000 now listed as deficient in the records of the Water Department.

Immediately after unloading these 19,000 inferior meters on the District, it is charged, the manufacturer discontinued production of that particular type because of a knowledge that it was an inferior meter which would not stand the tests of actual usage and was therefore not a profitable article for manufacture.

Because the standards set in the specifications for meters used by the District are extremely low, these deficient and inferior meters passed all of the District prepurchase tests and were accepted because they were cheap.

Cheap in Price Only.

But it was only in initial cost that they were cheap. All of the 7,000 which were installed promptly went out of business and the Water Department is still wondering what it can do with the remaining 12,000 which are still carried as part of the $184,141 worth of stock in the department's storerooms at present.

In view of these disclosures made by The Post, it is expected that a drastic revision of the Water Department's purchase specifications will be made, Capt. Oram indicated yesterday.

For one thing, he pointed out, no one type of water meter will meet all requirements of various sections of the District. A meter that will be perfectly adaptable to the requirements of the Georgetown section, for instance, would not be at all acceptable in Anacostia, due to different conditions of pressure, seepage and other factors which cause different conditions in water delivered to consumers in different localities though drawn from the same source of supply.

It would take probably five different types of meters to meet the needs of

$50,000 Damage Suit Filed Against Medium

Divorced Wife Declares Mystic Alienated Her Husband's Love.

Alienation of affection is charged to Mrs. J. B. Coates, of 1379 Irving street northwest, a medium who figured prominently in the congressional investigation of medium practices three years ago, in a suit for $50,000 damages filed yesterday in District Supreme Court by Mrs. Jessie B. Burnhart, of 1439 T street northwest.

Mrs. Burnhart tells the court that she and her husband, William Frederick Burnhart, were married in 1907 and lived "in happiness, peace and comfort" until Mrs. Coates obtained him "as one of her subjects for divine guidance."

The plaintiff alleges that Mrs. Coates, "during the course of her guidance" of Burnhart, "did maliciously and wrongfully contrive to deprive the plaintiff of the society, comfort, maintenance, support and companionship of her husband."

Mrs. Burnhart asser's further that from the year 1921 until the filing of the suit, Mrs. Coates "did wil-

LEHLBACH STUDIES PERSONNEL SURVEY

Civil Service Legislation to Wait, However, He Reveals.

REPORT IS TO BE GUIDE

Representative Frederick R. Lehlbach (Republican), New Jersey chairman of the House civil service committee, came back to Washington for a brief stay yesterday, and revealed that he had been devoting part of his vacation to a study of the nation-wide survey made by the Personnel Classification Board.

The report on this survey, contrasting as it does the wages and working conditions in private industry and in the Federal service, is, from the standpoint of civil service workers, one of the most important documents ever compiled.

Congress will use it as a guide when, in the future, it prepares to revise Federal salaries leave, hours of work and so on. In fact, it probably will use it as the basis for an entirely new personnel policy for the Federal service.

The survey, which was authorized by Congress at the time it passed the Welch salary act, was carried out under the direction of William H. McReynolds, of the Personnel Classification Board.

In order to determine how wages and working conditions in the private business compared with those in the Government, McReynolds' agents interviewed no fewer than 500,000 private employers. Not only that, but McReynolds had experts prepare reports on what England, Germany and other European nations are doing for their civil service workers.

The preliminary report on the survey is, in some respects, extremely favorable from the standpoint of Government workers; in other respects, it is unfavorable.

For example, it shows that big business pays better wages than Uncle Sam for work done by those above the $2,000 salary level. On

MAN SHOOTS WIFE, TRIES TO KILL SELF

J. W. Waugh Is Near Death in Hospital; Estranged Mate in Another.

DAUGHTER SEES ATTACK

Lingering between life and death, John William Waugh, 34, of Kensington, Md., was in Casualty Hospital last night, a self-inflicted bullet wound in his head. He attempted suicide after twice wounding his estranged wife, Mrs. Marion Waugh, 30, of 1336 L street southeast. She was in Providence Hospital and physicians stated she would recover.

The shooting occurred about 12:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon at Fourteenth and K streets southeast, a short distance from Mrs. Waugh's residence, and was witnessed by Barbara Waugh, 8-year-old daughter of the wounded couple.

A police guard was stationed over Waugh at Casualty Hospital and in the event of his recovery a charge of assault with intent to kill will be prosecuted against him, Detective Sergts. Joseph Waldron and Howard E. Ogle, of headquarters, who investigated the shooting, declared.

Mrs. Waugh told police she and her husband continually quarreled during their married life of almost ten years and had separated on several occasions. On several occasions, she told police, when she met her husband he brandished a revolver.

Waugh, according to police, telephoned his wife Sunday night and she agreed to meet him yesterday. She said she arranged the meeting with the intention of asking for money with which to purchase school clothing for their daughter.

They met shortly before noon on the street near the home of Mrs. Waugh and the wife discovered Waugh had a revolver, police said. She declined to talk with him until he disposed of the revolver, she told police, and he left her, ostensibly to sell the weapon.

Returning half an hour later, Mrs. Waugh broached the subject of their

BORAH IS HEARD IN UNEXPECTED TARIFF ATTACK

Idahoan Clashes With Reed Over Treatment of Farmer in Bill.

VIOLATION OF G. O. P. PLEDGES IS DENIED

M'NARY THREATENS TO RENEW BATTLE

Pennsylvanian Cites Rates on Industrial and Farm Products.

(Associated Press.)

Republican differences over the tariff reached fever heat in the Senate yesterday as Senators Borah, of Idaho, and Reed, of Pennsylvania, clashed over the treatment accorded agriculture and industry in the pending revision bill.

As spokesman for the Republican independent group, Borah told the Senate the measure was far out of line with the pledges made to agriculture by both parties in the last campaign, that farm products were inadequately provided for and that what increases were proposed in farm rates would be more than offset by raises in industrial levies.

Reed denied the bill violated Republican tariff pledges. He cited President Hoover's message referring to the need of protecting lagging manufacturing industries where it was deemed warranted, as well as agriculture, and said the Republicans on the finance committee had rewritten the House measure upon the theory that "all Americans are equal."

Borah Gives Unexpected Blow.

The unheralded speech of the Idahoan came at a point in consideration of committee amendments to the administrative sections of the bill when such a move was least expected. It served to emphasize the dissatisfaction of the Western and Northwestern farm State senators with the bill. Earlier, Senator McNary, Republican, Oregon, had announced he would confer with other senators from the Northwest over the treatment accorded lumber, shingles, logs, wool, manganese, fruits and nuts in the bill.

"This bill," said Borah, "is not executed in justice to the agricultural interests. Some of us believe the time is at hand when agriculture must take a stand if it is to benefit from the protective tariff system."

Citing statistics showing growing profits of manufacturing industries in recent years, imports of manufactured goods less than 4 per cent of domestic production or practically stationary since enactment of existing tariff law in 1922, and exports of such commodities greater last year than in the last decade, Borah said further increases in industrial rates were unnecessary.

He Cites Disparity.

He agreed the farmers got all they asked in the Fordney-McCumber tariff act of 1922, but those representing them, he said, made the mistake of acquiescing at the same time to increases in industrial levies. The "disparity" between agriculture and industry resulting from that bill, he argued, would be continued by the pending measure.

"With industrial profits increasing, with exports increasing and imports decreasing," he continued, "we have on the other hand the constantly falling income and profits of agriculture."

He placed the earnings of the steel industry for the first six months of 1929 at 80 per cent above the corresponding period of 1928 and said:

"Senators, this is the condition of an industry which has asked and is receiving additional protection in this bill."

Reed Rises in Reply.

Rising in defense of the bill, Senator Reed said any one who worked on a tariff bill must expect some criticism, but it was time to call a halt when that complaint dealt primarily with generalities and few specific causes.

"We hear an abundance of sneers," he said. "Pretended conversations are recited indicating callousness on our part toward the farmer."

"I want to assure the senator," he asserted, looking at Borah, "that no Republican pledge has been forgotten in this bill."

He thereupon read from party pronouncements that suffering industries as well as depressed agriculture should be given tariff aid and said it was only on that principle that the tariff framers worked in proposing increases.

He cited the metals schedule as an example where rates not only were lowered below those recommended by the House, but under present duties.

"No farmer on earth has the comforts and luxuries that the American

CAROLINA MILL STRIKE DURING FUNERAL ASKED

COMMUNISTS FREED IN CONSPIRACY CASE

Beaten Man Is Interviewed by Presiding Judge in Chambers.

Charlotte, N. C., Sept. 16 (A.P.).—A call for a one-day strike of all workers in cotton mills of this section was issued here tonight by Hugo Oehler, Southern organizer of the Textile Workers Union, and Bill Dunne, secretary of the Communist party in America. The strike was called for tomorrow simultaneously with the funeral of Mrs. Ella May Wiggins, mill striker, who was killed by a mob near Gastonia Saturday.

The circular issued by Oehler and Dunne urges workers to leave the mills tomorrow to attend the funeral of the woman. No announcement had been made tonight as to who would speak at the funeral. Dunne and Liston M. Oak, publicity director for the Workers International Relief, said tonight that they did not believe there would be any trouble at the funeral.

The call for the one-day strike attacked the Manville-Jenckes Co., where the union called a strike last April and where are employed a number of persons accused of being in the mob that flogged Ben Wells, union organizer, last Monday.

"Make Sister Ella May's funeral a mass protest against the murder terror of the Manville-Jenckes Co. and their government," the circular reads.

"Ella May was killed because she was a member of the National Textile Workers Union and fought for the union. * * *

"A one-day strike for Ella May. Leave the mills. Attend Ella May's funeral. Let the mass protest as she is buried be only the beginning of our new drive for 100 per cent organization of the textile industry."

In the first of the series of hearings scheduled for today eight textile workers and Communists accused of having conspired to overthrow the Government were released. The State announced that it had been unable to secure evidence to back up the warrant issued last Friday on the request of H. M. Joyner, city detective, after the men had been arrested when a quantity of guns and ammunition was seized in a boarding house where they were staying.

The hearing of Liston M. Oak, publicity director here for the International Labor Defense, on charges of carrying concealed weapons was postponed at Gastonia until tomorrow. A charge against A. M. Grier, Oak's chauffeur, also was continued.

Hearings Continue.

In Judge Thomas J. Shaw's court the hearings of persons arrested on charges of being in the mob that kidnaped C. M. Lell, C. D. Saylor and Ben Wells, and flogged Wells, continued. Numerous persons took the witness stand to supply alibis for the accused men.

Ben Wells, British textile worker and organizer for the National Textile Workers Union, was able to be in court today the first time since he was whipped. He testified that he had been seized in Gastonia by a mob, carried to a point near Concord, after being knocked unconscious, and flogged.

Wells was unable to give the names of any of his assailants but pointed out in court Dewey Carver, A. G. Morehead, Smiley Lewis, John Holly, Carl Holloway and Lee Johnson defendants. He picked them out from among the persons in the courtroom.

Disqualified as Witness.

A few minutes later, however, under questioning of defense attorneys, Wells disqualified himself as a witness in North Carolina, when he said he did not believe in the Bible and a God who would punish "if you tell a lie."

The North Carolina law disqualifies a witness who says he does not believe in God. Wells had kissed the Bible when he took the oath.

Wells testified that he was a member of the British Communist party, and that he came to the United States from Manchester, England, in 1926.

Horace Lane, who was identified by his nephew as having been in the parade that preceded the kidnaping, denied flatly that he was present. He said that he was acting as a deputy sheriff that night and was near the Pinckney and Hanover mills.

Judge Shaw this afternoon interviewed Wells in chambers. The judge and a stenographer were present.

HOOVER REDUCES PLAN FOR BIG U. S. CRUISERS; MACDONALD CAUTIOUS

WARNING DEDUCED TO THREE NATIONS

England Not Competing Against U. S., Claim; Influence Hinted.

PROGRAM IS CALLED PEACE EXPERIMENT

Japan's and Italy's Demands Held Potential Snags to Agreement.

London, Sept. 16 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Prime Minister James Ramsay MacDonald made a frank statement to the British press at the foreign office here today on the present status of the naval understanding between Great Britain and the United States.

The Labor premier gave almost the same figures for the British and American fleets as those made known in Washington. His statement of the situation made it clear that the difference still to be settled between Washington and London is over three 8-inch gun carriers and a difference in cruiser tonnage of 15,000.

But at the same time that he spoke of the "wonderful exploration of the problem," MacDonald sounded the warning that British concessions are not absolute, but conditional. If the rival claims of France and Italy or of Japan can not be reconciled, then any agreement with the United States can not stand. This was clearly implied by the premier, when he said:

Five-Power Pact Held Essential.

"Any agreement come to with President Hoover now must be subject to the decisions of the five-power conference being in consonance with it. Otherwise, decisions which the five-power conference either took or failed to take might have the effect with America of leaving us in a hopelessly weak position in relation to other countries. It is clearly understood that whatever Great Britain agrees to now will require to be scanned after the five power conference to see that it is all right in relation to the decisions of that conference."

Certain phases of the situation, which Washington spokesmen have not touched upon, were made clear by MacDonald today.

Another development of the highest importance today was Lord Cecil's disarmament resolution at Geneva, which, through its attempt to link up land and sea forces and its suggestion that armed reservists be taken into account in limiting armies, is reported to have greatly alarmed the French and Italians.

Not only the former foreign secretary, Sir Austen Chamberlain, but also United States Ambassador Hugh S. Gibson, had yielded the position regarding trained reservists which the Labor government here now takes up again to the inevitable anger of continental powers, with what result upon the prospects for the five-power naval conference it is too early to judge.

Neutral Meeting Place Likely.

No official information is available here regarding the report that France and Italy will insist upon the naval conference taking place in a neutral capital, but it is regarded as highly probable that they will do so.

The part of MacDonald's statement today, making it clear that any Anglo-American naval agreement must be dependant upon its receiving

BRITISH BARE PLAN TO LIMIT ALL ARMS

Keen Opposition by France Against Land Force Curb Expected at Geneva.

OTHER POWERS STIRRED

Geneva, Sept. 16 (A.P.).—Great Britain today made public its ideas regarding the principles which should govern the nations in seeking general disarmament settlement. Majority opinion among the delegates to the League of Nations assembly tonight forecast that the British declaration would reopen the old question of trained army reserves, which undoubtedly would meet with opposition from the French.

The British proposal again was delayed today in the expected presentation to the disarmament committee but Lord Cecil, in view of the great interest aroused, handed a draft of the resolution to the press. It now is expected to reach the committee tomorrow or on Wednesday.

This resolution reads:

"The assembly, being convinced that a progressive and general reduction of armament is urgently needed throughout the world, expresses its hope that the preparatory commission will finish its labors at the earliest possible moment, and considers that in completing a draft disarmament convention it should consider how far the following principles have been or ought to be adopted.

"A—Application of the same principle to reduction of limitation of personnel and material, whether on land, sea or air forces.

"B—Limitation of strength of a force whether by limiting its numbers, or period of training, or both.

"C—Limitation of material either directly by enumeration, or indirectly by budgetary limitation, or both methods.

"D—Recognition of a competent international authority to watch and report upon the execution of the treaty."

Despite its mild language and academic tone the British document created some excitement, not unmixed with apprehension, among the delegates.

An authoritative British explanation of the purpose of the resolution was that it was intended to announce the labor government's independence of action in dealing with questions of strength of land, sea and air forces when a general

Navy Board Understood to Back President in Parity Attempt.

TWO LARGE CRAFT MAY NOT BE BUILT

Smaller Vessels Would Replace Authorized Major Ships.

DESIRE TO CUT TAX BURDEN IS FACTOR

Effort of England to Obtain Further Naval Decrease Fails to Get Consent.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

President Hoover already has prevailed upon the Navy General Board not to build two of the fifteen cruisers authorized by Congress, and before the negotiations with Great Britain are over it is possible that three more may meet a similar fate.

In the place of the two cruisers to be dispensed with, it is believed to be the plan to build five of the six-inch gun type vessels of 7,000 tons each.

This was shown yesterday with announcement by Premier MacDonald that President Hoover was holding out for 21 cruisers of the 10,000-ton class, whereas the British premier wants to hold him to 18. It was learned that the general board is in full agreement with the President on the 21-cruiser stand.

This being the case, it follows that the board is in agreement on not building two of the fifteen cruisers.

Eight Cruisers Now Building.

The United States has building now eight cruisers of the 10,000-ton class. This is aside from the fifteen authorized by Congress at the last session. A simple matter of mathematics reveals that with completion of the fifteen cruisers this country would have 23 cruisers, instead of the 21 to which the President has cut the figure in an effort to reache an agreement with Great Britain.

The British premier revealed that three cruisers of this larger class are all that stand between him and Hoover in the way of a complete agreement. Should the President finally agree to keep this country's larger cruisers down to eighteen, as the British premier proposes, that obviously would entail not building five of the fifteen authorized, but the possible substitution of some more vessels of a similar type.

Tax Reduction Factor.

Indications are that Hoover himself would like to go this far. The general understanding, when he first embarked upon the negotiations with MacDonald, was that he wanted to effect a material saving in the fifteen-cruiser program that he inherited from the previous administration and which is one of the things that stands between him and a tax reduction.

On Friday, Secretary Stimson made known that the administration considered too much emphasis had been placed upon cruisers and at the same time it was learned that Hoover now expects a big reduction in national expenditures to come from an agreement not to replace capital ships after 1931 and to greatly restrict the replacements of submarines and destroyers.

But this is no reason to believe that he would not at the same time like to get away from building as many of the 15 cruisers as possible.

The Navy board has agreed to do away with the building of two, it is apparent. It remains to be seen whether it will agree to do away with the building of five, as called for by the British proposal. It has heretofore insisted that the smaller type of cruisers was not fitted to this country's needs.

It also developed during the day that the conference of the five

Hrdlicka Fails to Discover Proof Indians Are Asiatics

Scientist Remains Firm in Belief, However, as Trip Ends.

Seattle, Wash., Sept. 16 (A.P.).—Ancient Indian villages, buried for centuries, failed this summer to reveal the missing link giving physical proof of the theory of Dr. Ales Hrdlicka, Smithsonian Institution scientist, that the American Indian emigrated from Asia by way of Alaska.

After a summer of research work in Alaska, Dr. Hrdlicka said here today he was convinced that the Indian was an Asiatic who emigrated thousands of years ago, but that linking up the past with the present was difficult.

"The definite solution of the origin of the American Indian has not yet been found, as nature has buried the key under thousands of years of reconstruction of Alaska by the action of the rivers and the elements," he said. "It has been a wonderful study

Allentown Broker Is Held In Wife's Mystery Death

High School Boys Tell of Seeing Woman Hurtle From Automobile; Socially Prominent Couple Are Witnesses to Events Preceding Fatality.

Allentown, Pa., Sept. 16 (N.Y.W.N.S.) Charles Van Wagenen, 50, prominent accountant and insurance broker, was held without bail today, charged with the murder of his wife, Mrs. Emily Van Wagenen, 48, a social leader.

The dapper broker took it calmly. His expression did not vary a whit as the prosecution, in terse, rapid fashion, wove a chain of circumstantial evidence around him at the hearing before Justice of the Peace William Bower.

The crowd in the courtroom crowded forward as three high school boys told of seeing the woman hurtle from an automobile and crash into the gutter of Liberty street the night of August 17. She died five days later.

The automobile, they said, was a maroon Hudson coupe, bearing the license number 18360. The car and license number were identified by State Trooper Thomas Harpster, on the witness stand.

The grand jury meets next Monday. The district attorney said he would bring the case before it immediately.

Two socially prominent witnesses testified before the dramatic scene that closed the hearing. They were Mr. and Mrs. Edward S. Gubernator, of Allentown. They were with Mr. and Mrs. Van Wagenen at the exclusive Lehigh Country Club August 17. He and Van Wagenen played golf in the afternoon, and then the two couples had dinner together on the porch of the country club, Gubernator said.

There was no quarrel, they said. No questions as to whether there was any drinking or a gay party at the club were asked. At about 9 o'clock, powers which it is now planned shall confer will be deferred until the middle of January, Middle December, the time originally considered, would not give sufficient time in which to arrange for the meeting, it is believed, and there also would be the possibility of the Christmas holidays intervening.

The question of whether the parley should not be in a neutral place, such as Brussels, The Hague, Prague, or some city in Switzerland other than Geneva, also was discussed. Criticism of holding the conference in London already has been heard.

It is, of course, by no means certain that Italy and France will go into the conference. They have not heretofore brooked any discussions that looked to a limitation of submarines, it is recalled, and nothing publicly has developed that they have changed their minds on this question.

France Balked Question Previously.

The French prevented the inclusion of, other than capital ships in the Washington arms agreement, it is pointed out, and neither France nor Italy would participate in the Geneva debacle of two years ago.

There is, in fact, no disguising the fact that, although this country and Great Britain have come to that stage in their two-party negotiations where they are ready for the conference of the powers, there is still much work to be done before this conference is assured. Premier MacDonald has made it plain that his negotiations with President Hoover are conditional upon an agreement of the five powers.

Luray school had 613 on the opening day, with Shenandoah enrolling 545 and Stanley 289. One school in the county was closed and the pupils are attending the high schools.

Luray recently floated a $150,000 bond issue to build a new school but it will not be available until next session.

While the figures for the entire number of pupils in Page County have not been received, it is believed that a huge increase is had.

disarmament conference is realized and further to hasten the work of the preparatory commission.

It was unofficially interpreted as serving as an announcement by Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald that his Labor government is not bound by acts or reputed promises of the preceding Conservative government in disarmament negotiations.

Observers believed tonight that the French delegation would energetically oppose adoption of the British resolution when it is broached in disarmament committee. They were confident the French would be supported by the Japanese, Poles and Italians and perhaps by delegates from some other countries having military conscription.

The attitude of the French was described as that of surprise that the question of trained reserves should be reopened after the declarations on that subject by Lord Cushendun at the last meeting of the preparatory disarmament commision. The French were also said to regret discussion of this issue while the Anglo-American naval negotiations are proceeding, believing it wiser to let the matter alone until the Washington-London conversations reach successful issue.

MACDONALD SEEKS FIVE-POWER PACT

Britain Held Not Competing With U. S.; Is Indirectly Influenced, Claim.

THREE NATIONS WARNED

a universal stamp of approval at the five-power parley, was regarded in diplomatic circles as an unexpectedly frank admission that the British naval program is in the last resort dependent not only on American building, which MacDonald repeatedly declared did not concern Great Britain, but on that of the Mediterranean powers.

Japan was dealt with by the British premier in another indirect reference which confirms reports that Japan has said she must have a greater ratio of cruisers than of battleships, as compared with the United States and Great Britain, and that if the United States built too many big cruisers she would have to build more. The New York World News Service revealed last week that the Australians had protested that if Japan built more cruisers, Great Brittain ought to provide increased protection for Australia in the Pacific. The possibility of this vicious circle was confirmed by MacDonald in these words:

Mentions Bid for 21 Cruisers.

"Great Britain says to America that she is not going to build against her and that anything America did by expanding her fleet would find no response in the British program, but if American building was to stimulate other countries to build, then indirectly Great Britain must take an interest in American building. This is recognized as an intricate difficulty. British security in relation to the rest of the world would not be affected if America would agree to 18 cruisers, where she wants 21."

The last phrase is interpreted as meaning that Japan has hinted that if the United States will build three cruisers fewer, as Great Britain suggests, Japan will find it more easy to come to a cruiser agreement. This is put forward by MacDonald as a reason why Great Britain asks the United States to yield on one point of the controversy still outstanding.

On technical questions, MacDonald today revealed that agreement exists on first-class battleships, as made at the Washington conference, and that equality is to be attained in destroyers, of which the United States now has a greater number.

Submarine Power Issue.

Both nations, MacDonald said, favor abolition of the submarine, a point on which Japan, France and Italy are adamantly opposed to the two chief naval powers.

"The position today," MacDonald said, in summarizing progress in Anglo-American negotiations, "is that we have brought the problem down to an extremely narrow margin upon which we haven't yet come to agreement."

Great Britain, he went on to explain in detail, wants 50 cruisers, to be divided into categories—fifteen 8-inch gun cruisers and thirty-five 6-inch gun cruisers. Together, these 50 ships would have a tonnage of 339,000.

The United States, MacDonald stated, wants 21 8-inch-gun cruisers; 10 7,000-ton cruisers of the Omaha type, carrying 6-inch guns and five new 7,000-ton cruisers with 6-inch guns—a total cruiser tonnage of 315,000.

Margin of Difference Slight.

"Great Britain and America have now agreed about this," MacDonald said. "The margin of difference between the two countries, in other words, consists of three 8-inch-gun cruisers and a tonnage of 15,000 (apparently this was a slip for 24,000 as that is the difference in tonnage between 339,000 and 315,000). Great Britain would like the United States to bring its displacement tonnage down to 300,000."

MacDonald then added, significantly: "An agreement on this point does not depend finally upon Anglo-American negotiations."

A secret of the imperial defense committee was made known, when the premier said: "All military preparations at the present moment are based on the presumption that there will be no war for a certain number of years, and 1936 is well within the period."

This unknown year, according to current reports, beyond which British strategists think it at present unsafe to count upon peace, is somewhere between 1940 and 1945. In 1936 it is planned to attain Anglo-American parity.

"World Peace Experiment."

"Here is a chance," MacDonald continued, "for a world peace experiment, for if by 1935 we discovered that mistakes had been made in our pacific enthusiasm, we should be perfectly safe because there would be time to rectify them. If there was no change in the world, the agreement could continue for another period, but if it was found that the program was going to be much too big it could be reduced.

"The Kellogg pact, eliminating all war from national policy, is the basis of any agreement," the premier added, explaining that he and Hoover are "determined to come to an agreement which shall be larger in spirit than a mere naval agreement."

This does not mean, he went on, that he will "discuss debts or anything of that kind" at Washington. His meeting with Hoover, MacDonald said, "is rather to celebrate by a handshake the progress made by the conversations that have taken place and the establishment of a relationship which, in case of success, has not existed between the two countries since 1812."

Warning to Other Powers.

Summing up MacDonald's statement, both in its text and its manner of delivery, it was felt that the premier was anxious to capitalize the good feeling created by the understanding with the United States, but at the same time to sound a warning, in veiled language, that could not give offense to foreign powers, against the too optimistic assumption that the size of the British navy can be made to depend upon any parity agreement with America, failing the cooperation of other naval countries, which is not yet assured.

MacDonald could hardly have implied more clearly that whereas the United States looks to Great Britain in determining the size of her fleet, Great Britain surveys the fleets of other nations, when he said:

"The elementary starting point was the policy common to all British governments that the British admiralty, in devising its building program, did not take America into account at all."

That phrase will explain the observed fact that the understanding with the United States has evoked far more enthusiasm across the Atlantic, as evidenced in press comments, than it has in London.

Seas' Freedom Stressed in Italy.

Rome, Sept. 16 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Italy will bring up the issue of the fredom of the seas at the forthcoming five-power naval parley, inquiries made today by the New York News Service correspondent in Italian naval circles brought out clearly.

The Italian spokesmen at the impending international disarmament conference, it is made clear here, will take the attitude that neutral powers must be free to sail the seas in war time. Such freedom of navigation, it is pointed out, is of paramount importance to Italy because the approach to her shores is from an inland sea, the Mediteranean, and she is a large importer of sueh necessities as coal, iron, copper, rubber and wheat.

As Gibraltar, the Suez Canal and the Dardanelles are not in Italy's hands, the Italian argument runs. Italy can not be certain of receiving these supplies in case of war unless neutral nations are insured free shipping. It is further emphasized that Italy has 10,000,000 emigrants abroad, whose ability to return to their native land safely must be guaranteed

Will Insist on Six Cruisers.

The New York World News Service learned today that at the naval disarmament conference Italy will insist upon having six 10,000-ton cruisers, according to the terms of the Washington treaty of 1921. Two of these cruisers already have been built and four others are now under construction. This type of vessel, it is said here, is fit only for ocean navigation and is therefore not able to safeguard Italy's interests in the Mediterranean.

Therefore, six new destroyers of 5,200 tons each are under construction. These vessels are called "condottieri," which means about the same things as "squadron leaders" in English.

Another feature of the Italian attitude at the naval parley will be insistence on all-around reduction of naval tonnage and not merely reduction by categories. It is almost a foregone conclusion that Premier Mussolini's viewpoint in regard to reduction of naval armaments has not changed. He has taken the stand that Italy is ready for reduction to any extent, provided other continental powers reduce their sea power proportionately. It is no secret that the fascist government is principally concerned with Italian naval strength in relation to that of France.

M'DONALD TO AVOID DISCUSSION ON DEBT

Premier to Confine Effort on His Visit to Mission of Goodwill.

ITINERARY IS REVISED

London, Sept. 16 (A.P.).—Whatever else Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald talks about on his visit to Washington, Philadelphia and Niagara Falls, it will not be British war debts. It was stated authoritatively tonight that his mission to the United States will be confined to establishment of goodwill between the two nations.

The premier is most eager to bring the countries closer together and to put an end to any atmosphere of baseless suspicion which may exist. It was stated in high quarters that there was no truth in any suggestion that President Hoover and Prime Minister MacDonald were going to discuss debts. Their meeting will celebrate by handshakes the discussions which they already have had indirectly on naval limitation.

The revised itinerary of MacDonald calls for his sailing on the Berengeria September 28 and arrival in New York October 4. He will arrive in Washington in the evening of that day and remain for talks with the President until the 10th, when he goes to Philadelphia to lunch with physicians whom he credits with saving his life two years ago.

That evening he will continue on to New York, and four days later leave on a sightseeing expedition to the American side of Niagara Falls at Buffalo. On October 15 he will cross to Toronto, where he will be met by Canadian Premier Mackenzie King, with whom he will go to Ottawa on October 16 for a three-day visit. MacDonald will visit Montreal and Quebec and will sail for home from the latter port on the liner Duchess of York October 25. He will reach London November 4, two days after the reopening of Parliament.

MacDonald, himself, said that he was "stealing" a two-day holiday by his visit to the United States and Canada.

Man Burned to Death, Others Hurt in Crash

Sheboygan, Wis., Sept. 16 (A.P.).—One man was burned to death and an undetermined number of persons injured when a Sheboygan-Fond du Lac motor bus overturned and burned 1 mile west of Plymouth, Wis., today.

The body of the dead man was so badly burned and mutilated that immediate identification was impossible. The coroner here left immediately for the scene of the accident and a number of ambulances were dispatched by the police department.

RHINELAND FEARS FRENCH OCCUPATION

British Evacuation Proceeds as Scheduled While Rumors Fly.

APPREHENSION IS FELT

Coblenz, Germany, Sept. 16 (A.P.).—Despite denials in various quarters there still were apprehensions today lest the French troops take the places of the evacuating British forces in Wiesbaden and the suburbs. These apprehensions were expressed today at the offices of the German commissioner, Baron Langworth Von Simmern, who is liaison officer between the ministry for the occupied area and the interallied Rhineland commission.

Baron Von Simmern referred the correspondent to Counselor Knoch, his right hand man, who said:

"Our greatest concern now is not the British evacuation which is proceeding as scheduled, but what may follow it."

Inquiries Come in.

"From all over the Rhineland anxious inquiries have reached us in the course of the day whether it is true that the French will take up quarters at Wiesbaden," said Herr Knoch. "The greatest excitement prevails throughout the Rhineland about this rumor. We have no official information one way or the other and can only hope that the rumor will prove unfounded for it would be a vital blow to the pacification of the Rhineland if Wiesbaden should billet large contingents of French troops."

The general impression is that the final decision rests with the French commander-in-chief here, Gen. Guillaymat, whether the remnant of the interallied Rhineland commission is to go to Wiesbaden with only the formality of an honor guard of one company or with the full battle strength of a French infantry battalion and a regiment of cavalry as rumored in London reports.

French Decry Rumor.

French members of the commission, themselves, however, say they do not believe the latter course will be followed.

It is pointed out, moreover, that 150 French soldiers already have been at Wiesbaden for some time and would suffice under present conditions as an honor guard for a commission of only a few dozen, thus obviating the necessity of sending any new French occupying force at all to the famous spa.

PEACOX WILL ADMIT HE SLEW OWN WIFE

JURY SELECTION DRAGS

White Plains, N. Y., Sept. 16 (A.P.).—Earl Francis Peacox, 21-year-old radio mechanic, was placed on trial today for the killing of his gay and pretty young wife, Dorothy. Through a long day that made talesmen restless he remained a composed and dapper prisoner, betrayed only by the pallor of months in a cell.

Almost a half hundred talesmen were examined before defense counsel, admitting the slaying but building a defense of accident and insanity, and the prosecuting attorney, angling for jurors without prejudice to the death penalty, had chosen seven men.

More Talesmen Called.

One hundred and fifty talesmen first were called but Supreme Court Justice Arthur S. Tompkins, presiding, ordered a hundred more when it became apparent that the jury selection would be slow.

Defense plans were disclosed as Sidney A. Syme, chief of counsel for the young radio man, questioned closely each talesman. The prospective jurors were asked whether they would be influenced by the death penalty, the burning of the girl's body after she was strangled to death last April 21 in Peacox's Mount Vernon apartment, or by Peacox's love affair with Frances Newman, dancer, and the "alibi girl" of the case.

To Admit Burning.

Talesmen also were asked: "The defendant will admit that three hours after his wife's death he took her body to a lonesome spot in the woods, placed a string about her neck, and the following Saturday morning set fire to the body with kerosene. Would that prejudice you?"

The couple had been married a year to the day when the killing occurred, but they had been estranged and traveled their own social ways. On the night of their first anniversary Peacox brought his wife home, attempting to effect a reconciliation, but her scornful description of the apartment as "the same old dump" precipitated a quarrel that ended in the slaying.

Justice Tompkins disregarded the supper hour and continued the court session until 8 p. m. Seven were seated in the jury box when Defense Counsel Syme requested an adjournment.

Music Sounds Made Visible On Dancing Ribbon of Light

Low, Pure Tones Cause Smooth Rippling; Harsh Discords Create Agitated, Snake-Like Contortions; "Heart" of New Instrument Is Vibrating Mirror.

New York, Sept. 16 (A.P.).—Music was transformed into a ribbon of light and made to write its "soul" characteristics on a cloth screen at Steinway Hall today.

When low, pure tones were sounded the strip rippled smoothly, like wave motion traveling along a rope, but when harsh, discordant sounds were made the shining line writhed and contorted like an agitated snake. For all graduations of harmony the line showed distinctive waves, different for each sound, even down to discrepancies in tone too fine for the ear.

The instrument is a development of the osiso, which has been used for some time to photograph voice and music characteristics. The new device substitutes a motion picture for a "still." Its heart is a mirror, vibrating under control of an electrical current from a microphone that picks up the sounds to be pictured. This mirror reflects a beam of light through revolving mirrors. It was developed by William Braid White, acoustic engineer of the American Steel & Wire Co., and C. Anderson, engineer of the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co.

Music students are given a pattern of a perfect sound and attempt to reproduce it in the light.

"It seems certain," said Mr. White, "that improvement can be attained in this way, but it also seems certain that no amount of effort will transform a good clerk into a great artist, for one of the things demonstrated is that each artist produces patterns as individual as his signature, and though others may be able to imitate these patterns fairly well, apparently no one else can reproduce them exactly.

"Master musicians are interested in studying details of their own technique. For example, the pianist has learned by these sound wave photographs that he can produce a single note with at least 18 different gradations, each individual in tone, color and loudness.

"We were able to show another musician that his finger nails made little clicks when he struck the keys in a certain way, and that this certainly had an effect, however minute, on his playing."

The Osiso is designed to calibrate the harmony of musical instruments, and detect imperfections, whether in tone from wire or strings, or reverberations of sounding boards. Mr. White said that it is found that sounding boards sometimes reverberate better at some points in the scale than others.

HOOVER WILL SEEK NEW SPEECH RECORD

Three Talks in Three States in Three Days Will Be Presidential Mark.

PLANS CAREFULLY MADE

President Hoover plans to make public speeches in three different cities in three separate States on three consecutive days next month, setting a new all-time record for the Presidency.

The President still regards each public utterance as a painstaking task. He rewrote a 50-word nonpolitical greeting to his home State of California seven times before he was satisfied with it. Yet he plans to deliver full-fledged addresses, in Detroit, October 21, Cincinnati the following day, and Louisville, October 23.

In addition, on the four or five-day trip from Washington, he will travel more than 2,000 miles by rail, attend a celebration and inspect a museum in Detroit, witness ceremonies in Cincinnati, and from that point top it off by taking the night boat to Louisville, down the Ohio River, delivering a radio address from the boat before entraining for Washington.

Tentative Program Approved.

Details of the trip must yet be worked out, but the President has given his approval to the tentative program. It is probable that the President and his small immediate party will be taken through the river locks from Cincinnati to Louisville on a small boat used by Army engineers, followed by an excursion boat carrying newspaper correspondents and photographers. A pilot boat will plow ahead, another "security" boat will follow, flanked by police and fire boats for added protection.

Similar precautions will be taken on the railroad stages of the journey. A pilot engine will run ten minutes ahead of the President's train, and another engine may follow, with a "wrecking train" still farther back. Freight and passenger train movements will be retarded or stopped in the vicinity of the presidential train. Hoover expects to go first to Detroit, arriving there October 21, for the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the use of incandescent lights, and to deliver an address on the occasion.

Will See Ford's Museum.

While there he will confer with Henry Ford and inspect Ford's Dearborn museum collection of relics and equipment that show half a century's progress in invention by Thomas A. Edison.

Next is planned an overnight trip to Cincinnati, there to participate in ceremonies following the opening of a new series of locks on the Ohio River, completed at a greater expense than the Panama Canal. There will be a speech there on inland waterways development, a program with which Hoover has been closely affiliated as Secretary of Commerce.

Present tentative plans call for arrival at Louisville about noon October 23, with a radio address from the boat—another presidential precedent—touching on the river inspection. After a demonstration in Louisville, the party will return direct to Washington by train.

All the speeches will be broadcast by radio over national hookups.

NEW YORK YAWNS ON EVE OF PRIMARY

Electorate Is Apathetic; Philadelphia Also Goes to Polls Today.

INQUIRY BOARD NAMED

New York, Sept. 16 (A.P.).—An apathetic electorate yawned on the eve of the city primaries tomorrow.

While two Republican contenders for the position of Mayor James J. Walker carried on their campaigns to the last, many of the voters turned their interest to the smaller fry—candidates for borough offices and seekers for posts in the State Legislature.

The prohibition issue technically has nothing to do with the municipal primaries, but it has placed former State Senator William M. Bennett, of Brooklyn, a desert dry, whose campaign slogan has been "close the speak-easies," into independent opposition to Representative Fiorello H. LaGuardia, regular designee and a wet.

Mayor Walker, Tammany born and bred, is unopposed for renomination as the Democratic candidate.

Enright Is Independent.

Richard E. Enright, former police commissioner, is running for the nomination independently on a "square-deal ticket," and Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for President of the United States last election, is his party's only candidate for mayor.

The polls will open at 3 p. m. and close at 9 p. m.

Philadelphia, Sept. 16 (A.P.).—The primary election campaign, which involves the leadership of the Philadelphia Republican organization, closed tonight with both sides predicting victory for their candidates.

Tomorrow the electors will nominate candidates for county offices, two judges of the State Superior Court, one Common Pleas Court judge, one Orphans Court judge and four magistrates.

Interest in the campaign has centered in the fight for control of the Republican organization, the Republican League, supported by Mayor Harry A. Mackey, having challenged the leadership of Senator-elect William S. Vare.

Investigating Body Named.

The city council, most of whose members are supporters of Senator-elect Vare and the organization primary ticket, today authorized the appointment of a committee of seven clothed with power to investigate any department or agency of Mayor Mackey's administration.

Both Republican factions having indorsed Will B. Hadley for renomination as city controller, the battle has been waged for the other three county offices. The Vare-slated candidates are William F. Campbell, incumbent, for register of wills; George E. Kemp, city treasurer, and Fred Schwarz, jr., incumbent, coroner. Those of the Republican league are John F. Dugan, former director of public welfare in Mayor Mackey's cabinet, for register of wills; Thomas F. Armstrong, city treasurer, and Samuel B. Scott, coroner.

Fork Union Firm Gets Cedar Run Bridge Job

Special to The Washington Post.

Culpeper, Va., Sept. 16.—The board of supervisors of Culpeper County today awarded to A. L. Cobb & Son, of Fork Union, the contract for building a 60-foot bridge over Cedar Run, between Culpeper and Michell. The amount of the bid was $1,884. The bridge is to be built single track for the present, but the plans provide for it to be widened when more funds become available.

This is the second major improvement on this road within the past five months, the State having taken about 3½ miles into the highway system under the Vaughan act last fall.

ALLEGED GIRL BANK ROBBER RESTS CASE

End of Stubbornly Fought Texas Trial Believed in Sight.

INSANE, EXPERTS ASSERT

New Braunfels, Tex., Sept. 16 (A.P.).—Completing the introduction of expert testimony attesting to the insanity of Mrs. Rebecca Rogers, counsel for the young former University of Texas student rested their case today in her trial on a charge of bank robbery.

After a short recess the introduction of rebuttal testimony was started, and the end of one of this State's most stubbornly fought criminal cases was believed in sight.

Attorneys for the defendant, who is charged with robbing the Farmers' National Bank of Buda, Tex., of $1,000 in 1926, closed the presentation of direct evidence by reading into the records testimony of Dr. Livingston Anderson, Corpus Christi, Tex., mental expert, given in one of Mrs. Rogers' three other trials in connection with the hold-up. Dr. Anderson held Mrs. Rogers was mentally unbalanced.

The physician was to have testified in person, but when he failed to arrive in court, Otis Rogers, leader of the defense and husband of the defendant, agreed to allow the expert's testimony of the former trial to be placed in the records.

Two other alienists testified they believed Mrs. Rogers was of unsound mind. Dr. W. A. Smith, member of the staff of the San Antonio Hospital for the Insane, said he had examined the defendant last April and found she was a victim of dementia praecox.

Dr. Frederick Fink, connected with a San Antonio clinic, said he examined Mrs. Rogers last September 7 and that he was certain she was insane.

Sheriff George Allen, of San Marcos, was the State's first rebuttal witness. The officer brought Mrs. Rogers to the Hays County Jail a few hours after she was arrested in Austin the day of the robbery.

SEWER EXPLOSIONS KILL MAN; 82 HURT

YOUTH TRAPPED IN RUINS

Newburgh, N. Y., Sept. 16 (N.Y.W. N.S.).—One man is dead, two others are in a critical condition and about eighty persons are recovering from lesser injuries and shock as a result of a series of five sewer explosions which occurred in the downtown section here early this afternoon, showering the crowded streets with splintered glass and loosened brick and plaster.

In some cases entire walls caved in and fire broke out in several places simultaneously, adding to the danger and confusion and hampering the work of rescue and relief. The explosions were attributed to gas imprisoned in a 75-year-old brick sewer by the backing up of water caused by an unusually high tide in the Hudson River.

The dead man is William S. Green, stationer and bookseller, whose store in Water street bore the brunt of the blasts. Green was hurled from his store across the sidewalk to an automobile at the curb, where he was picked up later with a shattered jaw, fractured skull and internal injuries. He died tonight in St. Luke's Hospital.

Two others were in a serious condition at the hospital tonight. One of these was Thomas Van Gelder, 19, a clerk in Green's store, who lay for five hours in the ruins of the three-story building with a splinter penetrating his flesh from his neck to his eye. The other was Edgar Sheffer, clerk in Woolworth's store.

Thirty stores on both sides of Water street, which is just a block from the Hudson, were destroyed or badly damaged. The three-story building in which Green's store was located was completely wrecked, and another three-story building was razed by the fire that followed. Damage was estimated at over $150,000.

For hours police, firemen and National Guardsmen worked to aid the injured and dug in the wreckage to extricate the victims. They were still digging late tonight, seeking two unaccounted-for employes of Green when the two showed up at their homes. They had fled the scene.

Ten Miners Are Killed In Firedamp Explosion

Saabrueken, Germany, Sept. 16 (A. P.).—Ten men were killed today in a firedamp explosion which followed a blast in the "Charles Mine" when all the ventilators were destroyed. The Electric Central station and the boiler house were demolished.

The number of injured and any other dead still in the mine pit had not been determined late this afternoon.

The Listening Post

By CARLISLE BARGERON

NOW, gentlemen, when Calvin Coolidge had his picture taken during the campaign of 1924 pitching hay into a wagon there was considerable merriment hereabouts, but when Senator Dave Reed of Pennsylvania solemnly announces that he is a member of the farm bloc it would seem that the time has come to call a halt.

Mockery is being made of our most cherished citizens, our most dependable Republican voters and the fellows who will stick their shoulders in the cracks when civilization begins to tumble. Yet this is exactly what the Pennsylvania senator has done.

"We are all members of the farm bloc," he said yesterday in the Senate, "in the sense that we want to do everything that can possibly be done for the farmer."

* * * *

IF the Pennsylvania senator is a member of the farm bloc then it follows that so is Mr. Mellon and Mr. Joseph P. Grundy. Could anything be better to tempt the imagination.

Farmer Reed, Farmer Mellon and Farmer Grundy, the three musketeers, out on one of those threshing machines in the wide spaces of the West: Grundy at the wheel, Reed the assistant engineer or whatever they call the other fellow on the threshing machine, and Mellon with the food pail, just tagging along until the noon-day sun.

And wouldn't it be an even better picture with Cousens and Brookhart as the owners of the farm?

ONE can see the three of them now, stopping in their tracks at the sound of the resting gong, mopping their brows with red bandanas and trudging across furrowed fields in search of a creek in which to cool their aching feet, and finding instead only an irrigation ditch—Reed, the youngest and most eager of them leading the way, the heavy set Grundy following begrudgingly and snorting and puffing at every step, and Mellon with his tranquil face bringing up the rear.

The sit down on the edge of the ditch, remove their shoes and let their weary feet hang over into the stream and Mellon proceeds to open the pail, which Cousens and Brookhart have packed in the early morning when the great farmers started out to work. Gentlemen, what a feast that would be.

* * * *

BUT there is no doubt that Reed would have qualified for the Farm Bloc at that, had the testing of him been left to Borah. The test had turned on casein and Reed was discussing it in a way that stamped him a casein connoisseur.

The finance committee in framing the tariff bill had boosted casein, he declared, many times above the difference in the cost of production in this country and that in Argentine simply to make sure that American casein lovers would be amply protected.

Reed seemed to have completely disarmed Borah. He had fully established himself as an authority on casein.

But how about skimmed milk from which casein comes, queried Senator Howell, of Nebraska. How about the protection on that?

Reed countered that there was no way of determining the value of skimmed milk as so much was thrown away. But how much does it cost the farmer to deliver it? How much should the farmer get for delivering it, pursued Howell. He had Reed stumped. He did not know how much a farmer should get for delivering skimmed milk. Ah, there, he was caught. The Farm Bloc had him. And it shut the door in his face.

INVESTIGATION OF CAPITAL'S WATER SYSTEM UNDER WAY

Washington, Capt. Oram estimated roughly, and each of these five different types would be required to comply with different specifications. This would not exclude entirely the use of the cheap meters now installed throughout the District, it was pointed out, but it would allocate meters according to specific services to be rendered, using cheap meters where they were available and replacing them with other types where required.

Another change in the present systems, advocated by Capt. Oram, is the complete replacement of water meters every five years, this being the term which he believes the average good meter can be depended upon to give accurate service. He believes further that the saving which would result from raising the standards of District meters and using the specific types of meters best suited to the particular requirements of each section would offset the cost of such replacements.

Not only is there an enormous wasteage of water through the 14,000 defective meters listed by the Water Department, but it was learned also yesterday that an additional loss is resulting from the fact that a vast number of meters not listed as defective are actually slipping to the extent of 25 to 50 per cent yearly.

In other words, practically all of the Water Department's meters now in operation in the District of Columbia are really defective, although because of the fact that they have not ceased to register entirely they are still listed as operative, despite the fact that water registering as 100 per cent in the master meter at the pumping station may register as only 50 per cent when it goes through the "slipping" meter at point of consumption.

It is declared that the average loss due to this cause is about 25 per cent of all the metered water consumed in the District.

To meet this situation, District officials believe, all of the District-owned meters in operation now should be scrapped and replaced with meters bought under much more rigid specifications and with full consideration of the location in which each type of meter is to be installed.

Such a procedure would undoubtedly require more money than is available in the District water fund at this time, it is pointed out, but the ultimate saving would more than justify the initial expense.

This saving would be accomplished in two ways. First would be the sharp curtailment of wastage, which now costs the District more than $700,000 annually. Second would be the reduction in maintenance costs effected by installation of meters which would give greater service.

The repairs to 6,000 meters last year cost the District more than $65,000, or considerably more per meter than the cost of a new meter. This enormous upkeep of inferior meters is cited as the prime reason why the District has not kept up to schedule with its program to meterize the 15.4 per cent of consumers still buying their water on an unmetered flat-rate basis.

This is one phase of the activities of the Water Department which is to be given full consideration by Capt. Oram in his investigation.

A detailed study of the Water Department's annual report is being made by Capt. Oram, followed by a complete check-up to determine why the loss of one-third of the District's water supply, admitted in the report but declared unexplainable, should not be stopped.

Not in Report.

Capt. Oram will also make a thorough investigation of the reason why as many as 14,000 meters remain defective after 6,000 were repaired in one year, as shown by the secret records of the Water Department. It has been asserted by other newspapers that these 14,000 defective meters, first revealed in The Post last Saturday, were mentioned in the Water Department's report; this is incorrect, however, as the only mention of defective meters in the report concerns the 6,000 which were repaired after consumers had complained.

Another result which may develop from The Post's revelations of the water situation was brought out by several prominent officials of the District government yesterday.

They expressed the opinion that to require the taxpayers of Washington to pay for all of the water used by the Federal Government, without any recompense from the United States, was an imposition upon the taxpayers.

At present the Federal Government gets its water free, under provision of the law which specifies that no expense shall devolve upon the United States for water which it uses.

However, it is expected that efforts will be made before the present session of Congress to have this law amended so that the Federal Government, as well as the District of Columbia, which also gets its water free, at the expense of the taxpayers, shall be required to pay for all water used after certain exemptions are granted to provide these governments a fair return for their investments in the District water supply and distribution systems.

Total Investment.

Since 1850, when Washington's water systems were inaugurated on their present basis, the total investment in the supply system has been $23,855,552.70, and the investment in the distribution system has been $25,407,326.20, these figures including both construction and maintenance in each instance.

Of these totals, toward the supply system the United States during the past 79 years has contributed $11,006,173.24 the District has spent the sum of $9,286,398.11, and out of the District water fund, made up of revenues from the sale of water to taxpayers, has come $3,372,951.35.

But while the water fund supplied the smallest contribution toward the source of supply, which is the Washington aqueduct, it was by far the major contributor to the cost of building and maintaining the distribution system. Of the total of $25,407,326.20 for distribution, the water fund provided $23,602,170.68, while the United States contributed $1,305,714.42 and the District only $499,441.10.

Changes Are Requested.

After figuring in the equity held by the United States and the District in the water systems of Washington, it is suggested, it would be no more than reasonable to ask both of these governments to pay for all water they use over the quantity which would be covered by their equity.

Another suggestion made yesterday by District officials, which will also be given due consideration during the present study of the water situation, is a recommendation that whereas the Water Department now is apparently curtailing on necessary expenditures for maintenance of an adequate water supply in order to appear self-supporting without exceeding the limits of cash available in the District water fund, some provision should be made whereby the Water Department may have amounts appropriated for its use from the general District fund, thereby becoming on a par with other departments of the District government.

Bootleggers Use Much Water, Reader Thinks

Some novel, though possibly quite practical, suggestions are being received by The Post in response to its disclosures of inconsistencies in the water situation.

"Have you any idea of the tremendous quantity of water used by bootleggers in making whiskey, and of the thousands of people who are making it here in this city?" inquires one reader, urging that the Water Department take steps to see that all bootleggers' premises are equipped with water meters and that such water meters be kept in perfect repair at all times.

TOWNS ARE PERILED BY WALL OF FLAMES

Rancher in Washington Dies in Fire as Hundreds Flee Homes.

19,000 ACRES BURNED

Portland, Oreg., Sept. 16 (A.P.).—Destruction rode rampant today on two vast waves of flames in Oregon and Washington.

Forty miles southeast of Portland, in the Mount Hood National Forest, 19,000 acres were burned over, at least five residences destroyed and a hotel and two schoolhouses reduced to ashes in fires that started a week ago.

Only a fortunate change in the wind saved the city of Estacada, 35 miles southeast of Portland, from destruction. A terrific wall of flame, 10 miles across, bore down upon the town and had advanced to within five miles of it before the wind slackened and permitted fire fighters to make a fresh stand.

Residents Driven Out.

In Clark County, Washington, a great fire in the Yacolt area imperiled the once busy lumbering town and drove more than 200 residents from their homes. Those fighting the fire sent out an appeal for the assistance of the 900 Army troops stationed at Vancouver barracks. The situation, residents said, was beyond their control.

The communities of La Barre, Garfield, Ladee and Fenton were hit hard by the same fire that menaced Estacada. Property damage estimated at $120,000 was done by the flames. This loss included destruction of the La Barre Inn, a summer resort valued at $50,000; the R. Thomas Carter ranch valued at $10,000, and a $30,000 crop of ginseng; the $10,000 P. L. Anderson summer home, two schoolhouses and several other residences and ranch buildings.

The Yacolt, Wash., fire constituted a grave menace to that once flourishing lumber town. Two hundred residents abandoned their homes today when the fire threatened to entrap them. It was feared that soon nothing would remain of the town. Highways leading from the place were packed with trucks and automobiles conveying household goods from the stricken community.

Rancher Burned to Death.

Philip Rowe, 65, a rancher, was burned to death in the Bell Mountain fire, 30 miles northeast of Vancouver, Wash., today and his wife and son seriously burned in a fire that destroyed their homes. Mrs. Fred Dudley was severely burned when her ranch near Skye, Wash., was destroyed.

Maj. Gen. John L. Hines, commanding officer of the Ninth Corps Area, today instructed the commanding general at Vancouver barracks, to communicate with the district fire warden's office in Portland and to render such assistance as necessary in fighting fires near Vancouver, Wash.

The order was sent in response to urgent requests for help from the Vancouver Chamber of Commerce, and the sheriff's office at that city, which said forest fires had gotten out of control.

Lumber Camp Destroyed.

Camp Number One of the Ladee Lumber Co. was destroyed by the flames in the Mount Hood sector today and Camp Number Two was a partial loss.

Two hundred men fighting the flames there were unheard from this afternoon, although forestry officials believe they are safe. They were last heard from yesterday noon and were in the Ladee district at that time. Destruction of the forestry service telephone service cut the group off from any communication with Estacada. The district forester said the considerable area of burned over land now cool, would afford the men a haven in case flames surrounded them.

Every able bodied man in Estacada spent last night and today on the fire line. For a time today forestry officials held little hope of saving Estacada, in the face of a heavy wind. Later in the day this wind died down—the only possible chance the town had of escaping destruction.

Families Ready to Flee.

Fifteen of twenty families in the Garfield district, five miles from Estacada, were camped in their front yards tonight watching anxiously the progress of the flames. They rested beside trucks loaded with household goods, ready at any moment to desert their property if the flames approached closer. Farm animals were herded together ready to be driven from the stricken district.

The hunting season in eastern Washington was closed today by proclamation of Gov. Roland H. Hartley in an effort to prevent forest fires in the present hazardous situation. This in effect closes the entire state to hunters as the western Washington game season does not open until October 1.

Man Admits Slaying Of Woman, Say Police

New York, Sept. 16 (A.P.).—Breaking down after thirteen hours of continuous grilling, Joseph Barbetto, 35, today confessed, police said, to killing Mrs. Julia Quintieri, who was found strangled in her Bronx home yesterday. He did not state his motive.

Barbetto was arrested today at Marlboro, N. Y.

Mrs. Quintieri's body was discovered yesterday afternoon after her 6-year-old son, Charles, had remarked to a bootblack that he believed there was "something the matter with his mother."

According to Barbetto's alleged confession, the crime was committed early yesterday morning.

FALL TERM STARTS IN CIRCUIT COURT

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
Clarendon 919-J-1.

With Judge Howard Smith presiding, the Circuit Court of Fairfax County was called to order in the historic Fairfax Courthouse yesterday by Sheriff E. P. Kirby. The sessions of court will continue until October 5.

Immediately following the opening of court the county grand jury was given the oath of office and instructions by Judge Smith, then the jurors retired to the juryroom to hear criminal complaints.

True bills were returned by the jury after a three hours' session as follows:

Raymond E. Smith, transportation and possession of ardent spirits; Joe Riley, Joe Sealock and Melvin Kniser, two indictments each charging grand larceny; Frank Klock, alias Frank Clark, criminal assault; L. C. Hudson and William Holland, grand larceny; Calvin Neale, a felony; Roy Jones, selling liquor to a minor; Joseph Wills, a felony; John Fry, a felony; Douglas Lacey, reckless driving and leaving the scene of an accident; James Washington, alias James Marshall, highway robbery.

An indictment charging felonious murder was returned against Kenneth Poole, of Alexandria. The indictment grew out of a traffic tragedy on August 25. Poole was operating an automobile in which Leon Cornell, also of Alexandria, was a passenger. While rounding a curve near Franconia, about 3 miles from Alexandria, the car overturned and Cornell was injured. Cornell died a few days later in Alexandria Hospital.

The grand jurors ignored accusations of grand larceny against Willie Howard and William Honesty.

Commonwealth's Attorney William Farr presented seventeen information bills to Judge Smith. Five persons, named defendants in five of the bills, pleaded guilty and were sentenced, ten asked jury trials, bond was forfeited in one case and in the other two bench warrants were issued when defendants failed to appear.

The five sentences imposed were as follows: John Howell, alias John Brooks, transportation and possession of ardent spirits, $50 and costs and 30 days in jail; George W. Sencey, driving while drunk, $100 and costs; Antis Vowles, alias Antis Bowles, driving while drunk, $100 and costs and 30 days; Elnora Whitney, alias Elnora Marshall, driving while under the influence of liquor, $100 and costs and one month; Judge Butler, driving while drunk, $100 and costs and 30 days.

Bond was ordered forfeit for J. D. Goss, accused of driving while drunk, but Judge Smith continued hearing on the forfeiture. Bench warrants were issued for Raymond E. Smith and J. W. H. Smith, both accused of transportation and possession of liquor, who failed to appear in court.

The following jury trials were scheduled: Pete Ferguson, driving while drunk, September 24; William Draper, driving while drunk, September 23; Lewis Fones, James J. Clifford, and Harry Krause, all charged with driving while drunk, September 24; Renoux J. Smith, driving while drunk, October 1; Alton Brown, transportation and possession; September 23; Dewey Mock, transportation and possession, September 24; Ernest Rucker, transportation and possession, October 1, and Robert Candle, sale and possession, October 1.

Members of the Arlington and Fairfax Volunteer Fire Association are scheduled to hold a meeting tonight to inquire into charges that members of the Ballston department engaged in a melee with Deputy Sheriff Wilson Darr following the $50,000 blaze at the Fairfax Garage on Saturday night.

After the blaze was conquered, Deputy Sheriff Darr permitted members of the eleven District departments, which responded to the alarm, to fill their automobiles with gasoline salvaged from the flames.

The Ballston fire fighters, it was charged, not only took the gasoline but loaded a drum of oil and several automobile tires onto their vehicle. As they were about to depart the town, Darr intervened and pulled out his revolver. In the melee which followed, Darr was knocked down.

Members of the Ballston department, it was said, discarded the oil and tires and departed. Darr said he would not prefer any charges against any of the firemen but would take the matter up at the meeting.

The Ballston men deny the charges and say they will present their case tonight.

The County Teachers Institute met in Fairfax yesterday and members engaged in informal discussions of new legislation governing entrance requirements and general school regulations.

The members voted to conduct a campaign against illiteracy throughout the county. President Robert Allen, of the Fairfax Chamber of Commerce, addressed the teachers and urged them to aid in the chamber's work. County Superintendent of Schools W. T. Woodson presided at the meeting.

The following officers of the institute were elected: Dorothy Otey, principal of Clifton High School, president; Nancy Edwards, principal of Falls Church High School, vice president; Mary Parkadale, teacher of Falls Church High School, secretary-treasurer.

Walter J. Hines, accused of possession of narcotics, will be given a hearing before United States Commissioner Phillips at Alexandria today to determine whether or not he shall be bound over to the Federal Court branch at Alexandria.

Hines is in custody of Fairfax County authorities. He was one of a group of seven men arrested on suspicion of defrauding the public during the Fairfax County fair last week. The others were subsequently released. When Hines was searched, Fairfax County authorities said a quantity of alleged morphine was found on him.

TYPOTHETAE MEET WITH 800 PRESENT

Registration Expected to Top 1,500 Tonight or Tomorrow.

PRINTING ART DISPLAYED

With delegates representing master printers from throughout the United States and Canada, and visiting delegates from Mexico, Australia and England in attendance, the forty-third annual convention of the United Typothetae of America was formally opened at the Mayflower Hotel yesterday.

About 800 delegates had registered for the opening sessions, and with others expected tonight and tomorrow, officials of the organization predicted that the registration would total about 1,500.

The development and importance of the printing industry was emphasized by all speakers at the opening sessions, while the corridors and display rooms of the hotel were filled with exhibits showing specimens of printing from the earliest to the latest.

Growth of Industry Told.

Speaking on "The Discovery of Management," Merle Thorpe, editor, Nation's Business, United States Chamber of Commerce, detailed the growth and magnitude of present-day printing.

"The population of the United States has doubled since 1880," he said, "but the number of subscribers to papers and other printed matter has increased more than seven times."

In his annual address, Frank J. Smith, president of the United Typothetae of America, also stressed the general growth of the printing industry. He praised the work of the various departments of the organization, particularly the educational department, and emphasized the advantages which will accrue from the recent establishment of national headquarters of the organization in Washington. Smith declared the location of the headquarters here affords close proximity to the various Government departments, the headquarters of various organizations, and to the general civic, educational, scientific, business and industrial life in the Nation's Capital.

Capital Hospitality Praised.

The delegates were welcomed to Washington by Commissioner Sidney P. Taliaferro and William J. Eynon, president of the Washington Typothetae, host to the convention. George R. Keller, of Detroit, first vice president of the organization, responded to the addresses of welcome, and lauded the hospitality of Washington and its citizens.

Among the men formally introduced to the convention were George Ellis, of Boston, the oldest living past president; Alfred Finley, of Boston; George K. Hebb, of Detroit; George Anderson, of Australia, organizer of the Federation of Printers in that country; Prof. J. R. Riddell, principal of the London School of Printing, and George Carter, public printer, the only honorary member of the organization.

Election Due Thursday.

The general sessions of the convention, being held during the morning hours, will continue through Thursday, when an executive session and election of officers will be held. In the afternoons the departmental and auxiliary meetings are being held. Among the sessions held yesterday afternoon were the International Trade Composition Association; the Typothetae-Secretary-Manager Association and the Typothetae Cost Accountants Association.

Special programs are being arranged throughout the convention for the wives and families of the delegates. Directed shopping trips, a boat trip to Mount Vernon, a concert and illustrated lecture were among the entertainment yesterday and last night. Similar entertainments are arranged for each day.

"Education" will be the theme of the general session this morning, with prominent national and international speakers on the program.

Experts to Speak.

George H. Carter, public printer, will speak on "Training and Research at the Government Printing Office;" J. R. Riddell, principal of the London School of Printing, will discuss "Technical Education for Printers;" A. C. Jewett, director, college of industries, Carnegie Institute of Technology, Pittsburgh, Pa., will speak on "The Engineering Approach to Printing," while Dr. R. L. Cooley, president of the American Vocational Association, Milwaukee, Wis., will relate "The Social and Industrial Need of Our Times."

All the general sessions are being held in the ballroom of the Mayflower, while the departmental and auxiliary meeting are being held in the various conference rooms and halls of the hotel.

Between the numerous meetings, the delegates and visitors are urged to visit the organization's new headquarters in the Tower Building at Fourteenth and K streets.

PASTOR IS INVOLVED IN PANTAGES TRIAL

Court to Quiz Minister Who, It Is Said, Charged Jury Had Been "Hung."

STATE BARES SURPRISE

Los Angeles, Calif., Sept. 16 (A.P.).—Three surprising developments enlivened the second-degree murder trial of Mrs. Alexander Pantages here today. The wife of the wealthy theater owner is charged with responsibility for the death of Juro Rokumoto, Japanese, in an automobile collision here last June 16, and with driving while intoxicated.

The first two actions which created a furore among the opposing counsel as well as in the crowded courtroom, came immediately after court convened this morning. This had been delayed for a conference in the court chamber during which Chief Prosecutor Jasper P. Costello announced that a "surprise" witness would be called who had told him of acting as "go between" for a defense witness, John Conterno and Alexander Pantages, millionaire husband of the woman on trial. Costello said that this witness, Jack B. Yellin, had reported that Conterno assured Yellin of "plenty of dough" for his services.

Pastor Causes Sensation.

Assertions that the jury had been "hung" before the trial started, alleged to have been made by the Rev. Robert P. (Fighting Bob) Shuler from his pulpit yesterday and in his radio talk last night, was the next sensation to enter the case. Superior Judge Carlo S. Hardy ordered the militant pastor to appear for questioning concerning the report. The court also ordered in four persons asserted to have heard the accusations.

Judge Hardy said that he would make a sweeping investigation of every phase of Shuler's alleged charges.

The appearance for the defense of the purported driver of a "mystery" car which defense witness had testified forced Mrs. Pantages' machine into the fatal collision, was the surprise produced by Chief Defense Attorney Max Steuer. The driver, Henry Lee, a rancher, testified that he witnessed the crash and that Rokumoto made a left hand turn into the path of Mrs. Pantages' machine without signalling.

Society Woman Aids Defense.

Mrs. Alyce Campbell, Beverly Hills society woman, testified for the defense that she had seen the so-called mystery car crowding Mrs. Pantages to the wrong side of the street. She declared that this car passed her on the right, scraping one of her fenders and then cutting in ahead of her. Under cross-examination Mrs. Campbell said she was acquainted with the defendant.

Denial that his car had scraped the fenders of Mrs. Campbell's or that he had passed her on the right was made by Lee under cross-examination. Lee also denied testimony of previous defense witnesses who had declared the mystery car had sped away after the fatal crash. He testified he stopped it, parked his car and returned to the scene. Lee also denied assertions of Mrs. Campbell that he had cut in ahead of her and also disputed her description of his car.

Admits Knowing Yellin.

Conterno, when recalled to the stand by Prosecutor Costello, admitted knowing Jack Yellin. Questions concerning specific dates of meetings or conversations Yellin had related he held with Conterno were either denied outright or met with the reply "I do not remember."

Carmen Pantages, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Pantages, took the witness stand late today in defense of her mother. The 19-year-old girl was the first member of the family to be called for testimony. She was preceded on the stand by George Walk, a defense witness, who testified that he saw the fatal automobile accident.

and to institute divorce proceedings against her in the State of Virginia. Mrs. Burnhart sets out that she did not consent to the divorce and that as a result of it she has "wholly lost and been deprived of the society, affection, assistance, comfort, support and maintenance of her husband."

Mrs. Burnhart charges further that Mrs. Coates "wilfully and maliciously and wrongfully in the course of her guidance of the said William Frederick Burnhart," attempted to cause him to forfeit the payments, interest and principal in the buildin and loan association of his property "so that it might be sold at auction, destroying the home of the plaintiff, which action this plaintiff frustrated at great expense."

The plaintiff asserts that prior to the committing of the alleged wrongful acts that she enjoyed marital happiness, and that as a result of the alleged wrongful acts she has suffered great mental anguish, distress, pain and annoyance. She states that she has lost the support and maintenance afforded her by her husband and "was and is wholly humiliated among her neighbors and acquaintances and friends."

Attorney Albert W. Jacobson represents Mrs. Burnhart.

Through her attorney, J. F. Lillard, Mrs. Coates flatly denied last night the allegations of Mrs. Burnhart. "My client absolutely denies," Lillard said, "the accusations of the plaintiff." The attorney added that he plans to file within the next twenty days, the time allowed by the court for such action, a plea in behalf of Mrs. Coates.

CAROLINA TEXTILE STRIKE CALLED DURING FUNERAL

When the judge entered the court he said that he had an announcement to make. He declared that he had been receiving anonymous letters and had one signed "Patriotic Citizen." The jurist said he gave no heed to anonymous letters.

"If a man knows anything about a mob, he should come into court and tell it. If he doesn't, he does no good to write letters. When I receive one of these I feel as though I have received nothing," said the judge.

Oscar Goodman testified that he had been deputized by Horace Lane to patrol a section of highway near the Pinckney mill. Goodman denied going near the Lodge home in Gastonia, where the kidnaping occurred, or to Concord or to Charlotte.

Constable A. Sams, of Gastonia, said to have deputized Lane and Goodman, told Judge Shaw that he was not in communication with the sheriff's office the night the mob formed.

Late today A. G. Morehead, superintendent of the Loray mill and one of the fourteen defendants, testified that he went to the Lodge boarding house at Gastonia and told a crowd assembled there, "Don't commit violence — Gastonia has had enough shame."

He said he returned to the mill and called police headquarters. He emphatically denied that he had joined the crowd and said that he had never seen Lell, Saylor and Wells until they appeared in court in the Shaw investigation.

Knocked Down, He Says.

One of the members of the crowd he addressedat the Lodge home used abusive language to him, Morehead continued, and another knocked him off the porch from which he was speaking.

After the superintendent said his reason for returning to the mill was because of a test to be made there, Judge Shaw asked him:

"And that test was more important to you than the mob?"

"Well, I couldn't do anything with them," Morehead replied.

Sheriff Eli P. Lineberger, of Gaston County, said tonight he had not decided whether he would have special deputies on hand for the funeral of Mrs. Wiggins tomorrow or not.

Bill Dunne, secretary of the Communist Party in America, tonight issued a statement in which he said Gov. O. Max Gardner's statement of Saturday "is condoning the whole murder scheme here." The statement concluded:

"Our answer is a more intensive drive for 100 per cent organization of the Southern textile workers."

While funeral services were being planned for Mrs. Wiggins, the seven men charged with manslaughter in connection with her death were at liberty under bond. The warrants under which they were arrested were ordered sworn out by Solicitor Carpenter.

A coroner's jury began an investigation of the slaying yesterday, but after an all day hearing adjourned until next Saturday.

Tennessee Strike Threatens.

Elizabethton, Tenn., Sept. 16 (A.P.).—Francis Gorman, vice president of the United Textile Workers of America, said tonight that "very serious differences" exist between operators and employes of the American Bamberg and Glanzstoff rayon plants here, which a few months ago went through a protracted strike.

Gorman and Alfred Hoffman, Southern organizer for the United Textile Workers of America, have been here since Friday.

The principal difference concerned the workers' contention that the plants had not reemployed all those who struck several months ago and took part in troubles accompanied by dynamitings, wholesale arrests and the presence of several hundred State troopers. Since the strike was settled the situation has been quiet.

Gorman said, however, that "a very unhealthy attitude" exists among some of the workers. He said he hoped to obtain a conference with company officials tomorrow or Wednesday.

Members of the union, which during the strike numbered several thousand, but is said to have shrunk considerably since, have been called to a mass meeting here Wednesday night.

Sixty Indicted in Strike.

Marion, N. C., Sept. 16 (A.P.).—The McDowell County grand jury today indicted 60 strike sympathizers as a result of disturbances during the recent strike at the Clinchfield and Marion Manufacturing Co. mills. The 60 are charged with rioting and rebellion.

Alfred L. Hoffman, Southern organizer for the United Textile Workers of America, was indicted on charges of inciting to riot and rebellion. The grand jury refused to return true bills against four strikers arrested on similar charges.

Solicitor J. W. Pless jr., announced he would begin calling the cases tomorrow, but defense counsel said a continuance would be sought to allow for preparation of the defense cases.

The charges grew from a riot August 3, in which Sheriff Oscar Adkins and several deputies were driven from the Clinchfield mill village by a mob of strike sympathizers. Eighty-four men were arrested on charges of rioting and rebellion.

Troops were called to Marion to preserve order after the riot and remained their until last Friday. The strikes were settled by arbitration, the strikers agreeing to return to work on a 55-hour week basis at the same rate of pay. Previously they had worked a sixty-hour week.

PROOF OF INDIANS' ORIGIN IS UNFOUND

and some time by accident some one will uncover the key to the problem.

"The Indians came originally from Asia in watercraft. A study of the country demonstrates this. These small tribes migrated down the coast, using water routes, and settled first along the Pacific Coast, and worked inland from there. The linking of the past with the present is an arduous work."

Dr. Hrdlicka said the work was a continuation of that carried on by him in 1926 and by others from the Smithsonian Institution since 1863. Its objects are to solve the origin of the Eskimo and his racial relations to the Indian and study the vanishing living full bloods. Dr. Hrdlicka predicted that in less than twenty years there will be no full blooded Eskimos in Alaska.

During the summer the party traveled more than 1,500 miles along the Yukon River hunting for archeological relics. Old Indian villages were uncovered and examined and many cases of exhibits sent to the institution in Washington. Casts were made of fifteen full blooded Eskimos and Indains.

Dr. Hrdlicka, who arrived here yesterday, was to leave tonight for Washington.

Apartment hunting is far from a pleasant task. Why not look in the classified columns of The Washington Post. Perhaps the very place you are looking for is advertised today.

WEDDING BELLS RING IN SALVATION ARMY

Georgia Lass Comes to Capital as Bride of Young Worker.

OFFICIALS ATTEND RITES

Maj. James Asher, divisional commander of the Salvation Army, returned to headquarters yesterday, bringing with him Mr. and Mrs. James Asher, jr., whose wedding took place at LaGrange, Ga., Saturday night. The bride was Miss Dora Walsh, daughter of Ensign and Mrs. Albert Walsh, in charge of Salvation Army activities at La Grange. Mr. and Mrs. Asher are spending their honeymoon at the home of the bridegroom's parents, 9303 Military road, Chevy Chase.

Mrs. Asher, as Miss Walsh, sold the War Cry and made collections for the army in LaGrange, and her popularity is attested by the fact that she was known as "The Sweetheart of LaGrange." The wedding ceremony was performed by Commisioner William A. McIntyre, in charge of the Southern territory of the Salvation Army, comprising the sixteen Southeastern States. He was assisted by Col. Alfred A. Chandler, chief secretary.

The wedding took place at Salvation Army headquarters at LaGrange and was attended by city and county officials as well as civic leaders of LaGrange.

The bride was in the service of the Salvation Army for a number of years before meeting her husband. Asher has done considerable work for the army but has not as yet qualified for a position as an officer. Maj. Asher yesterday expressed the hope that his son would take up army work.

daughter's need of clothing for school and Waugh became enraged, it was reported to police. Mrs. Waugh and her daughter, who had approached while the quarrel was in progress, began to walk toward their home while Waugh shouted after them.

"I'm going to kill myself right here," police reported that Waugh screamed. He then whipped out a revolver and fired. Two bullets struck Mrs. Waugh, one in the left cheek and another in the shoulder. Waugh then sent a bullet through his temple.

Their daughter ran down the street, screaming to neighbors:

"My mama's dead. My daddy has killed my mama."

Passing motorists took the couple to the hospitals. At Casualty Hospital, Dr. Louis Jimal operated on Waugh and removed a bullet from his head near the brain. It was reported, while Mrs. Waugh was taken to Providence Hospital and it was discovered that the bullet had entered her left cheek and emerged from the other side of the face.

The revolver used in the shooting, a .32 caliber Spanish type weapon, was recovered by Patrolman John Russell, of the Fifth Precinct. Four of the five bullet chambers contained exploded shells.

Waugh, who lives with his parents in Kensington, according to police, admitted the shooting and declared he had wounded his wife because "she done me dirty." Police said that Waugh was not regularly employed.

Mrs. Waugh lives at the L street address with her sister, Mrs. Pauline King. She told police that Waugh became enraged when her sister refused to let him enter the house.

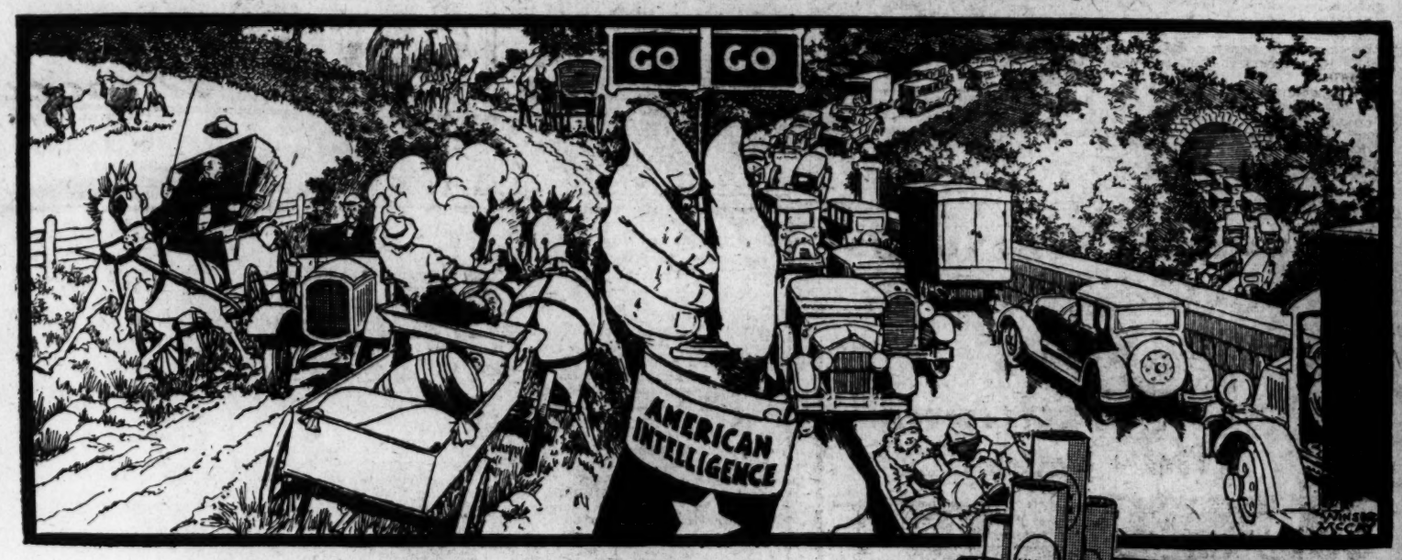
Horses Do Not Climb Trees!
AN ANCIENT PREJUDICE HAS BEEN REMOVED
Anger and fear greeted the faltering efforts of the first automobile. But the hands of AMERICAN INTELLIGENCE guided the steering wheel and controlled the throttle—the automobile drove on to glorious success.



"toasting did it"—
Gone is that ancient prejudice against cigarettes—Progress has been made. We removed the prejudice against cigarettes when we removed harmful corrosive ACRIDS (pungent irritants) from the tobaccos.

YEARS ago, when cigarettes were made without the aid of modern science, there originated that ancient prejudice against all cigarettes. That criticism is no longer justified. LUCKY STRIKE, the finest cigarette you ever smoked, made of the choicest tobacco, properly aged and skillfully blended—"It's Toasted."

"TOASTING," the most modern step in cigarette manufacture, removes from LUCKY STRIKE harmful irritants which are present in cigarettes manufactured in the old-fashioned way.

Everyone knows that heat purifies, and so "TOASTING"—LUCKY STRIKE'S extra secret process—removes harmful corrosive ACRIDS (pungent irritants) from LUCKIES which in the old-fashioned manufacture of cigarettes cause throat irritation and coughing. Thus "TOASTING" has destroyed that ancient prejudice against cigarette smoking by men and by women.

"It's toasted"
No Throat Irritation—No Cough.

"It's Toasted"—the phrase that describes the extra "toasting" process applied in the manufacture of Lucky Strike Cigarettes The finest tobaccos—the Cream of the Crop—are scientifically subjected to penetrating heat at minimum, 260°—maximum, 300°, Fahrenheit. The exact, expert regulation of such high temperatures removes impurities. More than a slogan, "It's Toasted" is recognized by millions as the most modern step in cigarette manufacture.

WOMAN'S ASSAILANT SENT TO GALLINGER

Sanity of John C. Harden, of U. S. Army, Questioned on Arraignment.

SENTENCE AWAITS TEST

Private John Charles Harden, attached to the Thirty-third Infantry, now on duty in the Canal Zone, but a psychopathic patient at Walter Reed Hospital, was sent to Gallinger Hospital yesterday by Judge Gus A. Schuldt, after witnesses in Police Court had testified that the soldier had felled Dorothy A. Pope last Wednesday on Georgia avenue, near Elder street northwest.

Judge Schuldt sent the soldier to Gallinger for ten days and declared that if he were found to be of sound mind at the end of the period of observation he would be given the extreme penalty provided by the court for assault.

"Women on the streets must be protected," said Judge Schuldt, "and if Gallinger Hospital finds you are not of unsound mind the court will give you the limit."

Miss Pope testified that last Wednesday evening, about 9:40 o'clock, she was walking along Georgia avenue with her dog and when near Elder street Harden accosted her. She said she repulsed his advances three times and that finally the man caught up with her and grabbed her arm. She stated that she called her dog to protect her and that when she did Harden doubled his fist and struck her twice, knocking her to the sidewalk.

Charles M. Medford, of 7019 Georgia avenue northwest, testified he saw a man strike a woman down and stand over her menacingly. He said he approached and the man fled. Medford testified that he finally captured Harden after a chase of several blocks and turned him over to the police and a detail from Walter Reed Hospital.

Harden told the court that he was drinking Wednesday night and that he remembers nothing about having struck a woman. Assistant United States Attorney Irvin Goldstein prosecuted the case. Harden had no counsel.

Saginaw Man Is Named as Director of Foreign Trade Bureau.

(Associated Press.)

William L. Cooper, of New York, was nominated by President Hoover yesterday to be director of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce in the Department of Commerce.

Cooper will succeed Julius Klein, who has become Assistant Secretary of the department.

Cooper is now serving as commercial attache in the foreign service of the Commerce Department at London. He was born in Saginaw, Mich., in 1878.

After graduating from the University of Michigan he was engaged for several years in designing stationary and marine boilers and blast furnaces. From 1901 to 1917 he was associated in an engineering capacity with Robert W. Hunt & Co., of Chicago.

Gubernator said, Van Wagenen rose to go. He signed the dinner check and went out through the club, evidently to leave by the front way. Two minutes later his wife got up and said she would go down from the porch to the car.

"We asked if she knew her way to the car, and she said she could find it," Gubernator said. "She had intended driving home in her own car, but her niece, Miriam Roehrig, had asked if she could use it, and she had acquiesced."

William Savage, 21, of Allentown, told of finding her lying unconscious on Liberty street, five blocks from her home, and of taking her to the Allentown Hospital, where she died without regaining consciousness. He said he found her between 9:30 and 10 p. m.

Van Wagenen, a distinguished looking man with iron gray hair, wore a blue pin-stripe suit, light blue shirt and blue and white polka dot tie with a big diamond pin. At the country club and in business circles he has somewhat of a reputation as a "ladies' man."

An inquest was held tonight in the courthouse, with Coroner Frederick Bausch presiding. Most of the witnesses at the hearing, and a dozen socially prominent members of the Lehigh Country Club, were called as witnesses.

the other hand, it indicates that below this level, Uncle Sam is the more liberal.

These findings, however, are based on the wages paid by the average employer. The Federation of Federal Employes feels that the best, the most progressive employer, not the average employer, should be used for the comparison, and contends that if this is done it will be seen that Uncle Sam pays is not at all liberal to those employs under the $2,000 class.

Representative Lehlbach said yesterday that he did not plan to do anything about civil service legislation until the regular session begins in December. Once his committee is organized, it is expected that he will call it together and map out a program for the session.

In a recent speech before the convention of the Federation of Federal Employes, Lehlbach said that he was confident that, at the next session, Congress would liberalize the retirement act and pass a uniform leave law.

Inn Owner Shot Dead In Alleged Gang Feud

Chicago, Ill., Sept. 16 (A.P.).—A well-dressed man, identified as Peter Pullizzi, half owner of the Elmhurst Inn, a roadhouse in the western suburban area, staggered from an automobile on the west side today and fell dead from a bullet wound.

Police expressed the belief that Pullizzi was involved in a beer war or gang dispute.

QUIZ OF INJUNCTION URGED UPON SENATE

SHERMAN ACT USE IS HIT

A senatorial investigation of the use of injunctions seeking to prevent the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America from organizing the clothing workers in Philadelphia was demanded in the Senate yesterday by Senator La Follette (Republican), of Wisconsin.

La Follette introduced a resolution calling attention to an injunction issued September 9 by United States Judge W. H. Kirkpatrick, of the Eastern District of Philadelphia, describing the injunction as "a most drastic one, denying as it does to thousands of American citizens their basic right to organize for the purpose of improving their condition through collective bargaining with their employers."

Other Curbs on Unionists.

It is asserted that the injunction also enjoins the union from dealing with employes of the manufacturers who signed "yellow dog" contracts and provides that employes who give up their jobs must agree not to seek to obtain recruits for the union within 30 days.

Asserting that the conduct of the Philadelphia strike had been so peaceful that the police had complimented the union, Senator La Follette said: "If ever there were a more glaring example of the misuse of the injunction power of the courts in labor disputes, the records fail to show it.

Citing of Sherman Act Hit.

"The most sinister note, however, that this injunction strikes is, the bringing into this dispute between the workers and the employers of the Sherman act, which was placed on the statute books for an entirely different purpose," Senator La Follette said. "Such action is a menace to the rights of all people who seek to join themselves together to work in a peaceable manner to better their conditions."

Senator Reed (Republican), of Pennsylvania, declared that he never had heard of the injunction referred to, but that he had no objection to allowing La Follette's resolution to be referred to the judiciary committee, as the latter requested. "If the right of workers to organize has been infringed by this injunction," Reed said, "I can't imagine any objection that could be made to the investigation."

Kick in Stomach Injures Woman.

During an altercation at her home, 222 C street northwest, yesterday, police reported that Naomi Brown, colored, 31 years old, was seriously hurt when Clarence Wye, also colored, kicked her in the stomach. She was taken to Gallinger Hospital where her condition was reported to be serious.

Day in Congress

SENATE.

Met at noon and recessed at 5:15 to noon today.

Senator Borah (Republican), Idaho, denounced the tariff bill as now written, charging that, in writing it, the Republican party had violated its pledge to the farmers. Senator Reed (Republican), Pennsylvania, defended the bill, and denied that it discriminated against the farmer.

Senator La Follette (Republican), Wisconsin, introduced a resolution calling for an investigation of the action of Federal Judge Kirkpatrick, of eastern Pennsylvania, in issuing an injunction to halt the organization of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America.

Chairman Smoot, of the finance committee, read a letter from the American Federation of Labor asking for changes in the tariff bill which would help labor.

Chairman McNary, of the agriculture committee, called a meeting of the committee for Thursday to consider the nominations of the members of the Federal Farm Board.

Received from the President the nomination of Clarence M. Young, of Iowa, to be Assistant Secretary of Commerce in charge of aeronautics, and the nomination of William L. Cooper, of New York, to be director of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce in the Department of Commerce.

Commander George B. Wright, U. S. N., was nominated to be a captain, and Lieut. Comdr. Alfred T. Clay to be a commander.

LABOR PACTS END BUILDING WORRIES

Government Now Can Go Ahead With Program, Is Belief.

THREE YEARS ARE BASIS

With agreements having been signed with the major labor unions, it is now believed the Government's extensive building program can be definitely launched without fear of further labor troubles.

Since its inception the Government construction plans have been threatened with delay and interruption, owing to the unstable conditions of the Washington building industry. But at present, the Master Builders Association reports, more than 90 per cent of the sixteen labor unions engaged in the building trade have signed new working agreements with employers. As a result of these agreements, most of which are for lengthy periods, it is believed that not only the Government program, but also commercial activities, are not likely to encounter any labor difficulties in the near future.

In most cases the agreements have been worked out on a three-year basis, which is believed to be ample for the initial work on the Government program, the association reports. There are a few working agreements of some of the minor unions which will continue through this year, but it is said that little difficulty is anticipated in bringing about renewals of these agreements, with slight modifications to meet changed conditions.

The work of eliminating possible labor hitches is said to have been greatly enhanced by the recent announcement of the Treasury Department that henceforth no division of contracts on any one job as between architectural and mechanical trades will be made by the Government. This announcement eliminated the difficulty which held up work on the annex of the Government Printing Building for more than two months.

DEAREST GENEVIEVE: If you take a jaunt along Connecticut Avenue this morning, you will see so many changes, and so many shops opened that you will gasp with amazement. This will be true, particularly, if you have just returned from a holiday or a summer away from home.

Windows are sparkling with beautiful new collections. You may acquire a most comprehensive idea of the trend of fashions by just studying the windows of the gown and hat shops as you pass.

Mothers Are Taking the Children

—in to Underwood & Underwood's for photographs before school begins. Now, when the children are so well and brown and beautiful, it is a good idea to have photographs made. After school once starts there is no telling what casualties may have occurred to mar their perfection, such as bruised knees and skinned noses, although we would not for the world predict any such calamities.

If you look in the windows this week you will see some sweet pictures of pretty children in summer hats and bonnets. Summer clothes are attractive, in photographs, don't you think? But whether you choose summer clothes for their attire or have them photographed in the new togs you have just bought them for school you will like the pictures Underwood & Underwood make for you.

A special photograph of children is made at $20 a dozen and that is a most moderate sum, considering the excellent work and mounting. The specially equipped studio for children is interesting, as everything is scaled down to child's size and presents a homelike atmosphere in which to "see the birdie."

—recently? If not you will be surprised at the many changes which have been made. So many clever improvements have been effected in the interior. You can see the hand of Mifflin Blackistone, the new manager, in all the innovations.

The plans for landscaping the open space at the rear of the hotel, are underway, and you can imagine what a delightful recreation spot this will be.

The Cavalier, 3500 14th street, has hotel service, cafe and everything. The apartments are furnished or unfurnished, and range from one room and bath to six rooms.

I Found Alice In Short Skirts

—in the children's corner in the Grenville Book Shop, 1739 Conn. Ave. I was really looking for the edition of "Alice in Wonderland" with the Tenniel illustrations, which we knew as children, showing Alice with long blond hair and a blue ribbon bound around it. A reprint of that edition, which came out first in 1866 is to be found there too, but you will adore the new one, with Willy Pogany drawings of Alice with bobbed hair and modern little clothes. Perhaps you remember Pogany's Modern Mother Goose?

You enter the children's corner in the Grenville Book Shop through a little white gate at the back, and find a diminutive low-boy, tiny chairs and no end of books which children delight in.

The entrance to the establishment brings you directly into the most restful lounge or sitting room, with a Winthrop desk and chair; low comfortable love seats with colonial chintz covers, old prints on the walls and everything inviting you to linger.

Mrs. Cecil Cain, who has charge of the retail branch of the shop, showed me numbers of rare editions which you will delight in seeing; lovely bindings and wonderfully etched illustrations accompanying. It seemed to me the collection of books was unusually complete, including advance printings of all the newest.

Mrs. Cushing Brant is in charge of the circulating library which is located on the mezzanine. The Grenville has only just moved to this new location.

Russina Retains Beauty Traditions

—of the famed belles of the Russian court. Russina, 1609 Conn. Ave., gives a shampoo which is different from any other I ever heard of. The salon is charming and restful, and the individual rooms done in keeping. You know this has a definite bearing on the result of a face treatment or a shampoo. Everything is done so quietly and with such apparent ease, with no fuss or confusion, so that you can truthfully say you have thoroughly enjoyed every minute in Russina's. A complete beauty service is given here, needless to say.

Cruising On A Royal Yacht

—may not have been in your wildest dreams. It is entirely within the range of possibilities, however. Go in the C. C. Drake Travel Bureau in the Willard Hotel and ask Miss Persons about it. Miss Elizabeth Persons, who is the manager for C. C. Drake Co. in Washington, Baltimore and Philadelphia, will be in the office in the Willard most of this week, so now would be a good time to interview her personally on world tours and trips of various kinds, and most especially on this delightful cruise through the West Indies on the Prince Olav.

When in Martin's Yesterday Morning

—I saw some packages being made up for wedding gifts. Never have I seen such luscious looking packages as they were! Imagine a rare piece of china or glass tied in white tissue with a great chou of vari-colored rainbow tulle! Another box was tied in brocaded gold gauze, and some smaller packages with generous rosettes of pastel ribbons, one in green, another in Dresden flowers.

Martin's, 1317 Conn. Ave., stands for exquisite selections of lovely things and for perfection in every detail of their service. This is, in fact, one of the most fascinating shops on the avenue.

Just now, with innumerable weddings looming ahead in the near future and gifts galore to be purchased, it is good that importations are arriving daily at Martin's. You know, Mr. Martin just returned from an extended trip abroad.

Let me remind you of a set of candelabra and two epergnes in delicate white Spode, of complete services in Royal Derby. Do see the great collection of service plates—Wedgewood, white and platinum—and the many engaging pieces of engraved crystal. This is the place to buy wedding gifts.

Affectionately,

The Seven Dials Mystery

A Serial tSory By AGATHA CHRISTIE.

THE STORY THUS FAR.

There's a house party on at Chimneys, an estate outside London, occupied for the present on lease by Sir Oswald and Lady Coote. Guests are late in breakfast, especially Jimmy Thesiger and Gerry Wade, much to the annoyance of Lady Coote.

Rupert Bateman, secretary to Sir Oswald, suggests an alarm clock by way of assuring that Wade in particular gets up next morning at a more reasonable hour. They plan to place eight clocks in Wade's room once he is asleep. Bateman, known as "Pongo," places the clocks, and yet next day at noon Wade is still in bed. At 12:20 he is found dead by a servant. Dr. Cartwright declared death due to an overdose of sleeping powder. Seven clocks, not eight, are found lined up in Wade's room. Thesiger and Ronny Devereux motor to Gerry's home to inform a sister, Loraine Wade, of her brother's death.

NOW CONTINUE THE STORY.

A LETTER FOR LORAINE.

"INCONSIDERATE, that's what I call it," said Lord Caterham.

He spoke in a gentle, plaintive voice and seemed pleased with the adjective he had found.

"Yes, distinctly inconsiderate. I often find these self-made men are inconsiderate. Very possibly that is why they amass such large fortunes."

He looked mournfully out over his ancestral acres, of which he had today regained possession.

His daughter, Lady Eileen Brent, known to her friends and society in general as "Bundle," laughed.

"You'll certainly never amass a large fortune," she observed dryly, "though you didn't do so badly out of old Coote, sticking him for this place. What was he like? Presentable?"

"One of those large men," said Lord Caterham, shudderng slightly, "with a red, square face and iron-gray hair. Powerful, you know. What they call a forceful personality. The kind of a man you'd get if a steam-roller were turned into a human being."

"Rather tiring?" suggested Bundle sympathetically.

"Frightfully tiring, full of all the most depressing virtues, like sobriety and punctuality. I don't know which are the worst, powerful personalities or earnest politicians. I do so prefer the cheerful inefficient."

"A cheerful inefficient wouldn't have been able to pay you the price you asked for this old mausoleum," Bundle reminded him.

Lord Caterham winced.

"I wish you wouldn't use that word, Bundle. We were just getting away from the subject."

"I don't see why you're so frightfully sensitive about it," said Bundle. "After all, people must die somewhere."

Objects to Strangers.

"They needn't die in my house," said Lord Caterham.

"I don't see why not. Lots of people have masses of stuffy old great-grandfathers and grandmothers."

"That's different," said Lord Caterham. "Naturally I expect Brents to die here—they don't count. But I do object to strangers. And I especially object to inquests. The thing will become a habit soon. This is the second. You remember all that fuss we had four years ago? For which, by the way, I hold George Lomax entirely to blame."

"And now you're blaming poor old steam-roller Coote. I'm sure he was quite as annoyed about it as any one."

"Very inconsiderate," said Lord Caterham obstinately. "People who are likely to do that sort of thing oughtn't to be asked to stay. And you may say what you like, Bundle, I don't like inquests. I never have and I never shall."

"Well, this wasn't the same sort of thing as the last one," said Bundle soothingly. "I mean, it wasn't a murder?

"It might have been—from the fuss that thick-head of an inspector made. He's never got over that business four years ago. He thinks every death that takes place here must necessarily be a case of foul play fraught with grave political significance. You've no idea the fuss he made. I've been hearing about it from Tredwell. Tested everything imaginable for fingerprints. And, of course, they only found the dead man's own. The clearest case imaginable—though whether it was suicide or accident is another matter.

"I met Gerry Wade once," said Bundle. "He was a friend of Bill's. You'd have liked him, father. I never saw any one more cheerfully inefficient than he was."

"I don't like any one who comes and dies in my house on purpose to annoy me," said Lord Caterham obstinately.

A Misadventure.

"But I certainly can't imagine any one murdering him," continued Bundle. "The idea's absurd."

"Of course it is," said Lord Caterham. "Or would be to any one but an ass like Inspector Raglan."

"I daresay looking for fingerprints made him feel important," said Bundle soothingly. "Anyway, they brought it in 'Death by misadventure,' didn't they?"

Lord Caterham acquiesced.

"They had to show some consideration for the sister's feelings."

"Was there a sister? I didn't know."

"Half sister, I believe. She was much younger. Old Wade ran away with her mother—he was always doing that sort of thing. No woman appealed to him unless she belonged to another man."

"I'm glad there's one bad habit you haven't got," said Bundle.

"I've always led a very respectable God-fearing life," said Lord Caterham. "It seems extraordinary, considering how little harm I do to anybody, that I can't be let alone. It only——"

He stopped as Bundle made a sudden excursion through the window.

"MacDonald," called Bundle in a clear, autocratic voice.

The emperor approached. Something that might possibly have been taken for a smile of welcome tried to express itself on his countenance, but the natural gloom of gardeners dispelled it.

"Your ladyship?" said MacDonald.

"How are you?" said Bundle.

"I'm no verra grand," said MacDonald.

"I wanted to speak to you about the bowling green. It's shockingly overgrown. Put some one on to it, will you?"

MacDonald shook his head dubiously.

"It would mean taking William from the lower border, m'lady."

"Damn the lower border," said Bundle. "Let him start at once. And, MacDonald——"

"Yes, m'lady?"

"Let's have some of those grapes in from the far house.

"I know it's the wrong time to cut them because it always is, but I want them all the same. See?"

Bundle reentered the library.

"Sorry, father," she said, "I wanted to catch MacDonald. Were you speaking?"

"As a matter of fact I was," said Lord Caterham. "But it doesn't matter What were you saying to MacDonald?"

That Clock Business.

"Trying to cure him of thinking he's God Almighty. But that's an impossible task. I expect the Cootes have been bad for him. MacDonald wouldn't care one hoot, or even two hoots for the largest steamroller that ever was. What's Lady Coote like?"

Lord Caterham considered the question.

"Very like my idea of Mrs. Siddons," he said at last. "I should think she went in a lot for amateur theatricals. I gather she was very upset about the clock business."

"What clock business?"

"Tredwell has just been telling me. It seems the house-party had some joke on. They bought a lot of alarm clocks and hid them about this young Wade's room. And then, of course, the poor chap was dead. Which made the whole thing rather beastly."

Bundle nodded.

"Tredwell told me something else rather odd about the clocks," continued Lord Caterham, who was now quite enjoying himself. "It seems that somebody collected them all and put them in a row on the mantelpiece after the poor fellow was dead."

"Well, why not?" said Bundle.

"I don't see why not myself," said Lord Caterham. "But apparently there was some fuss about it. No-one would own up having done it, you see. All the servants were questioned and swore they hadn't touched the beastly things. In fact, it was rather a mystery. And then the coroner asked questions at the inquest, and you know how difficult it is to explain things to people of that class."

"Perfectly foul," agreed Bundle.

"Of course," said Lord Caterham, "it's very difficult to get the hang of things afterward. I didn't quite see the point of half the things Tredwell told me. By the way, Bundle, the fellow died in your room.

Bundle made a grimace.

"Why need people die in my room?" she asked with some indignation.

That's just what I've been saying," said Lord Caterham, in triumph. "Inconsiderate. Everybody's damned inconsiderate nowadays."

"Not that I mind," said Bundle valiantly. "Why should I?"

"I should," said her father. "I should mind very much. I should dream things, you know—spectral hands and clanking chains."

Not Superstitious.

"Well," said Bundle, "Great Aunt Louisa died in your bed. I wonder you don't see her spook hovering over you.

"I do sometimes," said Lord Caterham, shuddering. "Especially after lobster."

"Well, thank heavens I'm not superstitious," declared Bundle.

Yet that evening, as she sat in front of her bedroom fire, a slim, pajamaed figure, she found her thoughts reverting to that cheery, vacuous young man, Gerry Wade. Impossible to believe that any one so full of the joy of living could deliberately have committed suicide. No, the other solution must be the right one. He had taken a sleeping draft and by a pure mistake had swallowed an overdose. That was possible. She did not fancy that Gerry Wade had been overburdened in an intellectual capacity.

Her gaze shifted to the mantelpiece and she began thinking about the story of the clocks. Her maid had been full of that, having just been primed by the second housemaid. She had added a detail which apparently Tredwell had not thought worth while retailing to Lord Caterham, but which had piqued Bundle's curiosity.

One on the Lawn.

Seven clocks had been neatly ranged on the mantelpiece; the last and remaining one had been found on the lawn outside, where it had obviously been thrown from the window.

Bundle puzzled over that point now. It seemed such an extraordinarily purposeless thing to do. She could imagine that one of the maids might have tidied the clocks and then, frightened by the inquisition into the matter, have denied doing so. But surely no maid would have thrown a clock into the garden.

"I don't like any one who comes and dies in my house on purpose to annoy me," said Lord Caterham obstinately.

Had Gerry Wade done so when his first sharp summons woke him? But no; that was impossible. Bundle remembered hearing that his death must have taken place in the early hours of the morning, and he would have been in a comatose condition for some time before that.

Bundle frowned. This business of the clocks was curious. She must get hold of Bill Eversleigh. He had been there, she knew.

To think was to act with Bundle. She got up and went over to the writing desk. It was an inlaid affair with a lid that rolled back. Bundle sat down at it, pulled a sheet of note-paper toward her and wrote.

Dear Bill—

She paused to pull out the lower part of the desk. It had stuck halfway as she remembered it often did. Bundle tugged at it impatiently but it did not move. She recalled that on a former occasion an envelope had been pushed back with it and had jammed it for the time being. She took a thin paper-knife and slipped it into the narrow crack. She was so far successful that a corner of white paper showed. Bundle caught hold of it and drew it out. It was the first sheet of a letter, somewhat crumpled.

It was the date that first caught Bundle's eye. A big flourishing date that leaped out from the paper, September 21.

"September 21," said Bundle slowly. "Why, surely that was——"

She broke off. Yes, she was sure of it. The 22d was the day Gerry Wade was found dead.

This, then, was a letter he must have been writing on the very evening of the tragedy.

Bundle smoothed it out and read it. It was unfinished.

"My Darling Loraine—I will be down on Wednesday. Am feeling awfully fit and rather pleased with myself all round. It will be heavenly to see you. Look here, do forget what I said about that Seven Dials business. I thought it was going to be more or less of a joke, but it isn't—anything but. I'm sorry I ever said anything about it—it's not the kind of business kids like you ought to be mixed up in. So forget about it, see?

"Something else I wanted to tell you—but I'm so sleepy I can't keep my eyes open.

"Oh, about Lurcher; I think——"

Here the letter broke off.

Bundle sat frowning. Seven Dials. Where was that? Some rather slummy district of London, she fancied. The words Seven Dials reminded her of something else, but for the moment she couldn't think of what. Instead her attention fastened on two phrases "Am feeling awfully fit * * *" and "I'm so sleepy I can't keep my eyes open."

An Analysis.

That didn't fit in. That didn't fit in at all. For it was that very night that Gerry Wade had taken such a heavy dose of chloral that he never woke again. And if what he had written in that letter were true, why should he have taken it?

Bundle shook her head. She looked round the room and gave a slight shiver. Supposing Gerry Wade were watching her now. In this room he had died * * *

She sat very still. The silence was unbroken save for the ticking of her little gold clock. That sounded unnaturally loud and importnat.

Bundle glanced toward the mantelpiece. A vivid picture rose before her mind's eye. The dead man lying on the bed, and seven clocks ticking on the mantelpiece—ticking loudly, ominously * * * ticking * * *ticking * * *

Gentlemen:—

We want to commend the honesty and judgment of your employe, John Meyer, who yesterday found a package addressed to us that had been lost off the wagon of the American Railway Express Company.

We promptly took the matter up with the express company who investigated, and who informed me this morning that as soon as Mr. Meyer appeared at their office, they would suitably reward him for his action.

We think that every instance of courtesy, helpfulness and dependability shown by taxicab drivers gives the public just that much more faith in the dependability of the organized taxi companies, and are glad to have this opportunity of bringing to your attention one more instance of the helpfulness of a driver.

Sincerely yours,

The Safety of Your Home Is Measured by the Safety of Your Town

Your own carefulness in safeguarding home, factory, store or other property against fire is a solemn duty, but it is not enough.

No matter how careful you may be, a bad condition in adjacent or even distant property may undo all your own efforts. Cities must be made safer. It is a civic as well as a personal obligation.

Here is where the Stock Fire Insurance companies — constituting the National Board of Fire Underwriters—have rendered a conspicuous service. Their skilled engineers work unceasingly to make American cities safer.

Surveying American Cities

These engineers have systematically surveyed more than 400 cities, many of them several times. The improvements in water supply, fire alarm systems, fire departments and safety ordinances made by municipalities upon the recommendations of these engineers have been of great public benefit and a decided factor in the consistent rate reduction shown by Stock Fire Insurance.

Modern Scientific Developments

New hazards, growing out of new inventions and processes, receive prompt engineering treatment. Fortified with far-reaching laboratory tests of materials and devices, Stock Fire Insurance engineers are always alert—up-to-the-minute—to provide the necessary measures and precautions.

This service is free to all cities, as well as to individual property owners, architects, contractors and builders through the National Board or the territorial board or bureau of the Stock Fire Insurance Companies. Your own insurance agent or broker can give you information regarding this service. Inquiries are invited.

GOVERNMENT RESTS IN BLACKMER CASE

U. S. to Try to Prove Guilt Before Considering Possible Mitigation.

HEARING REOPENS TODAY

At the conclusion of the first day of argument on pleas in the Harry M. Blackmer contempt cases yesterday the Government rested and prepared to prove guilt of the accused before considering possible mitigation. The arguments began yesterday morning at 10 o'clock in District Supreme Court and continued until 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon with but a brief recess for lunch. The case will reopen at 10:45 o'clock this morning.

The afternoon session of the court was featured by testimony of Assistant Secretary of State Wilbur J. Carr and attempts of Defense Counsel George Gordon Battle, of New York, to show that when the Government seized $100,000 worth of Blackmer's bonds in the second contempt case it abandoned its seizure under the first contempt case.

Two Counts Alleged.

Blackmer is charged with contempt on two counts, both resulting from his failure to respond to subpenas to appear as a witness in the trials of Harry F. Sinclair and Albert B. Fall.

Battle during the morning attacked the constitutionality of the Walsh act of 1926, which provides for service of summons upon Americans residing in foreign countries and for the forfeiture of $100,000 bonds if the person summoned fails to appear. Battle pointed out that the Walsh act was passed at the time the Government was seeking through civilian action to cancel Harry F. Sinclair's Wyoming oil leases, and argued that the purpose of the act was to force attendance of witnesses in civil actions.

Justice Siddons interrupted Blackmer's counsel to inquire if he did not consider the issue one of allegiance more than of law.

Appeal Right Maintained.

Battle replied: "The discussion of allegiance in its abstract sense would be a most interesting one here, but no amount of allegiance can deprive this defendant of the right to question the legality of this court's action in attempting to go beyond its jurisdiction to compel him to present himself as a witness."

In his pleading, filed several days ago, Blackmer through his counsel, contended that service made on him in Paris by American consuls was illegal, and asserted that if he had appeared as a witness in the first Fall-Sinclair trial his testimony would have been of no comparative worth as a mistrial was declared and that if he had appeared on April 2, 1928, as a witness in the second trial he would not have been able to testify as the trial was continued until April 9.

During the afternoon Special Prosecutor Roberts put Assistant Secretary of State Carr on the stand, and from official records of the State Department proved that George Orr, one of the men who served Blackmer with subpenas in Paris, was an American consul.

Peace Symbol Invades Senate in Tariff Row

While the tariff war was raging in the Senate yesterday a lone dove, symbolic of peace, wandered into the chamber and fluttered above the heads of the contending forces. After circling the chamber several times the bird of peace alighted just in front of one of the newspapermen in the press gallery who was trying to keep up with the acrimonious debate, blue Monday to the contrary notwithstanding. The startled writer jumped and then made a frantic grab which cost the pigeon one large tail feather. The bird retreated to a perch over one of the gallery doors, where it remained until the session ended.

How the dove got into the Senate chamber is a matter of mystery. The new ventilating system makes it necessary to keep all doors and windows closed at all times. There is talk of a Senate investigation.

BORAH LAUNCHES ATTACK ON TARIFF

farmer has today," he said, mentioning paved roads, automobiles, radios and electric light.

Answering a contention of Borah that the proposed increase of one cent in the 2½ cents a pound duty on casein, a product of skimmed milk, would not help the farmer but produce only added revenue to the Government, Reed said the proposed levy amounted to four times the difference in cost of production in the United States and Argentina. He added that he would favor a higher duty if he thought the farmer would get a higher price for the product.

He was supported in his statement as it related to production costs, by Senator Walsh (Democrat), Massachusetts, but Senator Howell (Republican), Nebraska said the price of skimmed milk in Argentina had not been taken into account in computing these costs.

Senator Reed also took issue with assertions of Borah pertaining to pig iron and leather rates. The Idahoan cited the proposed duties of 20 per cent on shoes and 10 per cnet on hides, both now on the free list, as an example of the American manufacturer's "insatiable appetite" for higher tariffs, while his Pennsylvania opponent said seventeen tanneries had closed down in the last eighteen months with great unemployment resulting.

Reed called attention to increases in imports of women's shoes and said he would welcome any definition in the bill that would exempt men's shoes from the proposed 20 per cent duty. The latter were on an export basis and would receive no benefit from the tariff, he added, explaining that the duty was aimed solely at women's types.

Reed said the proposed rate of $1.50 a ton on pig iron represented an increase that would equalize but one-fifth the difference in cost of production between this and foreign nations.

In the little time devoted today to consideration of the tariff bill for amendment, the Senate reversed an action of Saturday. Approval of an amendment eliminating the House provision making the owner of a vessel as well as the master subject to a penalty of $25 an ounce for all opium found unmanifested on a ship was withdrawn. The item will be taken up later.

Three years of intensive effort—the co-operation of 3,500 of the world's foremost authorities—the expenditure of over $2,000,000 before a single volume was printed—these are merely a few high lights in the preparation of the new Fourteenth Edition.

The Last Word in Encyclopaedia Perfection

The new Britannica immediately takes its place as the one pre-eminent American work of reference—the last word in encyclopaedia perfection.

Never has there been assembled together in one enterprise such a wealth of learning as is represented by the 3,500 builders of this great temple of knowledge. All the universities, all the learned professions, all the great industries, all the pastimes have contributed to the mighty sum.

Knowledge For All

It is a law library for the lawyer, a medical digest for the doctor, a universal history for the historian, a commercial university for the business man—and a compendium of all the arts and sciences for the average reader.

Here is "the cosmos between covers." The whole whirling universe is brought within your grasp, obedient to your hand.

Nothing is too profound to baffle it, and nothing too familiar to escape its informing touch. And on every subject it speaks with the same finality and authority.

Remember—this is a new work. Only a small amount of text that could not be improved in any way has been retained from previous editions.

All the World's Treasures of Art and Illustration

Among the many new features that will astonish and delight everyone who turns these pages is the wealth and beauty of the illustrations. This feature alone marks a tremendous advance. All the world's treasures of art and photography have been laid under tribute to adorn and illuminate the text.

"The most exciting book of 1929," asserts a leading critic, and the whole world is echoing that verdict.

This is a Britannica year! Here is your opportunity to join the thousands who will buy this new edition, now, while it is new—fresh from the presses. You owe it to yourself to learn further details regarding this magnificent series of volumes.

NAVAL NEGOTIATIONS.

The Paris press gives preliminary warnings of French opposition to the proposed naval conference. The leading newspapers express the fear that if France should enter the conference she would be confronted with a hard-and-fast formula agreed upon by the British and American governments, attempting to fix the limit of French naval power and setting forth what kind of vessels she would be permitted to build. It is suggested that France's opposition to this formula might break up the conference and subject France to the charge of blocking world limitation of navies.

The Temps, the most influential of French journals, goes so far as to express anxiety over what seem to be plans to create an Anglo-American entente, a sort of dual world power that would attempt to coerce other nations. The Temps thinks, however, that Ramsay MacDonald might deceive himself if he should have the idea of making Great Britain and the United States equal partners in an entente "capable of imposing directives from London and Washington in all domains," because "Americans have no intention of binding themselves for the future to any power, and they have no conception of political cooperation in world affairs other than under the form of a complete subordination to the wishes of the United States." Therefore, the Temps advises Mr. MacDonald against being caught in an American trap.

Obviously the effort of the British government to cultivate especially close relations with the United States arouses suspicion in Europe as to the nature of the proposals that France and others will be asked to consider in a naval conference. No doubt American diplomatic representatives have earnestly endeavored to reassure France and Italy that the United States does not intend to share with Britain in formulating a "take-it-or-leave-it" program affecting European naval power. Nevertheless, the reports that the Anglo-American conversations have resulted in an understanding that submarines should be abolished, if possible, or at any rate severely limited, can not but induce France and Italy to exercise extreme circumspection before they agree to enter the proposed conference.

It is quite possible that conversations must now be held with France and Italy, going deeply into the entire naval situation as it is proposed to be changed by an Anglo-American understanding.

In some quarters it is suggested that a naval conference should be held even if France and Italy should refuse to participate. There does not seem to be much virtue in this suggestion, for the reason that Great Britain can not safely agree to immediate or early reduction of naval power unless France and Italy enter into an agreement regarding the size and character of their fleets. The question of naval equality with America is only one of Britain's problems, and its settlement is contingent upon an agreement covering the Mediterranean.

An apparently authentic report from London states that Great Britain requires 50 cruisers, while the United States requires 36. The British cruiser strength would consist of 15 vessels with 8-inch guns, and 35 vessels with 6-inch guns, with a total tonnage of 339,000 for both classes. The American program, according to the London dispatch, provides for 21 cruisers carrying 8-inch guns and 15 6-inch-gun cruisers, with a total tonnage of 315,000. But it is added that "Great Britain suggests that the United States tonnage should be 300,000."

Although strong efforts are being made to minimize the importance of this deadlock, it is a deadlock nevertheless; and unless a better understanding can be reached it would be wise to postpone the proposed conference. As Ambassador Dawes said at the beginning,

The one unforgivable sin is to go into a conference unprepared."

GOVERNMENT GETS FREE WATER.

Engineer Commissioner Ladue is investigating the Water Department. It has been charged that gross inefficiency permeates the administration of that important branch of the local government; that the "leakage" between reservoirs and points of delivery is excessive; that fully one-fifth of the meters in use are faulty and that, consequently, the increase in rates demanded by the department is not justified. These are the charges that the Commissioners will investigate.

There is one matter in connection with water that the Commissioners are powerless to rectify. It arises in the dual nature of Washington—at once municipality and seat of Government. The situation, in brief, is as follows: The Government made substantial contribution, in money and in the services of the Army Engineering Corps, to the construction of the water system, in return for which it obtains free water in perpetuity. While Washington does not and should not object to repaying the Government for the contributions it made in developing the system, it is grossly unfair that the taxpayers should be burdened with furnishing free water perpetually to Government departments. Had the District constructed the system even with borrowed money, the capital investment would have been amortized in due time and, theoretically at least, reduced water rates would have been made possible. Under the existing arrangement the cost of the original development, so far as taxpayers are concerned, will never be met.

In fairness to local taxpayers and water users the Government should be charged for the water it consumes at a rate equal to that charged any other industrial consumer. The cost of the development to the Government should be established (it has never been fixed) and a corresponding credit should be allowed. Under such an arrangement the District would obtain for the water it furnishes the Government a return that would at least bolster the revenues of the water department. Ultimately the system would be paid for and the way cleared for charging the Government the full rate for the water it consumes. As it is now, the cost of furnishing water to the Government is distributed among local water users. Here is a matter that should be presented to Congress for immediate action.

CAMPAIGN AGAINST NOISE.

Although the radio comes in for major criticism as a noise-maker and peace-disturber, it is by no means the only offender in this regard. Modern civilization is essentially noise-producing; humankind today dwells in the midst of cacaphony that would have sent its ancestors to insane asylums. There is reason to believe that the noise of modern civilization has a deleterious effect on personal well-being, although positive evidence to this effect is lacking. Nevertheless, here and there antinoise bodies are springing up, basing their attack against noise on the ground that it is harmful to health.

Dr. Shirley S. Wynne, health commissioner of New York City, says that the consensus of belief is that noise does wear on the nerves. The three most frequent causes of complaint, he adds, are pneumatic riveters, steam shovels and radio loud speakers, to which he adds as "almost as bad," automobile horns. Dr. Wynne's selection of "worst offenders" is verified by Dr. E. E. Free, consulting engineer, who has developed an instrument for the measuring of noise. Dr. Free finds that the most noise is produced by motor trucks and other automobiles, closely followed by street cars, but he adds that radios and riveting machines are the most irritating, largely because the human ear has not yet been trained to ignore them. His most interesting contention is that the disagreeable noises would be the easiest to eliminate.

For the moment the campaign against noises in New York is concentrated against the radio. Under the leadership of Robert Ferrari, attorney, there has been organized an antinoise society which, early in the week, addressed a petition to the Department of Health asking for an addition to the sanitary code designed to abate radio noise. "The radio loud-speaker nuisance," says the society, "has caused many breakdowns. It is imperative that legislation be enacted to deal with the nuisance." To this end, the society suggests an amendment to the sanitary code prohibiting occupants or owners of buildings from using "any mechanical device designed for the reproduction, amplification or intensification of music, the human voice or other sounds so that it shall disturb the quiet or repose of any person to the detriment of the life or health of that person."

The progress of the New York campaign against noise will be watched with interest. Every city has its quota of Dr. J. Woodrow Eliots, who recently addressed a letter to The Post upholding his right to use a radio when and as he saw fit, without the slightest regard for others. If the New York campaign is successful it will be copied widely, for it is evident that the public has nearly reached the limit of patience with respect to noise-makers.

SAVE OLD IRONSIDES.

Admiral Philip Andrews, commandant of the Boston Navy Yard, where "Old Ironsides" is undergoing repairs and reconditioning, makes a stirring appeal for contributions which will make possible the work of restoring the historic old frigate to a seaworthy condition. The estimated cost of the complete restoration was $660,000. School children to the number of 15,000,000 contributed their pennies, and these mites, together with the proceeds of sales of pictures of the vessel and some larger contributions from patriotic societies and individuals, have swelled the fund to approximately $460,000, leaving $200,000 still to be raised with which to pay for the remainder of the work.

It is inconceivable that Admiral Andrews' appeal will fail to open the purses of enough Americans to assure return to the seas of the greatest ship in American history. The Constitution is destined again to "sail the salt seas," just as she was in the days of her glory. Even the old-fashioned "twenty-four-pounders" will frown through her portholes. It is the intention of the Navy Department to send her on a voyage such as that which was common in the life of the windjammers of the early years of the last century. According to the program laid out "Old Ironsides" will plow the waves for at least three years, visiting all the ports of the country, even those of the Great Lakes, before being finally anchored in some haven yet to be chosen, to become the sea-shrine for future generations.

"He who contributes to the fund," says the Boston Transcript, "will not only be supporting an enterprise that should appeal to every patriotic American, but he will also be doing his bit in giving a square deal to the school children who, in the first instance, coming forward with their pennies, made the restoration possible."

A PROBE OF CHAIN STORES?

Responding to an invitation to express its views upon the question of the modification of the "consent decree" for which the Chicago packers have petitioned the Supreme Court of the District, the National Cooperative Milk Producers Federation has submitted to the Secretary of Agriculture a statement. The federation suggests that final action upon the petition be deferred until such time as the Government, through the Department of Agriculture, or some other competent authority, shall have had the opportunity to investigate the legal status of all other Nation-wide distributing agencies, in order to determine whether or not "these large and ever growing business concerns promote the public good."

If such an investigation should reveal that the public good is fostered and promoted by these business combinations, usually designated as "chain stores," then, in the opinion of the milk producers, "their operations should be made clearly lawful and all necessary judicial and legislative action taken to that end."

The fact that the packers are at great disadvantage in the distribution of their products by the restrictions of the "consent decree" is not in itself, according to the dairymen, a sufficient reason for setting aside the decree. "It is a matter of common knowledge," continues the statement, "that since the entry of the consent decree, and particularly within the past five years, there have appeared a few, and but a few, gigantic business combinations that to a material extent, are monopolizing the business of collecting, processing and distributing the people's food. These concerns are still rapidly expanding. This control of food is largely brought about by the ownership of marketing facilities beginning at the point of origin of the food and continuing through to the consumer's table. To modify or vacate such consent decree would permit the following of like practices by the two principal defendants now seeking a modification."

If the activities of these gigantic corporations are within the law, and in the interest of the public, then it would appear that the privilege of meeting their competition should be extended to the packers. On the other hand, it is urged that if it be found that "their business practices are prejudicial to the public interests, then appropriate judicial and legislative action should be taken" to restrain such activities.

Inasmuch as it is only through governmental agencies that the facts can be brought to light, the milk producers urge that action by the courts on the petition for modification be deferred until such time as the proposed inquiry can be completed.

PHYSICAL DEFECTS OF SCHOOL CHILDREN

By W. C. FOWLER, M. D., Health Officer, District of Columbia, for the Gorgas Memorial Institute.

Of 4,701 kindergarten and first-grade pupils examined by school medical inspectors in the District of Columbia public schools during the year 1927-8, 91.1 per cent were found to have physical defects, with an average of 2.3 defects per pupil.

The outstanding defects were: Teeth, 61 per cent; tonsils, 45.6; enlarged glands, 25.1; nutrition, 23.3; defective nasal breathing, 16.5; vision, 10.8; anemia, 9.9; nasal catarrh, 6.8; skin, 4.7; orthopedic, 3.8; nervous system, 3.8; pulmonary, 3.5; speech, 2.5; hearing, 1.9; cardiac, 1.9; crossed eyes, 1.0; hernia, .9, and discharging ear, .5.

It is evident from the above that the majority of children entering school are already seriously handicapped by physical defects urgently in need of correction and that they are preventable.

The examination of pupils in the elementary schools discloses that the defects develop and continue and that additional ones are acquired, many of them unknown to the parents.

Failure to detect and to correct these defects engenders heavy penalties. For instance, slight dental caries rapidly progress to complete destruction and loss, or to condition potentially capable of far-reaching extension of disease. Defective hearing and vision may be progressive and may, in addition, exert an unfavorable influence upon the nervous system and general health. Infected tonsils may be a source of extension of disease to ears, heart, kidneys, central nervous system and elsewhere.

Since the majority of parents are not specially trained in child guidance, child hygiene, dietetics and in the diagnosis and treatment of disease, arrangements should be made by them with the family physician and dentist to make periodic physical examinations of their children.

The fact must be realized that the defects of teeth, eyes, ears, nose, throat, heart, intestinal tract, nervous system and other organs do frequently and constantly occur among children from birth and need expert attention at the earliest possible moment.

A semiannual physical examination beginning in infancy will prevent many handicaps in growth and development and detect and correct defects at a period when they are more easily eradicated and cause less serious damage.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

A COW TALKS.

"Ah," said the cow in the field to me!
"It's little I care what the weather be.
You are a human, and you must fret
Getting your feet or your garments wet.
But all of the troubles on earth I know
Are winter covers the fields with snow,
And when comes summer the flies bite so.

"But you are a human, and you are wise
And you can escape from the pesky flies,
But sitting safe in your cool retreat
You are terribly grieved by the price of wheat.
You come at night from the busy town,
Sick at heart because stocks are down;
And you're mad if your coffee's a muddy brown.

"You can not sleep on your bed at night,
Everything's wrong and nothing is right.
When you go for a ride it rouses your ire
If you have to get out and change a tire.
I watched you playing at golf today
And saw you flinging your clubs away.
You're not even happy when you're at play.

"You've always something to lose or gain,
But I'm just a cow, and so I remain
Contentedly chewing my cud out here
With nothing to worry about or fear."
"That the life of a cow," I then replied,
"Is free from trouble can't be denied.
But you can have it. I'm satisfied!"

If He Is Proud of His Table Manners, They Were Acquired Recently.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

SOPHISTICATION is like knowledge. No man can have all of it, and to be proud of the little he has is to confess that he is content with less than perfection. He is like a man happy in the possession of two crooked legs because some men have only one.

The sophisticate is the opposite of the greenhorn.

He does not make blunders of etiquette. He knows and practices the customs of civilized people. He is at ease because he knows the right thing to do.

But customs differ in different lands, and no man can be completely sophisticated unless he has lived among every people and learned their ways.

To do in Rome as the Romans do is to be sophisticated in Rome, but to do the same things in Carthage is to seem an outlander and a greenhorn.

The American metropolitan proud of his sophistication might amuse Londoners by his ignorance of British ways, and if he knew the customs of England and the Continent, he still might prove himself a greenhorn by failing to remove his shoes when granted an audience with the mikado.

The yokel adventuring in a city for the first time comes to grief in a revolving door, narrowly misses being run down by a street car, refuses to surrender his hat to the check girl and sleeps in a glare of light because he doesn't know how to operate the wall switch.

But the city man who laughs at him goes adventuring in the country and picks a bouquet of poison ivy. He gets lost in the woods or fails to heed a warning rattle among the pine needles or offends the natives by refusing to eat chicken with his fingers.

No man can know it all. No man can feel at ease in every company. No man is a complete sophisticate until he can eat blubber with the eskimo, handle spaghetti as adroitly as the Italian and chopsticks as gracefully as a Chinese, relish boiled milk offered in a smoke-begrimed shell by an African savage, mount a camel, exchange small talk with kings and hoboes, and feel at ease in church or bar room.

Which is to say that the ordinary, provincial, untraveled, inexperienced American who cultivates a world-weary, bored air of cynical sophistication as soon as he learns to feel at ease in a dinner coat is a spectacle that may amuse the gods but one that gives sensible people a pain in the neck.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Is Mr. McCarthy the Prize Winner? During 50 Years He Was Never Late and for 32 Years Never Missed a Day.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In your issue of Sunday you published an article headed "Federal Employee Sets Three Marks," in which Ralph Holtzman, 304 Bryant street northeast, lay claim to three unusual records which he challenges any one to equal.

He states that on September 1, 1929, he completed 17 years' service in the Patent Office, during which he was never late to work or missed a day on account of sickness. He also submits a long Sunday School attendance.

While I can't approach Mr. Holtzman's Sunday School record, I would like to submit the following office record:

I was appointed a substitute clerk in the Boston Post Office, on June 10, 1880; a regular clerk on October 1, 1880; resigned December 12, 1886, to accept an appointment as clerk in the War Department, Washington, D. C., December 13, 1886; was transferred to the Sixth Auditor's Office, May 28, 1894, where I remained until June 1, 1921, when office was consolidated with General Accounting Office, where I still remain.

During this long period, which will be 50 years next June, I was never late in any of these offices, and for 32 years I have never missed a day for sickness.

If you will please publish this letter in answer to Mr. Holtzman's challenge, you will greatly oblige.

Gullible Business Men Prey of Lobbyists—$1,000 for a Public Document.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Many readers must marvel that captains of industry should be gulled by lobbyists. But their surprise would be boundless did they realize the extent of such operations carried on here in Washington. Oldtimers around the Capitol delight in relating the story of an important New York business man who came to Washington seeking certain Government data. He soon fell into the net of a "legislative counselor," of whom the number is legion hanging around the hotel corridors. This "counselor" knew that the information sought by the visitor was embodied in a public document readily obtainable, gratis, in the House document room. With a great display of mystery the client was informed that the information could be obtained, but not without great difficulty. Two days later, with the aid of a public stenographer, the public document had been carefully typed, backed and decorated with an appropriate ribbon. The precious scroll was then delivered to the seeker after information and the fee demanded eagerly paid. It was only $1,000!

Harvest Moon Transforms the World Into Beauty.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: How bright and beautiful shines the harvest moon! How white and weird upon vale and hill! The suns of night fade in her presence. Landscapes seem as though fairy lands, veiled with a silvery sheen. Above the darkness of some pine-fringed knoll, the bright beautiful harvest moon rises. There she gleams like a firmamental pearl.

The harvest moon of 1929! A solar satellite which may shine as far away as 253,000 miles, as near as 222,000 miles. Between these distances from our earth there is her mean distance, 239,000 miles. A terrestrial satellite which is only one forty-ninth as large as its earth. It revolves around our earth with a velocity of 2,287 miles an hour, turning only one face in our direction, her face uneclipsed during the year 1929.

Visitor Wants More Park Benches.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have been a visitor in your marvelous city for the past two months and have visited nearly every section of it, being a great lover of nature. I am sorely disappointed regarding your parks. Some are almost entirely devoid of grass and many seemed filled with rubbish and debris. Some have no benches at all and some very few.

When we older people stroll it is pleasant at times to meet a friendly bench. In my native State, Georgia, the city of Savannah is often called the "city beautiful," perhaps due to the efficient park and tree commissioner. Have you no park and tree commissioners?

CHARLES A. DE BRUX.

A DIVIDED PARTY.

It does not seem as though believers in the doctrine of tariff for revenue only could, as far as that belief is concerned, have any considerable interest in the Democratic party. At the Houston convention last year the party in its platform repudiated it. Its candidate, Al Smith, declared against any general tariff revision and obtained pledges against such a policy from enough Democratic members of Congress as to make it certain that it would not be adopted, states the Indianapolis News. And now we have the statement of Senator Walsh, of Massachusetts, supposed to be a Democrat, in which he pleads for protection for his constituents, a statement that might have been written by Dingley, Fordney or the late President McKinley himself.

Much is said of the divisions in the Republican party and, of course, they do exist. They are certainly no more serious than, if as serious as, those in the ranks of the Democratic party. Many of the Southern Democrats are known to have drifted far from the old faith. To talk of Democratic unity—that is, a unity based on principle and identity of beliefs—is to talk foolishly. If there is more Republican unity—as there seems to be—it is to be attributed to the better discipline that prevails in the organization.

EVENTS OF INTEREST IN SOCIETY CIRCLES OF CAPITAL

Capital Is Seen Soon as Suburb Of Georgetown

More and More Notables Making Their Home in Old Town.

By JEAN ELIOT.

IN the days when the Capital was first established at Washington, it was, from society's point of view, a suburb of the flourishing little city of Georgetown. Perhaps it will be again—to judge from the continuous flow of fashionable folk into the charming and quiet backwaters of the old town.

Ever since the new Q Street Bridge was opened there has been a constant migration of distinguished Washingtonians to Georgetown, and this autmn a dozen others have been added to the group. Representative Ruth Hanna McCormick has moved her lares and penates from the house belonging to Mr. and Mrs. Warren Delano Robbins—also in Georgetown—which she has rented for several years, into her new home in Thirty-first street. Mrs. Borden Harriman has her eye on a charming old house to replace the residence in F street, which she has just sold, and it is expected that the deeds will be signed when she returns from Newport. And Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt is the latest to join the migration, having purchased the quaint three-story brick mansion at 3018 Dumbarton avenue, which is next door to the home of Senator Millard Tydings, of Maryland.

Presumably, when Mrs. Willebrandt moves, she will be accompanied by Dr. Louise Stanley and Miss Annabelle Matthews, for the three women have had a joint menage for several years, occupying an engaging little house, 3303 Eighteenth street, on the Mount Pleasant Hill. The Dumbarton avenue house is to be restored and redecorated before Mrs. Willebrandt moves in.

Another recruit to Georgetown residents will be Miss Frances Benjamin Johnston. She has purchased an old-fashioned house in P street, which, if she adheres to her original plans, is to be remodeled into studio apartments, each with a garden entrance, the owner retaining one for her own use. Miss Johnston, who has been living at the Arts Club, is widely known for her rare collection of photographs of famous gardens in this country and others, having traveled half round the world with a camera in pursuit of garden pictures. As a young girl she took up the art of portrait photography, and she has photographed presidents, princes and potentates, with many others as interesting if not as important. More recently she has specialized in garden pictures, but her collection of portraits has considerable historical interest. Here's hoping she can be persuaded to exhibit them some day.

With so many people buying houses in Georgetown, somebody must be selling them. But it isn't often, apparently, that anybody moves out who has once moved in. However, Mme. Elinor Glyn's house in P street, near Thirty-second street, is for sale. The red-haired author of "Three Weeks" and other thrillers bought this house two years or so ago, has spent a lot of time and money on restoring it and has been planning ever since to make her permanent home in Washington, although she has never yet spent more than a few days at a time in her house. Now, it develops, that her mother is ill and that she expects to be detained indefinitely in Europe, so she has decided to put the house on the market.

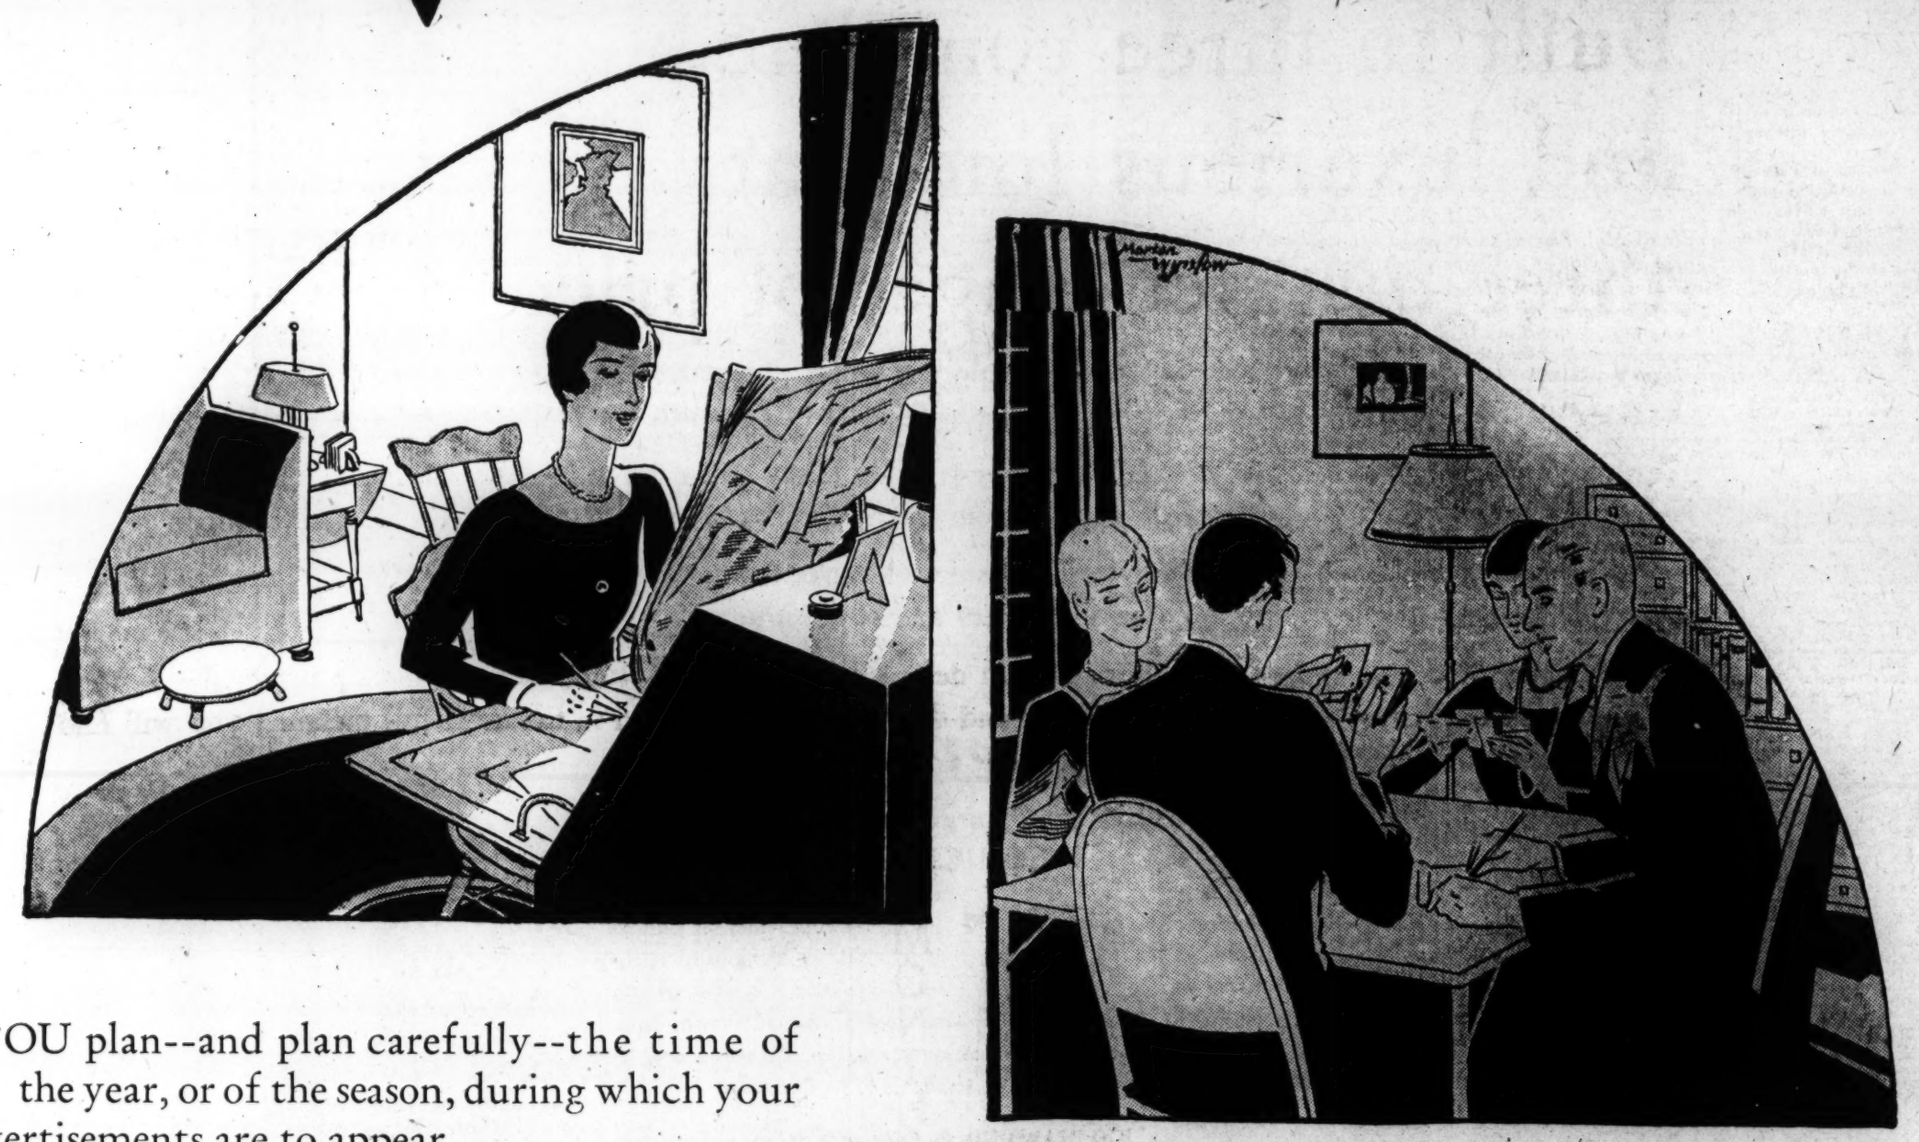
Morning minutes are Vita-minutes



YOU plan--and plan carefully--the time of the year, or of the season, during which your advertisements are to appear.

You can profit by going further with that wise thinking--by also considering the time of day.

Put your advertisements before your readers at the most profitable time of day and you'll make another addition to your productiveness.

The "most profitable time of day" being, of course, the morning hours when minds are freshest, most interested, most responsive to anything that's read. Hasn't that, obviously, a lot to do with it?

The Morning Post is read in hours that are made of Vita-Minutes--minutes that have a special quality of their own, not to be replaced later in the day. Morning minds, fresh from a night's rest, read with a grasp, a quickness, an alertness, a responsiveness, which is the advertiser's much-sought opportunity. Buying-decisions are made when people are thinking of going to market--so morning buying-decisions get action.

THE FIRST THING IN THE MORNING

Don't forget Vita-Minutes as an important time-element in advertising. Don't forget that The Post, reaching thousands of families every morning, is the preferred newspaper in the homes of people who do most of the buying in Washington stores.

The Post coverage, Post influence, and Post circulation, add the important business fact that The Post is sought and read during the hours that are made of Vita-Minutes.

The Washington Post.

THE New PACKARD EIGHTS

Built in three complete and luxurious lines - at three distinct ranges of price

The new series Packard Straight Eights are outstandingly more advanced, more beautiful, more comfortable and convenient than any Packard cars in history. They embody all the engineering improvements and the enriched luxury which the world naturally expects from Packard.

Three complete lines of cars are included in the new series. They cover the entire fine car field—and dominate it! In value they range from the costliest individual custom creation to the lowest figure at which a truly fine car can be sold.

In excellence of engineering and expert craftsmanship all Packard cars are alike. But they differ in size, power and degree of individuality available in color, upholstery and appointments.

Whether you desire the supreme luxury of custom designed coach work—fitted, trimmed and upholstered according to your personal tastes—or the comfort, beauty and distinction of a Packard in the usual full measure, you will find among the new series Packard Eights a car to meet your exact requirements.

THE DE LUXE EIGHT

The Packard Eight De Luxe with its 145½-inch wheelbase is the largest, roomiest and most perfectly appointed car which Packard has ever produced. It is practically an individual custom creation, for fittings, appointments, and upholstery—as well as colors and trim—are usually the individual specifications of the purchasers.

The Packard Eight De Luxe literally provides the supreme degree of luxury in motor car transportation. Its size, its power and speed, its divan-like comfort and ease of control are luxuries in themselves—while the very satisfaction of owning and riding in the world's finest automobile is perhaps the greatest luxury of all.

Prices at the factory range from $4585 for the Roadster to $5350 for the Seven-Passenger Sedan Limousine. The finest masterpieces of the world's most famous individual custom-body builders are also available to order at prices up to $10,000.

THE CUSTOM EIGHT

For those who desire the power and speed of the De Luxe engine, Packard also provides the Custom Eight. Built on a chassis of 140½-inch wheelbase, it is powered with the same motor—the famous Packard Straight Eight, with its nine-bearing crankshaft, improved and developed to new standards of performance.

The Packard Custom Eight, with its new and enriched fittings and upholstery, its greater refinement of detail, offers today luxury far beyond that of any famous Packard of the past. Save for the Packard De Luxe Eight, it is truly the world's finest motor car—in brilliance of performance, in beauty and distinction of appearance.

Prices at the factory range from $3190 for the Roadster to $3885 for the Seven-Passenger Sedan Limousine. A wide choice in color and upholstery is available for any of the eleven beautiful body types.

THE STANDARD EIGHT

The Packard Standard Eight is a smaller edition of the larger and costlier Packard cars. It is provided for those who desire the luxury and distinction of Packard transportation in cars of modified wheelbase and at more moderate price.

Eleven distinguished models are available in the Standard Eight line—each one a Packard through and through, powerful, smooth and fleet.

Like the De Luxe and Custom Eights the new Standard Eight cars offer important engineering advances and refinements of detail. Nothing to provide for the comfort and convenience of owners has been omitted from these new cars. It is literally true that Packard engineers can think of nothing to make these Packard cars more complete.

Prices of the Packard Standard Eight at the factory, including a wide choice of colors, range from $2375 for the Five-Passenger Sedan of 127½-inch wheelbase to $2775 for the Seven-Passenger Sedan Limousine with wheelbase of 134½ inches.

All new series Packard Eight cars include the new, inside, adjustable sun visors, adjustable driver's seat and steering gear, newly perfected shatter-proof glass, dash board lockers and new beauties of fixtures and upholstery. All provide the improved powerplant with its new four-speed transmission and still further refined straight-eight engine.

We cordially invite you to come and see the new series Packards—to drive the model of your choice. Then let us show you, with pencil and paper, how you can enjoy the luxury and distinction of Packard transportation—very likely at no greater expense than you are paying for your present motoring.

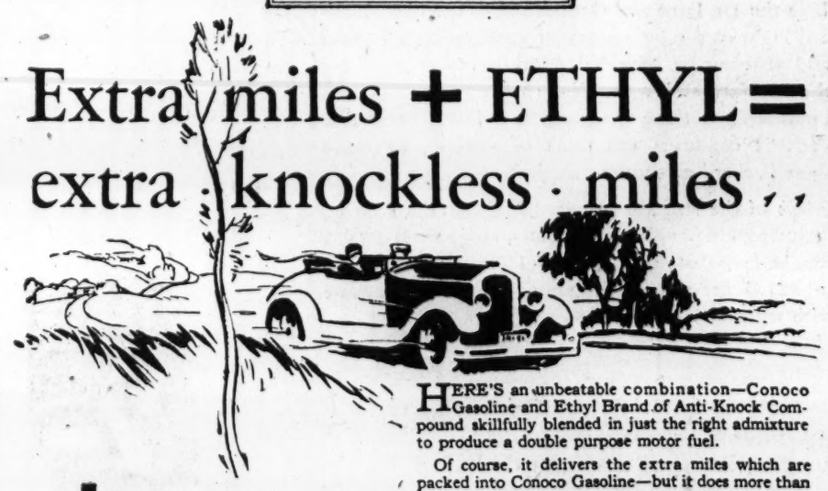
Extra miles + ETHYL = extra knockless miles



HERE'S an unbeatable combination—Conoco Gasoline and Ethyl Brand of Anti-Knock Compound skillfully blended in just the right admixture to produce a double purpose motor fuel.

Of course, it delivers the extra miles which are packed into Conoco Gasoline—but it does more than that. With Ethyl added it assures smooth, knockless performance at all speeds. Extra Knockless Miles!

Throttle down to a dog trot—even on a hill—and you glide smoothly along without a jerk, without a knock, without a shift.

Conoco Ethyl gets the best from any motor—and it demonstrates its economy by eliminating the wear and tear caused by knocking when ordinary gasoline is used.

But remember all Ethyl Gasoline is not Conoco Ethyl. If you really want extra knockless miles, fill only at the sign of the Conoco Red Triangle. You'll find that sign prominently displayed by the better service stations and dealers

Behind the Screens

With NELSON B. BELL

HARDLY had I left the heat of one of Washington's sultriest August days behind me on what Mr. Reed still professes to believe was a junket to Hains Point, when I encountered a motion-picture executive whose affiliations are such that I knew immediately what he meant when he declared with virtualy no solicitation: "Well, it's in the bag!"

He refererd, of course, to the much-discussed merger of Paramount-Famous-Lasky and Warner Bros. interests.

This has been steaming for many, many weeks and while, as yet, no official announcement of the outcome of the negotiations has been made, it is accepted as a certainty in the industry that the consolidation is to all intents and purposes an accomplished fact and that the combined holdings when finally divulged will represent some such indifferent sum as an invested capital of $600,000,000!

All of the assets of both corporations have been tossed into the jackpot—producing units, studios, theater properties, everything. This new $600,000,000 holding corporation when it finally chooses to disclose its far-reaching ramifications will be found to embrace about 60 per cent of the entire motion-picture business. The basis for the exchange of stock in the present corporations for that of the new concern is said to have been two shares of the holding corporation for one of Paramount and one and one-half shares for each one of the Warner Bros.

The genius of organization quietly back of this tremendous development is modest, retiring, almost inarticulate Adolph Zukor. Those in the know now insist that it was he who engineered, in an unobtrusive and diffident way, the acquisition of First National by the Stanley Co. and the subsequent absorption of them both by the Warners—all with this final overwhelming coup in prospect.

A very dumb oyster, this diminutive Hungarian immigrant — very dumb!

Vacations are not all velvet, at that.

Awaiting me upon my return to the desk were two communications. It was a disappointment not to have received sooner. One from Eddie Sherwood, formerly a vaudeville associate of Dolly Connelly and Percy Wenrich, later a Washington film exchange manager and now proprietor of "Sherry's," the swankiest supper club in Baltimore, was intended to remind me to attend the season's opening last Thursday night; the other a note from your old friend Wesley Eddy, behesting me to drop in on him at Loew's King Theater in Brooklyn, prior to my resumption of the yoke. He and Colby Harriman, it seems, were deep in the throes of making all well for opening night September 7, when the letter was written.

His Washington friends will probably be interested in one line of his note, which I shall quote:

"While in a measure I'm thrilled at this opening, nevertheless a return to good old Washington would be more to my liking."

Although the current bills in the cinemagogues, so far as I have been able to estimate them hurriedly from a greater distance than is my wont, appear to maintain a high level of entertainment value, there are two cans of celluloid in the offing for the merits of which I can more authentically vouch. One is "The Gold Diggers of Broadway," impending at the Metropolitan; the other, "Salute," coming into the Fox.

"The Gold Diggers of Broadway," I may say from personal observation on other screens, is an audience riot—and for various reasons. The Warner Brothers have fashioned a sure-fire laughing hit from the Avery Hopwood comedy. "The Gold Diggers," originally produced by Belasco as a starring vehicle for Ina Claire. Stage spectacle, music and songs have been added to the original script, with a vast enhancement of its appeal to the risibilities, the entire picture has been shot in technicolor and the casting of the major roles has been attended to with extraordinary finesse.

If this eight or nine reel subject did nothing else, it would be distinctly notable and eminently worth while as the medium of introducing a robust and rowdy comedienne to the screen in the person of Winnie Lightner, long a familiar figure in vaudeville. Mr. White's "Scandals" and others of the stage's more boisterous gaucheries. In the role created by Jobyna Howland, Miss Lightner is nothing less than a panic—aided and abetted in faultless fashion by Albert Gran, one of the best of our character actors. Conway Tearle comes back to the races in the role created by Bruce McRae, and Ann Pennington is among those present, although in a part that amounts to little more than a "bit." Nancy Welford is in the Ina Claire part.

If you must know some of the others, there are William Bakewell, Gertrude Short, Nick Lucas, Lilyan Tashman—in the role she created in the Broadway stage production—Neeley Edwards, Julia Swayne Gordon, Lee Moran, Armand Kaliz, Helen Foster and a few hundred others. A real smash hit, with at least two lilting songs that can't miss—"Tip Toe Through the Tulips" and "Painting the Clouds With Sunshine."

"Salute" is another of the service pictures that trample all over the susceptible feminine heart. And then, too, Stepin Fetchit is in it.

If you miss these don't say I didn't tell you.

Speaking of the Fox, when Fanchon and Marco devised the "Sweethearts" revue, currently inaugurating a new stage policy, they really had an "idea." The unit is spectacularly staged, closely knit and mechanically clever. If this week's pace can be maintained F street "has something"—in fact, with the Palace hitting on all eight, as usual, it may be said to have two somethings.

Orchestra music, you may have noted, has not died the death, either. With Mr. Breeskin persisting in going tunefully international in his overtures at the Earle and Mr. Brusiloff's cohorts back in the pit at the Fox, there is something on tap to tickle even the most fastidious musical palate.

I suggest that any one who has feared that first-hand musicianship is not appreciated since the perfection of the sound screen go listen to the applause.

Well, well, so this is what you call the newspaper racket!

IN THE PLAY HOUSES

Gilbert Miller presents Gertrude Lawrence in "Candle-Light." Adapted by P. G. Wodehouse from the German of Siegfried Geyer. Directed by Gilbert Miller, at the Belasco.

THE CAST:

Marie ..... Gertrude Lawrence
Prince Rudolf ..... Reginald Owen
Joseph, his Valet ..... Leslie Howard
Baron von Rischenheim ..... Robert English
Baroness von Rischenheim ..... Betty Schuster
Liseri ..... Rita Vale
A Writer ..... Duncan McRae
Koeppke, a Chauffeur ..... Jack Carlton

Since they wound up the "Watch on the Rhine," Siegfried Geyer's play, "Candle Light," presented at the Belasco Theater last night, is the first of the German comedies to make for America. Translated by the English wit, P. G. Wodehouse, it makes its American premiere during a successful London engagement, another company still holding the fort there.

"Entertaining" and "amusing" are two stock-worn adjectives that come readily to the rescue of "Candle Light." It is. Built upon a flimsy situation, the Geyer-Wodehouse firm takes the material for a knockout one-act comedy and stretches it over a period of three complete stanzas. This in itself is a Herculean feat comparable to building a skyscraper on a dime.

Prince Rudolf, a gay dog, of Vienna, goes from his apartment to keep an engagement. On the rebound, his return unexpected, he finds his faithful valet, Joseph, engaged in the gentle task of entertaining a lady; or, what purports to be a lady. In truth, 'tis only the parlor maid of the lady the prince has singled out for his own philandering. In America, now, the same story would have centered about the floor-walker from the big department store who parade as a shop builder before the adoring eyes of a waitress from a cafeteria—out-of-towners who meet in New York.

It takes some mighty fine work on the part of al concerned to make of such light and frothy stuff as this the pabulum that theatergoers cry for, but, by a stroke of genius, Gilbert Miller has entrusted his Prince Rudolf to that very capable exemplar of the princely type, Reginald Owen—as sauve, as smooth, as satin-finished as the back of a beaver. Mr. Owen charms by his art—and if there are any weaknesses in his parts they never show. Well, hardly ever. There are none in this, and he makes of it a masterpiece.

On the other hand, Leslie Howard has the valet. He becomes the prince. They have, then, as foil for their banter, Miss Gertrude Lawrence, the erstwhile musical comedienne now trying her wings in straight comedy, sans music. It makes a ten-strike triumverate in highly polished play; for, while there are some five others in the cast, the whirlwind—or what there is of it—centers about these three. Therein lies the great problem that befell the playwright and the adapter—to keep these three busy enough, without talking themselves out of countenance, for three acts.

When bon mots are thrown back and forth with just a bit more skill, and when American audiences realize the great differences that lie between the upper classes and the lower—for it certainly must be funny to see a prince pose as a valet—"Candle Light" will come into its own. As it is, they probably saw the anachronism better in Germany. That, of course, is merely the difference between a new and a comparatively old republic. It takes time to educate the masses, even to the appreciation of comedy.

With a few of its more pungent Anglo-Saxonisms eliminated in consideration of the more delicate ears of off-of-Broadway audiences, but still acrid enough to satisfy, "The Front Page" opened at the National last night. There can be no doubt that it satisfied, and that is one of the acid tests in play merchanting.

Numerous gasps followed by outbursts of laughter attested the audience's appreciation. Sometimes there was an interval between the gasp and the laughter, but the latter always came at the appointed time.

The locale of the piece is the press room of the Criminal Courts Building, Chicago, and the time is the evening of a scheduled hanging. Of course, the hanging never comes off, it being in Chicago, but the events leading up to the tragedy that doesn't happen provide an evening full of abdomen-shaking laughs liberally interspersed with moments of real tension. To tell more of the plot would be unkind to prospective customers.

Ben Hecht and Charles McArthur, the authors, have done a fairly accurate job in catching the spirit of one phase of newspaper activity—in Chicago at least. Rancid as it seems it is treated with no more than the usual amount of dramatic license. That it is not the kind of newspaper work with which many Washingtonians are somewhat familiar, is beside the point; the scene is not laid in Washington.

Lee Tracy as "Hildy Johnson," star reporter of the "Herald-Examiner," who wants to get married and "quit drinking and swearing and everything connected with the damn newspaper business," continues to win the laurels. So do Carrie Weller and Jennie "of Clark Street"; Frances Fuller as Peggy Grant, the girl Hildy plans to marry, and Osgood Perkins as the Managing Editor who likes his star reporter's work so well that he will have him arrested to hold him. The cast is a large one and it is well chosen.

There were a few slight hitches, notably in the first act, apparently caused by the toning down process which changed a few cues. But the hesitations were minute and should disappear entirely in future performances.

One thing more, for the benefit of those who may have read the manuscript; the whipcracker line with which the show ends has got been cut—at least, not yet.

WILLIAM C. MURPHY, Jr.

GAYETY

"Kuddling Kuties" is the engaging name of the burlesque attraction occupying the Gayety Theater this week, with Max Fields occupying the biggest portion of the spotlight. Fields is a wise cracker, par excellence, and is a master of comedy. Also, he dances. In this, he is of the eccentric school.

Another member of the company who comes in for headline honors is "Sugar" Schaad, a young woman who is gifted with a good voice and has an overabundance of pep. She knows how to hoof it, too, and manages to enliven the whole show with her contributions, vocal and otherwise.

Another dancer with plenty of pep and speed is Milva Linza. Jeanne Williams is a jazz singer, well received. Others who score are Al Golden, singer of superior songs, if they may be called that; Fred Barron, Sammy Smith and Al Snyder, all good entertainers.

"The Parrot Inn" wins the laurels as the best novelty hit in the performance, one of the outstanding on the wheel, with Max Fields highly improved over his work of last season.

Merchants Urge Parking Changes

Permission to Place Cars on Pennsylvania Avenue at Angle Asked.

Parking on the south side of F street, between Thirteenth and Fourteenth streets, should be prohibited, and angle parking on Pennsylvania avenue should be resumed, Director of Traffic Harland was advised by the board of governors of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association yesterday.

The board also recommended that the loading platform on the southwest corner of Thirteenth and F streets should be removed, as there is another platform in this block which should be sufficient. The purpose of eliminating parking on the south side of this block would be to relieve congestion, the members of the board said.

Resumption of angle parking on Pennsylvania avenue, which was changed to parallel parking several months ago, would permit the badly needed parking of a larger number of cars in the section, the board pointed out. Director Harland is expected to take the recommendations under advisement.

Three-Year Schedule Set By Damrosch

Conductor Will Begin Series of Educational Concerts Oct. 11 Over NBC Network — Programs for Music Clubs.

A three-year schedule of broadcast music appreciation concerts for schools and colleges, under the direction of Walter Damrosch, dean of American conductors, was announced recently by M. H. Aylesworth, president of the National Broacasting Co.

The program is the most comprehensive series of an educational nature ever designed for radio broadcasting. It is a continuation on a magnified scale of the work Mr. Damrosch began last season on an experimental basis, Mr. Aylesworth said. From now on Mr. Damrosch will devote his entire time to radio, he added.

The series will be known as the NBC Music Appreciation Hour and it will be heard through more than 60 stations associated with the National Broadcasting Co., including its coast-to-coast facilities.

A survey made at the close of last season's musical appreciation concerts indicated that more than two million children listened in and this number is expected to be doubled through use of the extended facilities.

"Mr. Damrosch's 'Musical University of the Air' has unquestionably caught the imagination of the American people," Mr. Aylesworth said. "The amazing response on the part of children, teachers and parents to last year's concerts makes it the responsibility as well as the privilege of the National Broadcasting Co. to insure their continuation for some time to come. An undertaking of such tremendous significance must be carried on.

"We have therefore arranged with Mr. Damrosch to have these programs continued during the seasons of 1929-30, 1930-31 and 1931-32. The influence which a program of this scope will have on the musical life of the country can not be overestimated.

"The schedule of programs has been carefully planned in cooperation with teachers of music in the public schools and elsewhere. The plan has been approved by music education authorities and represents, in part, the result of their suggestions."

The first of the 1929-30 programs is scheduled for Friday morning, October 11, at 11 o'clock, Eastern standard time. Following last year's general plan there will be four series of concerts graded to suit the mental development of children from the third grade through high schools and colleges.

An innovation will be the inclusion of programs designed especially for the music clubs of the country. Reports from all parts of the country last year revealed a wide interest on the part of music club members in the concerts.

In order that such adults as are eager to take up the study of symphonic music may get special benefits from the concerts, Mr. Damrosch has arranged a fourth series to meet their particular needs. This series also will be designed to appeal to high school and college groups.

Each series will include twelve programs, according to present plans. The programs for the two younger groups—that is series A for the third and fourth grades and series B for the fifth and sixth grades—will be presented on the same Friday. On alternate Fridays the two advanced series—series C for the seventh, eighth and ninth grades and series D for the high school and college students—will be given.

Entire new programs for the four series have been worked out by Mr. Damrosch during the past three months. The noted conductor has also prepared a teacher's manual of questions and answers, similar to the one used last year as a supplement to the experimental concerts.

Mr. Damrosch, in commenting upon the series, emphasized the fact that the concerts are not considered as substitutes for local instruction.

"This course is intended to supplement the musical instruction already given in schools," Mr. Damrosch said. "It is a course in appreciation rather than in technique and should prove interesting and valuable to persons who can not read a note of music as well as to those skilled in vocal and instrumental expression.

"Judging from the results of last season I am convinced that in three more years we can revolutionize the musical life of America," Mr. Damrosch continued. "Before radio became a part of school life, at least 99 per cent of our boys and girls had never heard any of the great musical works. Such music was only for the very few in the metropolitan centers whose parents took them to symphony concerts.

"If children hear a sufficient amount of fine music when they are young, they will not be content to live without it when they are older. This can be accomplished through that great invention of the age—radio broadcasting. There are already indications after a single season, that these educational concerts stimulate children to take up a personal study of instrumental music as well as to organize school orchestras. I think it is now only a matter of time before music is thoroughly democratized—belonging not only to small groups in our great cities, but to the entire country.

"The results of last season's concerts far exceeded my expectations. From evidence I received in the form of letters, it seems safe to say that we made thousands of new, young disciples for symphonic music. They are not only able to identify by sound the various instruments used in a symphony orchestra but have also developed the beginning of a real interest in the works of the great masters.

"I feel I must express my sincere thanks to the school teachers and the principals of the country for their able cooperation. Their assistance contributed a great deal in offsetting the handicap of not being able to come in actual contact with the children."

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

Are You Bored With Love?

By FRANCES McDONALD.

If you are bored with your husband, or bored with your wife, here is your chance to be freed of your complex. Just write in and tell us about it. We stated recently that it was perfectly natural for lovers, especially married lovers, to feel bored with each other. To some that sounded like sacrilege, to others heresy, and to others it sounded like the honest truth. Bess is glad she married a man who goes on trips. Bill says when his wife visits her mother he is glad to see her go. Yet these people truly love each other, as their letters show. Read them and tell us whether you believe true love is never the least bit bored. The truth, remember! Now read Bess' letter:

"If any one gets bored, I do! I just adore my husband, but at times I could just fly, I get so fed up on marriage, or rather on being so dependent upon one person for companionship. We live in a rather dull suburb and have no children. My husband's business is here, but twice a year he goes away for about ten days to buy. Those trips just save my reason, and, incidentally, my love. Just when I think he is the most fidgety mortal person alive, he goes on a trip, and before he gets back I know he is the dearest.

"I always go home when he is away, and the confusion there, and the fussing over trifles, get me right back to normal, and I count the days till my own 'fuss-budget' gets back. I suppose I get on his nerves, too. But don't try to tell me that we do not love each other. We wouldn't trade each other for anything, but we get tired of each other because we are human. BESS."

Now here's an honest hubby.

"Listen. I'm married to the best little woman, and the cutest in the world, but no two people can live together and never get tired of each other. I don't mean tired in the sense of wanting any one else, but just of wanting a little rest from each other's ideas and little faults.

"She is a good housekeeper and, therefore, at times, irritating, grabbing up papers and throwing them in the trash box before I have finished with them, throwing fits over an upset ash tray and such things. Well, they don't bother me usually, but all of a sudden every little while I ask her if she wouldn't like to go see her mother.

"I never do a thing while she is away that I couldn't tell her all about—I just sit home and feel like a dog and miss her. But if she didn't go, I know I'd go up in smoke—or certainly get nasty or something. You know, I think people who fight work off their boredom that way. But excuse me from that method. I choose my mother-in-law instead. And I guess the little missus is just as glad to go as I am to have her go, and I know she is just as glad to get back as I am glad to get her back, and we are sure enough lovers, too. "BILL."

Now what do you think of that? And do you believe these people love? Or do you believe that lovers never for a moment tire of each other?

This column is for you. Your experiences, opinions and suggestions will help all who read this page. Express your views and help those in need of advice. You need not sign your name.

Gala Night Is Offered By Chicago

WMAL Included in Network of Grand Opening of WMAQ; Pan-American Program on NAA; Treasure Island, WRC.

WMAQ, Chicago, will celebrate the opening of what is believed to be the most elaborate and complete broadcasting studios ever constructed for a single station, with a gala program at 9:30 o'clock tonight. Station WMAL will be included in the network of stations of the Columbia Broadcasting System presenting stars of the operatic and concert stage.

Another program of interest this evening will be the second concert of the summer season under the auspices of the Pan-American Union to be broadcast by NAA from 8 to 10 o'clock. The United States Navy Band will play a specially prepared program which will feature a selection from the Brazilian opera, "Salvador Rosa," by Carlos Gomes, the composer of the famous overture "Il Guarani." The assisting artist will be Federico Flores, barytone, from Mexico, and he will be accompanied by his brother, Raoul Sergio.

Albert Spaulding, the violinist, will be one of the main attractions of the WMAQ-WMAL broadcast. He has selected "Pastorale Gentile," Frescobaldi; "Minuet," Mozart; "Turkish March," from "Ruins of Athens," Beethoven; "Cradle Song," Brahms-Spaulding; "Hark, Hark the Lark," Schubert-Spaulding, and "Ave Maria," Schubert-Wilhelmj.

A concert orchestra under Joseph Gallicchio will be presented also.

A distinctly Southern atmosphere surrounds the Old Gold-Paul Whiteman Hour to be heard at 8 o'clock from WMAL. Selections to be heard include "Down South," "Sugar Cane Round My Door," "Dusky Stevedore" and a "Southern Medley." The soloists to be heard in support of Paul Whiteman and his orchestra include Bing Crosby, barytone; Jack Fulton, tenor; Mildred Bailey, contralto, the Ponce Sisters and the Old Gold Trio.

A number of old ballet favorites in modern rhythm will be played by the Fada Orchestra, David Mendoza conducting, during its broadcast at 9 o'clock. John Barclay, tenor, will be the soloist.

The opening fall program of the Everready Hour will reproduce on the air via the National Broadcasting Co. network, a dramatic version of Stevenson's tale of the days of the buccaneers—"Treasure Island." A large company of noted actors have been cast for the drama, to be heard from WRC at 8 o'clock. Louis Hector will portray Long John Silver, Jim Hawkins will be depicted by Wheeler Dryden, while Rosaline Greene, radio's first leading lady, the only woman in the cast, will play the part of Jim's mother.

David S. Ingalls, Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Aeronautics, will discuss the topic, "Why I Fly," in the Roads of the Sky program, to be broadcast from the local studios at 6 o'clock. Song hits from the Ziegfeld "Follies" of past years, recalling the annual extravaganzas to those who mourn the passing of the "Glorified Girl," supply the high light in the Prophylactic Orchestra broadcast at 7:30 o'clock. Victor Arden will direct the program.

The RKO hour will be broadcast between 9:30 and 10:30 o'clock, followed by "Harbor Lights" and the Hotel Manager Dance Orchestra.

WJSV has inaugurated a new morning feature known as "Helpful Hints to Housewives" between 8 and 10 o'clock. Quinton's Marquette Orchestra will present a program of old and new dance numbers at 7:30 o'clock this evening. The Silver String Revelers will return to the station with a varied program after several weeks absence.

A half hour of music will be broadcast from WOL at 6:30 o'clock, preceded by the regular dinner music schedule. Dr. Joseph Murphy, medical inspector of the D. C. schools, will talk for a half hour, beginning at 7 o'clock.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

PAGET'S DISEASE OF BONES.

M. P. A. writes: Please write an article on Paget's disease of the bones, its cause, symptoms, duration, etc. Does it cause severe and continuous headache? Are all the bones in the body involved? Is there any arresting treatment?

REPLY.

I wish I knew more about it, and, above all, I wish I knew of some treatment of which I could tell you. The only response I can make is to tell you the few known facts. Paget was a distinguished British surgeon who died just at the close of the last century. His name is attached to the disease of the bones about which you ask and also to a variety of sarcoma or cancer of the skin; a kind of abscess; a disease of the nipple; and to certain cells found in Paget's disease of the nipple.

Edwards says: "Paget's disease of the bones begins slowly in subjects over 40 years old with pains and deformity of the thighs, legs and spine. The legs bow outward and somewhat forward, the spinal column of the neck and upper chest becomes curved, the chest narrows sideways and becomes deep from before back, the abdomen is diamond-shaped and the skin thereof folds, and the head hangs forward. The face is seldom involved, but the head is larger above than below. The arms are but little altered. Clopton found seventy-six cases on record."

This quotation answers most of your questions. The answer to the other is as follows:

No arresting treatment is known. Nor is the cause known. It may last for years. While headache is not an essential symptom it may be present—severe and long continued. The amount and severity of the headache is dependent on the changes in brain pressure in all probability and this in turn is dependent on how much involvement there is of the bones of the head. This disease is frequently compared with acromegaly.

In acromegaly there is a disease of a ductless gland called the pituitary. This gland is located in a nest just off the head cavity. Though it is in close proximity to the brain it is not a part of the organ. As a result of this disease of the pituitary the bones overgrow. In Paget's disease there is some apparent overgrowth of bones, but softening and bendability is a more prominent feature. In acromegaly the bones most prominently affected are those of the face, feet and hands. In Paget's disease the bones most affected are those of the spinal column and chest. The hands, feet and face are apt to escape.

In acromegaly the bones do not twist, bend or curve. In Paget's disease they do. Humpback is absent in acromegaly and it is prominent in Paget's. So far no disease of the pituitary has been charged with responsibility for Paget's disease.

MAY BE OVEROPERATED.

J. D. P. writes: I have sinus trouble. I have had the following operations in the last two years at different times:

Submucous for deflected septum.
Frontal sinus drainage.
Sphenoid and ethnoid.

My sinuses drain copiously. At night the pus drains into my lungs and the next morning I cough it up. Is vaccine treatment any good? Shall I have some more operations? Shall I go to Arizona?

REPLY.

I can not see where you can expect anything from more operations. Nor is vaccine treatment promising.

A physician at a veterans' hospital in Arizona says that most sinuses get well in that climate. This is not true of those that have been overoperated.

Money in Ancient Greece

THE IDEA of using money was brought to Greece by sailors from Phoenicia or by travelers from Asia Minor about 2,600 years ago.

Iron was one of the first metals used for coins. In Sparta, iron money was common for a very long time; other cities decided that it was too clumsy to handle and made their coins of copper, silver and gold.

Both sides of a Greek coin. The head is of the goddess Athena.

Silver coins contained enough silver so they would be worth from 44 to 66 cents at the present time. People were then able to buy a great deal with a silver coin, because silver was very scarce.

There were two kinds of gold money, white and yellow. The white gold was really a mixture of silver and gold. The gold coin chiefly used contained enough metal to be worth about $5.80 to us. To many of the Greeks, it seemed like having a small fortune to own a gold piece.

Why do you suppose coins were marked? It was so that people could depend on the value of the money. Each city made coins of its own. The stamp meant:

"We guarantee that this coin is pure, and that the metal in it weighs as much as it should."

Metal was at first of many shapes, but the round shape slowly came to be common. Metals were melted and poured in molds of a square or roundish shape. "Blanks" were taken out when only partly cooled. They were pounded against a certain design, and it made a mark on the coin.

At first a mark was intended for only one side, but the other side showed impressions of the pounding. Later on, pictures of some sort were made on both sides.

From a very early date, coins were made with the head or figure of a person on one side and the figure of a bird on the other. This was not true of all ancient coins, but of a goodly number of them. Thus the "heads" and "tails" of coins have a long history.

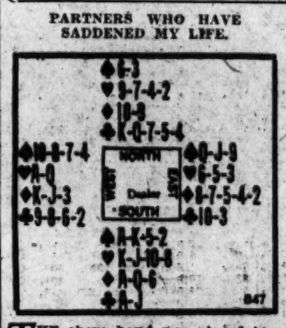
WORK ON BRIDGE

PARTNERS WHO HAVE SADDENED MY LIFE.



THE above hand was played in a game of Auction Bridge. I was sitting North. My partner bid one No Trump which obtained the contract. (If we had been playing Contract, my partner would have bid three No Trumps.)

In the play West led a Spade which South won, he then led the Ace of Clubs and followed with the Jack. At this stage of the play, failing to appreciate that dummy had an entry outside of the Club suit, he overtook with my Queen and led the King, hoping that the six adverse Clubs were evenly divided. When this did not prove to be the case (which need not have surprised anybody inasmuch as the 4-2 split is the one to be expected), Declarer led a Heart from dummy and finessed. The finesse lost to West who led another Spade which Declarer won and established his Hearts; but West took two Spades, two Hearts and one Club, and Declarer failed to go game.

Why did my partner's play fail to satisfy my ideas?

THE CORRECT PLAY.

West's opening lead of the Spade Four patently was his lowest as Declarer held both Trey and Deuce; therefore West had four Spades originally and East three because Declarer had six.

As the adversaries can only win two Spade tricks, Declarer can afford to allow them to take two Hearts and can plan to make game by winning two Spades, two Hearts, one Diamond and four Clubs. The two Spades and one Diamond are obvious enough, also the four Clubs if dummy can find an entry; and an entry can be made of the Heart Nine.

Of course West, winning the first Heart, will lead a Spade and extract South's last commanding Spade. When West wins his second Heart he will cash two Spades; but after that, North must get in with the Heart Nine and cash long Clubs (South having previously unblocked by leading the Ace and Jack). Playing the way Declarer did, he is gambling with the odds against him upon an even division of the adverse Clubs; but by giving up all thoughts of finessing the Hearts and conceding two tricks in that suit to the adversaries, game would be practically assured.

What Today Means to You

"VIRGO."

IF September 17 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 6 a. m. to 8:50 a. m., from 1 p. m. to 2:30 p. m., and from 9 p. m. to 10:40 p. m. The danger periods are from 10 a. m. to 11:15 a. m., and from 4 p. m. to 5:30 p. m.

The influences for this day are apt to bring about a decided degree of mental slackness. Essential interests may be neglected, and important opportunities nonchalantly passed by. Care should be taken that the day is not followed by a series of regrets.

Children born on this September 17 will be demonstrative and impulsive, rather jealous, and usually amiable. They will have decidedly domestic tastes, and will cling to home ties. They will be greatly influenced by their environments.

You have rather a hyper-critical nature, and are apt to pass final judgment upon people or things Those who do not see with your eyes are wrong—others may have optical delusions, but you never. You fail to remember that other people have personalities, feelings, and odd ways of looking at things, just as you have yourself. You do not realize that in your attitude, in your desire to have your own way, you are apt to trample upon peoples sensibilities as though you alone had a right to opinions and emotions. Give the other person a chance!

As a lover, you are a blind enthusiast, and you place your ideal of love so high that neither fault nor failure is seen by you in the being worshipped. When they eventually fall from this pedestal, you view them with intolerant and unforgiving eyes. Your affections are bound to give you sorrow.

You are forceful, energetic and ambitious, and endowed with much natural ability. You enjoy doing things "on your own," and you would be much happier as the owner of a small business, than being under some one else in more important or paying work. You have a decided inventive streak in your make-up.

Successful people born on September 17:

J. Peter Lesley—Geologist.
Lucius Q. C. Lamar—Justice of U. S. Supreme Court.
James R. Haskell—Inventor.
William E. Griffis—Educator and author.
Robert W. Vonnoh—Artist.

WIDE UPWARD MOVE IS STAGED BY BULLS

Shorts Are Driven to Cover as Stock Prices Forge Definitely Ahead.

CALL RATE 7½ PER CENT

New York, Sept. 16 (A.P.).—The bull party once more regained control of the price movement on the stock market today. Last week's bearishness reappeared for a time in the morning, but the stream of selling quickly dried up, and shorts hurried to cover.

Operators for the advance felt that the distress selling in evidence last week had been largely completed, and that the time was ripe for renewed operations. The pace of trading slackened, less than 4,200,000 shares changing hands, as contrasted to more than 5,000,000 last Friday, and traders regarded this as a good sign.

The heavy turnover of funds in connection with the Treasury refinancing and income tax payments, involving the shifting of some $1,300,000,000, was accomplished without causing any notable repercussions in the call money market. Call loans were available at 7½ per cent all day. There was some disappointment that the Treasury overdraft in connection with its new financing did not bring about temporarily easier credit conditions. Banks called some $35,000,000 in loans, however, which was undoubtedly a counterbalancing factor.

Later Stringency Expected.

Bankers expect the Treasury overdraft to stabilize the money market for the next few days, but it is felt that there may be some stringency toward the end of the week, as the overdraft is paid off. It was pointed out, however, that today's calling of loans may have been for the reduction of member bank borrowings at the reserve, so that they may be in a better position to aid the market later in the week.

Prominent in the day's news was confirmation of rumors that General Motors and Radio Corporation are negotiating a plan under which General Motors will manufacture radio sets. Public offering was made of stocks of several new investment trusts, including $100,000,000 of stock of the new Lehman Corporation, which was quickly oversubscribed. The fact that powerful banking interests continue to launch huge investment companies is interpreted as indicating confidence in fundamental investment conditions, yet it is felt that sale of these new issues must impose further burdens on credit.

During the morning a few leading issues, such as United States Steel, American Telephone, General Electric, and International Telephone, sagged 2 or 3 points, but by midday a wide upward movement got under way, which continued to gather momentum until near the close. Such issues as General Motors, United States Steel, American Can, and American Telephone were heavily bought, closing about 3, 4, 5, and 6 points higher, respectively.

Considerable Profit-Taking.

There was considerable profit-taking in the last half hour, and recessions of a point or two from the best levels of the day were common. Radio was heavily bought for a time, rising about 3 points, but it lost much of its gain in the final deals.

Several of the utilities made wide gains, American and Foreign Power selling up nearly 10 points to new high ground. Pacific Gas & Electric and Southern California Edison made gains almost as wide, under the stimulus of Saturday's offer of an exchange of stock by Public Utility Holding Corporation. Columbia Gas was rushed up about 6 points to a new peak above 120 on "an analysis by a prominent statistician pointing to its strategic position in the merger situation, but lost about half its gain later.

The Electric Equipment stocks were buoyant, General Electric and Westinghouse Electric rising about 9 and 10 points, and Western Electrical Instrument mounting nearly 8 points to a new peak at 64.

A few of the oils, rails, chemicals, food shares, railway equipment and specialties were well bought. Commercial Solvents, which is to be split 10-for-1, made an extreme gain of 29 points, retaining 20 at the close. Royal Dutch reached a new peak at 64, but the upward move in the oils appeared to have been hampered by the upturn in California crude production last week.

Others in New High Ground.

Baltimore & Ohio, Louisville & Nashville, Timken Roller Bearing, Cutler Hammer and Hershey Chocolate were among issues reaching new high ground with moderate gains. National Lead jumped 15 points to a new peak, and Johns Manville was notably strong.

May Department Stores tumbled about 14 points on denial of rumors that it would be acquired by Sears Roebuck, and Ingersoll Rand dropped 7 points. Eastman Kodak, United Corporation, United States Freight, Grigsby Grunow and American Safety Razor were among shares to close about two points off. Abraham & Straus and Jersey Central dropped 8 and 13 points in a few sales.

Commodities were irregular. Cotton futures sold up considerably on bullish weather forecasts, but lost most of their gains before the close. Wheat turned heavy, closed 3 cents a bushel and more lower on an increase in the visible supply, large receipts at the markets and weakness in the Winnipeg market. Corn lagged a cent or so.

In the foreign exchanges, sterling was a little firmer, with cables at $4.84 11-16. This is still below the incoming gold point, however, and with the sailing of several fast steamers this week, more takings of London gold by New York is expected. The Japanese yen mounted about ¼ of a cent.

BOND LIST PURSUES IRREGULAR COURSE

Some Convertibles Stage Late Rally—Market's Turnover Increases.

FEDERAL GROUP IS DULL

New York, Sept. 16 (A.P.).—Bonds persisted along their irregular course today and only a late rally by the convertibles saved the session from complete dullness. Time money entered its fifth consecutive week at 8¾ to 9 per cent for all maturities and transactions in standard investment issues were on a small scale.

American Telephone convertible 4½s snaped back to something like the volume of trading that was the rule in this issue earlier in the summer. Quotations in the debenture showed fluctuations of more than 9 points, the day's high being 212 and the low 202¾, while the closing price of 211¼ represented a net advance of 6¾, most of which was scored in the last half hour as the stock was being bid up. Turnover exceedd $2,300,000, par value, a sharp rise over the total of recent sessions.

International Telephone 4½s also showed a wide spread, dipping to 196⅛—or below 200 for the first time since the late August rise—and then closing with a late rush at 204⅜ for a net gani of 3⅞. Alleghany Corporation 5s, both issues, and Atchison 4½s were strong all day. The latter moving up 3 points to 158.

Investment rails of more seasoned types were ragged and gains about equalized losses. Chesapeake & Ohio first 4s, Richmond and Alleghany division, dipped to the new low of 82½, a loss of 2½ on the offering of a small block. Lehigh Valley 4½s also receded to about their minimum figure.

Industrials likewise traded unevenly. North American Cement 6½s dropped 3 points to the new low of 87 under a resumption of last week's realizing and Pennsylvania Dixie Cement 6s touched the new minimum of 73, closing 1½ above that price for a small net improvement. Shell Union Oil 5s and Shell Pipe Line 5s steadied after their recent liquidation.

Some of the New York tractions were in demand and Third Avenue Railway Adjustment 5s made a maximum advance of 4 points, later selling off from the top.

Utilities in general had a dull time of it, but one of the interesting features of the session was the decline of 28¾ points in Brooklyn Union Gas Debenture 5*s, an inactive convertible, on the sale of a single bond.

Interest in the United States Government division all but disappeared, although the price trend was upward. Foreign issues likewise stagnated, although some of the South American Government obligations, notably those of Argentina and Brazil, worked irregularly higher.

NATS TAKE WEIRD GAME FROM TIGERS, 10 TO 9

NO RIGHTS SEEN FOR COMMON CUSTOMERS

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—Deplorable as it may seem, the common customers of the Cubs and Athletics, who wish to witness one game of the impending world series, are about to discover that the common customer has no rights. This is a fact which some of them may have discovered before in connection with the two master productions of the late Tex Rickard, the Tunney-Dempsey uplift spectacles, which were presented in Philadelphia and Chicago, respectively. However, the ordinary customer has a very brief memory, and those who learned that they had no rights when Mr. Rickard was promoting his fights, undoubtedly will be as much surprised and hurt to learn it all over again as they were in the first place. The common customers always are.

There is a great demand for tickets to the world series, both in Chicago and Philadelphia, and the managements of both firms involved have been doing their best, consistent with the special peculiarities of the situation, to distribute the tickets evenly among the earliest applicants. In this respect, they are much more conscientious than Mr. Rickard ever was, but the upshot of it all will be the same nevertheless; namely, that the gent or lady with money enough to spare for only one reserved seat at the world series will not be allowed to purchase one reserved seat.

Scheme Tougher on More Common Customers.

Reserved seats for the world series are always sold in strips of three, the price being $16.50, which is equal to one-half or one-third of a week's wages of the more common type of customers. The purchase of a three-day ticket also implies three days' absence from lucrative employment, so, obviously, the more common the customer, the greater the injustice to him or her.

Mr. Rickard was quite candid about the matter of the comparative value and desirability of the humble working man's dollar as compared with that of the great big politician's dollar, the great big banker's dollar or the great big New York publisher's dollar. He frankly withheld from box office sale all of the first twenty rows of the so-called ringside section, which extended as far back as row double-Z, for private sale to the great big men of the country, who found it inconvenient to stand in line or have their secretaries stand in line at the box office or even to have their secretaries write letters early in the game.

I reproached Mr. Rickard for this discrimination one evening about two weeks before the uplift of Chicago, arguing that if a poor but honest shipping clerk saved $40 and sent his money in by mail the day the ticket sale opened, his order should be filled with the best $40 ticket available at that time.

Tex Accuses Pegler of Socialism.

Mr. Rickard contrarily insisted that a great big New York publisher, for instance, had a right to preferment in this matter, even though he waited until the last day to apply for his ticket at the same price.

"But this is unjust to the poor but honest shipping clerk," I maintained, "as it compels him to pay as much for a remote seat as the great big men pay for the best seats."

"Why you are talking socialism," Mr. Rickard exclaimed incredulously "I am going to tell your boss he has got a crazy Socialist working for him. Everybody knows you cannot go putting a lot of scratchy bums at shipping clerks and $50-a-week people down in front, at a wonderful show like this where they will sit alongside of the biggest men and women in the country.

"You go down to Washington for the inauguration and see how many scratchy bums are sitting in the best seats at the parade. Or go to one of Ziegfeld's big openings in New York and see who is sitting in the best seats which are priced the same as the no-account seats further back.

Big 3 Squads Start Grid Drills

Horween Thins Out Harvard Scrubs First Day.

Yale and Princeton Squads in Light Workouts.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Sept. 16 (A. P.).—Head Coach Arnold Horween today wasted but little time wielding the axe on his Harvard varsity football squad. More than 100 candidates reported for the Crimson's first practice, held this morning. But this number was reduced to 48 before the afternoon session. The discards were immediately enrolled in Jimmy Knox's scrub corps.

Horween is starting his fourth and last season as head coach. He plans to hold two daily practice sessions until college opens late next week.

104 Candidates Out At Old Eli.

New Haven, Conn., Sept. 16 (A.P.). One hundred and 4 candidates, seventeen of them "Y" men, reported to Head Coach Marvin A. Stevens for Yale football practice today.

The squad got down to business immediately, taking the usual run around and then breaking up into groups. Stevens assumed general supervision with the assistant coaches handling each group.

The linemen were taught charging and starting, and Yale's new charging sled was put into use for the first time.

Ten Letter Men Report To Coach Roper.

Princeton, N. J., Sept. 16 (A.P.). Coach "Ill Roper opened the fall football practice here today when 48 athletes reported for Princeton's 1929 grid campaign. A light drill this morning and dummy scrimmage and punting practice this afternoon featured today's workout. Ten letter men were among those who reported.

Roper put all of the candidates into action today and will continue to do so until more of a definite line can be had on the new material.

Crowder Gives 2 Hits; Browns Trim A's, 3-2

Philadelphia, Sept. 16 (A.P.).—Alvin Crowder, star right-hander of the St. Louis Browns, ruined the first appearance of the Athletics since they clinched the American League pennant by holding the Mackmen to two hits today for a 3-to-2 triumph.

Crowder pitched hitless ball in eight innings. The only Philadelphia runs came in the fourth when Simmons beat out a single and Foxx followed with his thirty-third home run of the season.

Cards Down Giants In 11th Inning, 5-4

St. Louis, Sept. 16 (A.P.).—Fred Fitzsimmons suffered a sudden loss of control in the eleventh inning of a battle between the Giants and the Cardinals today and handed St. Louis the game by a 5-to-4 score.

The game was the last of the season between the two teams and ended the year's duel with thirteen victories for New York and nine for the Cards.

The Giants broke a 3-3 tie in the eleventh, but three walks and a couple of singles proved costly. With the bases full, Fitzsimmons walked Wilson to force Bottomley across with the tying run, then Gelbert singled to drive in the winning counter.

Nats' Single Games To Start at 3 o'Clock

In view of the fact that the last two games played here had to be called after the eighth inning, because of darkness, Washington Club officials have announced that future single games will be started at 3 o'clock instead of at 3:30.

No change has been made in the starting time of today's double-header with the Tigers, however, and Umpire George Hildebrand is scheduled to yell "Play Ball" at 1:30 o'clock.

Pirates Twice Humble Phillies as Cubs Idle

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 16 (A.P.).—Pittsburgh wreaked vengeance on Philadelphia for some past defeats today by winning a double-header, 3 to 2, and 5 to 2, the opener going ten innings. The result put the idle Chicago Cubs on the waiting list in the matter of clinching the National League pennant, which would have happened had the locals lost a game.

The first contest was a duel between Jess Petty and Lester Sweetland, and the visiting left-hander was unfortunate in making a wild throw to first in the tenth that led to his defeat.

Ervin Brame was too much for the Phils in the nightcap, holding the enemy to five safeties. Recruit Southpaw Smythe opposed Brame at the start, but he was the victim of some infield hits in the first inning that gave the Bucs four runs. Comorosky's double with three on base was the big scoring factor in the initial round. Score:

Weaver, for fourteen years president of the Southern Pacific division of the Amateur Athletic Union, and formerly national president of the A. A. U., will resign his position this week. Coen Defeats Tilden In Match at Toledo

Toledo, Ohio, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Wilbur Coen, youthful tennis prodigy from Kansas City, defeated William Tilden, national tennis champion, 7—5, 6—4, in the first match at the Toledo Tennis Club courts today Coen is a protege of Tilden.

Coen showed surprising ability in returning Tilden's shots and his placements were excellent. Big Bill won the first game, but Coen came back and won the next three. Coen was leading five games to two at the end of the seventh game. Tilden took the next three without losing a point, but Coen then won the two deciding games.

The second set went to Coen, six games to four.

Progress of G. U. and C. U. Hindered by Absent Stars

Hope Vanishing at Hilltop for Bozek's Return.

Healy, Speedy Back, Found Ineligible for Cards.

IT seems all but a positive fact that Johnny Bozek, the fleet half back, who was regarded a certain regular on this year's Georgetown Football Team, will not return to the Hilltop for the current term. Though he had written Coach Lou Little stating that he would report, he was not on hand yesterday when the Hilltoppers took their initial workout on the home gridiron.

Coach Little's terse comment on the absence of the former Gonzaga High flash was, "Well, it looks as if we won't have Johnny this year." There was a note of disappointment in the mentor's voice, which can be explained by the fact that Bozek is, or was last year, the cleverest open-field runner in Georgetown ranks.

Injured Stars Now In Fine Fettle.

Failing to report with the rest of the squad at the Ocean City, N. J., training camp on September 3, Bozek didn't even communicate with Little or any of the players until a week ago when he wrote Little stating that he had been delayed at his home on account of illness in his family, but would appear here yesterday. His brother, Emil, also a back field player, who is making a strong bid for a varsity berth, is unable to explain why he is not here.

Despite the nonappearance of the Manchester (N. H.) star, Little found enough to be cheerful yesterday. Steve Barabas, full back, and John Hudak half back, both regulars last fall, returned to action after a short layoff due to injuries, while all of the other ailing members of the squad except Don Donaldson, a big sophomore end candidate were on the field in uniform.

Donaldson, however, was able to dispense with his crutches, his twisted knee having shown marked improvement over the week-end, and he declared he would be ready to resume practice by the end of this week.

Scrimmage Will Be Resumed Soon.

The Hilltoppers' first afternoon at home was soft compared with the daily routine at the training camp. Signal drill, passing, catching passes, kicking, going down under punts and formation work comprised yesterday's program which consumed three hours. Coach Little stated that intrasquad scrimmages will be resumed within a couple of days and that varsity-freshmen clashes will be introduced about the middle of next week.

Bill Dudack again is in charge of the freshmen gridmen. His assistants are George McCabe quarter back of the varsity in 1927; Jerry Carroll guard and captain of last year's varsity, and Johnny Tomaini, track end of the 1928 outfit.

HE roseate outlook for Catholic University's football team was streaked with a shadow of gloom yesterday when it was learned that Jerry Healy, the most elusive ball carrier on the squad, has been declared ineligible for competition this fall on account of a deficient scholastic standing.

Healy, a native of New York City, was the speediest member of the 1928 Cardinal grid squad, but due to lack of weight was not used regularly. He was exceptionally shifty, and was good for a touchdown or long gain once he reached the open field. His absence, needless to say, will cause a change in Coach Jack McAuliffe's plans for the 1929 team, but it is extremely doubtful that a substitute of Healy's ability can be found.

Two Sessions Daily Until Sept. 25.

Thirty-two candidates went through two practice sessions yesterday in the Brookland stadium. Signal work was the main order in the morning and blocking and tackling were stressed in the afternoon. Two sessions daily will be held until classes open on September 25. A single practice will constitute the daily program thereafter.

Bob O'Connor, the husky champion whom McAuliffe has switched from tackle to half back, suffered a deep cut over the right eye yesterday afternoon which necessitated three stitches. While falling on the ball, his head struck the cleated shoe of a teammate.

Coach McAuliffe as yet has not determined a tentative varsity eleven, although he formed one combination yesterday which appeared very promising. This team numbered Gerth and Zeno, ends; O'Brien and Raiche, tackles; Mullen and Menke, guards; Ambrose, center; Oliver, quarter back; Champa and De Mello, half backs, and Capt. Malevich, full back.

Ambrose Slated for Center Assignment.

All but three of this group were regulars last year. The newcomers were Ambrose, Oliver and De Mello, members of the undefeated freshmen team of 1928. Ambrose has performed impressively at the pivot position thus far and will likely get the call over "Duke" McCabe, who held that job on the 1928 varsity.

O'Connor is at home in the back field, as he played behind the line for St. Benedict's Academy and Seton Hall, both New Jersey preparatory institutions, prior to his enrollment at C. U.

Frank Fullam, crack end of the 1928 freshmen, reported last night and will commence practice today. He said he weighs 178 pounds, a gain of nearly 20 over his mark a year ago.

Bell Saves Schwartz; Davies Gets Verdict

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 16 (A.P.).—The bell saved Corpl. Izzy Schwartz, of New York, claimant of the fly-weight title, from a knockout here tonight in a ten-round fight in which Wee Willie Davies, of Charleroi, Pa., took the decision in a nontitle match.

Schwartz went down for a count of four in the tenth round and when he came back for more Davies sent him to the floor again and he remained there until the final bell stopped the fight at the count of seven. Early in the fight the Charleroi midget suffered a rap that almost closed his left eye, but the injury only seemed to spur him to greater effort.

Deciding Run a Gift in Eighth

4 Passes Give Nats Run as Darkness Stops Play.

Detroit Overcomes 7-Run Lead; Eight Pitchers Used.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

IN ONE of the weirdest games seen in the Clark Griffith stadium in many months, the Nationals yesterday nosed out the Tigers, 10 to 9, to even the series standing. There were no balks and no home runs made, but practically everything else in the baseball curriculum was shown, including as much bush league as "big time" stuff.

A flock of pitchers was used by each team, Johnson having to call on Irving Hadley, Garland Braxton, Adolph Liska and Bob Burke, while Whitlow Wyatt, Kyle Graham, Emile Yde and Earl Whitehill did the Tiger flinging. All but the finishers were either wild or ineffective or both with Burke getting credit for the game although he pitched to but one batter. Whitehill came in with the bases loaded in the eighth, and the count three balls and one strike on Pinch-hitter Barnes. He passed the Alabama redhead, forcing over the winning run, but the walk and loss of the game were charged to Yde's record.

Winning Nat Run Is a Gift.

The run which gave the Nats the verdict was a gift pure and simple. Yde passed Judge, first up, and Sam Rice suicided him along. Joe took third on a wild pitch while Goslin was fanning and Myer was intentionally walked. Having gotten the habbit, Yde could not break himself immediately, and he issued another pass to Charley Gooch, hitting for West. Then he got himself in a hole on Barnes and, when Whitehill could not pull out of it the game was over.

Washington deserves little credit

3 Boxing Champs Face Possible Dethronement

Lack of Title Activity of Walker, Routis and Mandell to Be Considered Today by National Boxing Association.

CHICAGO, Sept. 16 (A.P.).—Action on the status of three world boxing champions, Sammy Mandell, of Rockford, Ill.; Andre Routis, of France, and Mickey Walker, Rumson, N. J., today was deferred by the National Boxing Association, until tomorrow. Today's sessions of the annual convention of the body were given over to work on the bylaws and constitution.

A short discussion revealed that the association members have not been impressed by the activity, and lack of activity, of Mandell, king of the lightweights; Walker, middleweight titleholder, and Routis, featherweight champion, with Walker indicated as likely to be shorn of his title as far as the N. B. A. is concerned.

Eddie Kane, Mandell's manager, will appear before the championship committee tomorrow, while Routis' case probably will be temporarily settled by approval of a title match between the Frenchman and Bat Battalino, of Hartford, Conn., at Hartford September 23. It is expected that Battalino will be recognized as a logical contender for the featherweight title.

The association today discussed proposed changes in the bylaws, but made no important revisions. A proposal to raise the membership fee for States, which has been on a gate receipts percentage basis, to a flat $50, was rejected. Colorado was dropped from the national body for failure to pay its annual dues.

CHATOVER WINS ORDINARY FEATURE AT BELMONT

Poor Program Marks End Of Meet

Winner Gains $2,700 Purse by Drive in Stretch.

Princeton Wins 4th Straight by Neck at Lincoln.

BELMONT RACE TRACK, Sept. 16 (A.P.).—The Belmont Park meeting came to a close here today with the running of an ordinary program which was featured by the Nassau claiming stake and this was won by R. T. Wilson's Chatover, quoted at 3 to 1. Mrs. G. Carroll's Okaybee was second and A. W. Wentzel's Host third. Bridegroom and Raucona, coupled, ran bad races, being outrun all the way.

Okaybee jumped into the lead and stepped the half mile in 46 3-5, and then began to stop. Chatover came along and, taking the lead in the stretch, won by four lengths. Okaybee beat Host a head for the place. The race was worth $2,700 to the winner.

Princeton Wins in Drive Over Klingstone.

Lincoln Fields Race Track, Ill., Sept. 16 (A.P.).—Mrs. R. Pollard's Princeton registered his fourth straight victory when he won the Ryde Park purse, the feature attraction of an ordinary Monday card here this afternoon. Klingstone, from F. S. Page's Stable, was second and Graydale, from O. L. Foster's Stable, was third. There were but seven starters left to contest when the scratchers were through.

Jockey R. Jones took the son of Light Brigade—Paris Queen into a long lead right after the start and was never headed, but was fully extended to win in a drive by a neck. Klingstone was always closest in contention and took the place money by three lengths from Graydale. The latter, away slow, and outpaced first three furlongs, moved up entering the stretch and closed gamely to take the small end of the purse by six lengths.

The race had a value of $1,000 to the winner, which paid $6.22 to $2 in the mutuel betting.

WIERD GAME CAPTURED BY NATS

Winning Run Forced Over in 8th; Darkness Stops Play.

for its victory, for its pitching was so poor that it could not hold a seven-run lead, rung up in two rallies in the third and fourth. In the fifth the Tigers started whittling it down and they finally did so in their eighth, only to see the decision "passed away" in the final half.

Bennie Tate, with two lusty triples, led the Washington attack, with Rice and Hayes each getting two bingles. Akers, rookie Detroit shortfielder, was high gun for his team, three safeties, including a double, being credited to him.

Wildness Gets Hadley In Trouble.

Although two early inning rallies let the Nationals forge into a 7-run lead, by the time the half-way mark had been reached their margin had been cut to 3 runs and the Tigers were back in the ball game.

Wildness was what got Hadley and his mates in trouble, for, although he had to be removed before he could get a man out in the fifth, he had granted but four hits. The Tigers were the first to score, getting a single one in the second. H. Rice walked, took third on McManus' double to right, and registered on Sam Rice's poor bounding return peg. Later in the frame, Hadley walked another and hit one, so the run would have been earned, anyway.

Tate's triple in the second, with one dead, was wasted, when a good peg by Johnson nipped him trying to score on Cronin's fly to right, but the Nats got busy in the next two frames by scoring 8 runs. Five were rung up in the third, when the Nats wrapped as many safeties around a base on balls. This flock of hits included a second triple by Tate, and singles by Rice, Myer, West and Hayes.

In the 3-run fourth-inning rally only three hits were needed, Hayes doubling, Hadley being safe on his intended sacrifice, and Rice and Goslin singling.

Braxton to Rescue in Fifth Frame.

Just when the game appeared safely tucked away in the Johnson bat bag, the plate started swinging on Hadley and, when he walked three, with Stone's single splitting the last two passes, he gave way to Braxton, who granted three more runs before turning in the third out. One was forced over.

The Nats managed to pack the aisles with two out in the sixth when Graham, who had succeeded Wyatt on the hill, walked Rice and Goslin

274 GOLFERS ENTER BANNOCKBURN TOURNEY

Medal Round Will Start Tomorrow

Two Days Allotted for Big Field to Qualify.

Best D. C. Players Entered; Roesch Not to Defend.

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

THE annual fall invitation golf tournament of the Bannockburn Golf Club will begin tomorrow morning with the field divided into two days of qualifying, tomorrow and Thursday, 18 holes. The entry list is a record breaker in the history of the club, aggregating 274 names and as the golf committee announced last night that post-entries will be received, it is probable that 300 or more golfers will compete. There is an unusually large representation of out-of-town golfers.

Frank K. Roesch, of the Washington Golf and Country Club, who won the tournament last year, will not defend his title, but Harry G. Pitt, of the Manor Club, who was runner-up last year in the championship flight, is entered. There are many other noteworthy entries. George J. Sewanee Football Coach Has Big Job on His Hands

19 Lettermen Lost and 1929 Team Must Be Molded From Young, Inexperienced Players—Counting on Patton.

(This is another in a series dealing with football prospects at Southern Conference Colleges.)

By ERNEST VACCARO
(Associated Press Staff Writer).

SEWANEE, Tenn., Sept. 16 (A.P.).—Head Coach W. H. Kirkpatrick is busy on the mountain these days trying to build a winning football team out of a flock of young and inexperienced schoolboys whose chief assets are courage, determination and speed.

Graduation took a toll of 19 lettermen at Sewanee. And some of these are going to be sorely missed this year when the Tiger goes out to appease his hunger for football victories unless warriors to take their places can be had from the rather promising material offered by last year's freshman squad.

Coach Counts Strongly On Patton.

Kirkpatrick is counting strongly on Jay Patton, 200-pound tackle. This lad is fast and aggressive. Other prospects are Robert Worral, triple threat quarter back, and Otis Jeffries, a Decatur Ala., boy, both of whom made good with the 1928 Rats. Warfield Rogers, 170-pound guard from Memphis, is showing up well in practice.

A Memphis boy, Chauncey Butler, a scrub last year, can throw 205 pounds of brawn into the line and other fast aggressive youngsters are Kellerman, guard; Crossland, tackle; Bill Greene, a back, and Julius French, a 1928 substitute, who rode a bicycle to his Houston (Tex.) home to strengthen his legs for a place on the team. He tried to ride back, but the bicycle collapsed at Shreveport.

Tigers May Surprise Followers.

These men are the hopes of Sewanee. If they come through, Coach Kilpatrick thinks his Tigers may surprise some of the faithful who have stuck to the team during the lean years on the mountain.

Lettermen around whom the Tigers will be built include Capt. Cravens and Ezell, ends; Young and Bean, tackles; Boyd, quater back; Barron, half, and Stinson, center.

The Sewanee schedule includes games with Louisiana State, Tulane, Vanderbilt, Alabama and the University of Mexico.

Many Intersectional Grid Games for Virginia Teams

V. P. I. to Tackle Penn—Virginia Drops Annual Clash With Princeton—Hampden-Sydney Meets Strong Foes.

(By the Associated Press.)

INTERSECTIONAL games with leading football teams of the East and far South will add interest to the sport in Virginia this season.

Virginia Tech probably drew the strongest intersectional opponent in scheduling the University of Pennsylvania. The Gobblers will go to Philadelphia to tackle the Quakers on October 12 with only two games played before that date. Despite serious losses at the Blacksburg institution, Gobbler supporters look to Coach Andy Gustafson to spring a surprise and bring a formidable team from the Blacksburg lair.

Colgate and Cornell Meet Hampden-Sydney.

Hampden-Sydney College's Death Valley Tigers lead in intersectional games with contests scheduled with Colgate and Cornell. Cornell will be played in Ithaca, N. Y., on October 12, while the strong Colgate Eleven will be encountered in Hamilton on November 2. The Tiger Team, under the direction of Coach Charlie Bernier should be in fine fettle by the time of the Colgate game and in addition to give the New Yorkers a first-class battle.

Virginia will bring Swarthmore to Charlottesville this season. Swarthmore replaces Princeton on the Cavalier schedule and should afford the Virginians an interesting afternoon if advance reports of strength are borne out.

Navy, Catholic U. to Meet William and Mary.

William and Mary will find a strong opponent in the Navy Midshipmen at Annapolis on October 5, the first game of the season for the Indians. William and Mary will also play Catholic University from Washington.

The Florida Alligators appear on the schedule of both V. M. I. and Washington and Lee. The Cadets will test their strength also against the Kentucky Wildcats, while the Generals will take on an intersectional foe in the West Virginia Mountaineers.

While Southern Conference schools, such as Florida and Kentucky, are not considered intersectional contests, the games will be watched with interest as a comparison of strength among the schools of the Middle Atlantic and Far South areas.

Dixie Series Opener At Birmingham Sept. 25

Birmingham, Ala., Sept. 16 (A.P.).—The first game of the Dixie series between Birmingham, Southern League champions, and the winner of the Texas League play-off between Dallas and Wichita Falls, will be played here Wednesday, September 25, W. D. Smith, secretary of the Birmingham Club, announced today.

The second game will be played the following day in Birmingham, with the two teams going to the Texas city for the third game Saturday, September 28. The fourth game will be played Sunday, September 29.

In the event the series championship has not been decided after four games, the fifth game will be played in the Texas city October 1, and the sixth game at Birmingham, October 3. A coin will be flipped to decide in which city the seventh and final game will be played if a seventh is necessary.

WORLD SERIES FANS WARNED BY PEGLER

I think you must be nuts to talk the way you are talking about a shipping clerk down in front."

Customers Now Educated To Custom.

Having received my newspaper training back in the days of the muck-rake and the Big Stick, I may have an antiquated notion of the financial sublimity of the humble working man. There may be no such class left in this country but only a few isolated surviving specimens of a group which was very numerous and voluble, through their political spokesmen, in 1910.

Mr. Rickard contended that the patronage of the humble working man was not worth cultivating on the ground that they could not afford to attend even his routine productions and I am sure that, if he were producing a world series at the regular world series scale of prices, he would solve the problem of the common customer's rights by deciding that anybody who could not afford $16.50 and a three days vacation was not a desirable patron.

I believe also that the majority of the customers, common and otherwise, are becoming educated in the problem of showmen in the sport business and are now inclined to make allowances. The Cubs, for instance, are building temporary extensions of their bleacher structures which will encroach on two public streets for the duration of the world series and it must be obvious to any citizen of a big city that permission to invade city property in this manner depends on the approval of a number of aldermen, commissioners and other local statesmen, who naturally, will wish to have tickets in the desirable grandstand sections for themselves and their cousins and their aunts.

Big Call Before Seats Go On Sale.

Then there are always the judges, the political committeemen, the members of the legislature, the sport editors, the advertising managers of the newspapers and several hundred managers and owners of major and minor league baseball firms and major league players who always receive preferred treatment in the distribution of tickets, to the number, I suppose, of a least 5,000 before any tickets are placed on sale at all.

There is a definite class of nobility or privilege in the amusement business and although the club presidents and secretaries may cite instances in which close social acquaintances of the proprietors were denied any special consideration, the customers must realize that a certain kind of requests can not be turned down.

Thus, although a great many ordinary customers of the Philadelphia team will have to go without tickets, I do not doubt that Mr. Max (Boo Boo) Hoff, the celebrated character and political influence in that city, will be able to command a sheaf of grandstand tickets for himself and his associates, who may use them personally or sell them for the best available prices.

Frederick Bowlers To Start Season

Special to The Washington Post.

Frederick, Md., Sept. 16.—The City Bowling League, composed of eight teams, will start the season of 1929-30 on the Diamond Alleys tomorrow night. The teams, Diamonds, Hustlers, Garbers, Moose, Harris & Filler, Young Men's Episcopal Brotherhood, Eagles and Strasbergers, compose the best amateur bowling material in the city.

Four matches each week will be played. Substantial cash team and individual cash prizes will be awarded the end of the season.

President Jack Hart announced the following schedule today:

Wash. & Lee Gridmen In Regular Contest

Lexington, Va., Sept. 16.—Coach Gene Oberst signalized the close of the two weeks of preschool training of his Washington and Lee gridiron candidates here Saturday by staging a regulation game for the benefit of the entire student body and faculty of the university. An even hour of football, during which every man on the squad played on either the "A" or "B" eleven, gave fans a taste of the fall sport, and invigorated them with the anticipation of the months ahead.

The game followed an hour and a half of hard scrimmage Thursday, the first of the year, during which men were interchanged with such frequency that no one could even guess whom Oberst considered as probable members of his varsity squad. Sophomores again carried a prominent part in both elevens on the field, being shifted frequently with the more experienced men.

Observers stated that the best appearing back field combination in action was that having Mattox or Jacob at quarter back; Thibodeau and Faulkner at the half back posts, and Barnett, the only senior member of the quartet, at full.

INSECT TITLE CLAIMED.

By their 6-0 win over the Joe Cronin Insects, the Wonder Boys' Club stake a claim to the Insect title of the District. Miller, pitching for the winners, held the Cronins in the palm of his hand, fanning 20 and allowing but two hits. Any Insect teams disputing the Wonder Boys' claim, call Lincoln 7217.

The Northerns will hold a signal drill, without uniforms, tonight at 7:30. All players are requested to report at the Silver Spring Field at Georgia avenue and the District line.

TEBELL GETS WOLFPACK READY

N. C. State Gridmen Drill Hard for W. & L. Game.

Raleigh, Sept. 16 (A.P.).—Two weeks have passed since the eerie call of the Wolfpack sounded once again in West Raleigh as the North Carolina State College football squad assembled to start early practice. Another fortnight, plus a few extra days, will find the pack of Gus Tebell facing its first foe, the Generals of Washington and Lee, here Friday, October 4.

Sore muscles have responded to that great conditioner, Old Kid Hard Work, and the coaches have now brought the squad to where it is beginning to take on the earmarks of a football team. It is true that the Pack is not ready to step just yet, but it is well into its toddling age.

Serious Injuries Are Absent to Date.

There have been no serious hurts—listen at Doc Sermon rapping on wood—although minor injuries have kept Gus Wright and Hargrove, backs, and Burdell, tackle, out of the thick of scrimmage. Incidentally, when one mentions tackle to Gus he frowns, the opposite hole to that on the left side, where Capt. John Lepo will cavort and block, is still open to all comers. Tebell is grooming Burdell, Hampton, Tucker, Culbertson and May for the job, but none has yet been selected to plug the hole.

The 1929 State Eleven will be minus nine men that were familiar last year. Among the nine gone are Adams, Warren, Outen and Crum, the entire starting back field quartet. But, despite this lack of material, the Pack coaches are working hard and are not pessimistic.

Guard Berths Look Well Filled.

Early practice has shown Mack Stout and Boyd Smathers to be doing well at guard. Three men are fighting it out for center—Paul Choplin, Rob Gardner and Frank Gorham. Two lettermen—Jakie Jordan and "Coon" Silver—are available for ends. Jordan hasn't reported yet, but Tebell says he'll be in next week.

"Hank" Morgan, reserve half back for the last two years, is also trying for a wing berth.

NAVY HOPES FOR GREAT ELEVEN

Dearth of Material for Tackles Is Only Worry.

Special to The Washington Post.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Sept. 16.—Settling down to their second week of drill, Naval Academy gridders are looking ahead to the game with Notre Dame in Baltimore Stadium as the first real incentive of the season.

True, the campaign begins here on September 28 against Dennison College, of Ohio, and a brush with the Indians of William and Mary College is to follow, but Navy will use these early tests to get the feel for their heavy artillery. That Navy is after Knute Rockne and his Irish is no secret, as Lieut. Comdr. Frederick G. Reinicke, new graduate manager of athletics, reluctantly admitted this afternoon.

Rockne admits that his South Benders are better than usual and Navy promises to have a season to rival 1926, when it was awarded the national championship even though being tied by West Point. Thus some real fur is to fly when the elevens battle. Ticket demands already exceed those of any previous game in the Baltimore Stadium, Lieut. Comdr. Reinecke said.

Toth and Kohlhas Show To Advantage.

Today Navy had a comparatively light drill, consisting of blocking and light skeleton scrimmaging. Six of the players were absent nursing bruises sustained in the two hours scrimmage Saturday when the team showed to an advantage against the Plebes. Toth, a light back, and Kohlhas showed to great advantage, along with W. H. Johnson, a junior, seeking a job as guard. Weighing 185 pounds, Johnson made the coaches take notice for the first time and it may be that he will rival Swan, sub for Capt. Eddie Burke of last year's team, before a running mate for Capt. Lawrence Koepke is selected.

Another guard showing up well is Tuttle, who last season saw service as center on the plebe outfit. Tuttle is a powerful fellow and is a heavyweight boxer of promise.

Navy appears well fortified in all departments, but most particularly with ends, where eleven husky boys are hopeful. This group includes six players of varsity caliber; in fact, men all of whom saw regular service on the flanks a year ago, namely Byng, Moret, Bears, Hagsberg, Grane and Morton.

Tackle Vacancies Prove Worry to Coaches.

Only the arming of a pair of tackles seems to be worrying the coaches. Saturday's drill showed a weakness on the off-tackle offensive, the plebes buckling the varsity thrusts in this respect. Hughes is again caring for center and is much improved. "Blimp" Bowatrom, whose punting saved the Middies many times last season, is booting the cowhide 45 and 50 yards and is even heavier than last season when he tipped the beam at 190 pounds.

Funk, Star Slugger, Is Bought by Detroit

Los Angeles, Sept. 16 (A.P.).—Ell Funk, hard-hitting Hollywood outfielder, will get another chance at major league baseball next year. William Lane, owner of the Hollywood Stars, has announced the sale of the little fly chaser to the Detroit Tigers.

Funk, since coming here last spring from the New York Yankees, in a trade which sent Gordon "Dusty" Rhodes to the big time, has proved a sensation both at bat and afield. Yesterday he celebrated his promotion by poling out six hits in seven times at bat during a double-header, and boosting his average above its already high mark of .390.

Two players and an unannounced sum of money will be turned over to the Hollywood Club.

Seat Orders Swamp Office of Athletics

Philadelphia, Sept. 16 (A. P.).—With the postal service pouring a stream of requests for world's series baseball tickets into Shibe Park today, the management of the Philadelphia Athletics had to rent a floor in a nearby factory building to take care of the mail.

Twenty girls, engaged to turn out return messages of glee or woe, depending on whether the reply was "Yes" or "No," went to work under the direction of Robert C. Shroeder, executive secretary of the club. Twenty-five youths were engaged to sort and open mail and perform other duties.

Before the temporary "office" opened, there were 25 messengers congregated outside with special delivery letters. A few minutes after the place was opened, two trucks, loaded with missives from those who hope to see Al Simmons "slam one a mile," pulled up. They contained twenty sacks of mail.

The management had announced no applications would be considered where the postmark of the envelope was prior to 12:01 a. m. today. This caused a big jam at the central post-office. More than 10,000 letters were deposited between 1 a. m. and 4 a. m., daylight saving time.

One of the busiest places was the North Philadelphia branch postoffice, where all mail is eventually received for delivery to Shibe Park.

DUKE SYSTEM MUCH LIKE PITT'S

Blue Devils Being Groomed to Check Warner Tactics.

DURHAM, N. C., Sept. 16.—The mental capacity of every member of the Duke Blue Devils will be taxed this week.

They are not only mastering their own signals and formations, but having a look at what may be expected from Pitt when Jock Sutherland brings his team here October 5 to help celebrate the opening of the new stadium.

Both Duke and Pitt use the Warner system, as the head coaches of both schools learned their football under Warner. But both Duke and Pitt have varied the Warner attack. Pitt probably more so than Duke. In the evening blackboard drills the Duke squad is shown the tactics of the Pitt team.

Defensive Faults Give Coaches Worry.

The coaching staff at Duke is somewhat worried over the defensive faults in certain of the offensive stars. The best ground gainers are not always the best on defense and particularly is this true of several of this year's back field men here. But the first week's work featured the offense, and the defense against Pitt has been saved for discussion in the evening.

Duke coaches started work this week with an elaborate system of attack all worked out, and the men were given orders to master every signal and play.

Trick Plays to Be Saved for Pitt.

The first practice session saw the men perfecting half a dozen of these plays—reverse, fake reverse, triple passes, &c.

The team is being pointed for the Pitt game. Mercer, to be met in Macon, Ga., two weeks from Saturday, will get only a straight driving attack without the frills. They will be saved for Pitt.

Sally-Southern Series Game Postponed, Rain

Knoxville, Tenn., Sept. 16 (A.P.).—Rain today again caused postponement of the scheduled game in the championship series between the Knoxville Smokers and the Asheville Tourists for the South Atlantic Association pennant.

Postponement of the fifth game of the series today will necessitate the Smokers continuing without the services of Frank "Waddy" slugging outfielder, who announced that he would leave tonight for Furman University, at Greenville, S. C., to assume his duties as end coach.

Do you remember the old, filthy shop where the man in the window rolled the leaves . . . with dirty fingers . . . and spit on the ends?

What a far cry this is from the modern method of manufacture used by Certified Cremo. Each Certified Cremo leaf is scientifically treated by U. S. Government approved methods. Its purity is carefully safeguarded along every step of the way in the Certified Cremo manufacturing process.

Certified Cremo cigars are free from the danger of "spit-tipping" because they are made by amazing inventions that fill, wrap and tip the cigars in sunny, airy, spotlessly clean Certified Cremo factories.

Only the choicest, tenderest leaves are used in making Certified Cremo. Rich and ripe, they are put through a slow expensive mellowing process that develops the fullest measure of their goodness. Finally, they are finished off with a choice, imported Sumatra wrapper.

No scraps or floor sweepings in Certified Cremo! Only long filler—only fresh, tender leaves. To safeguard the cleanliness of this wonderful quality, more than $7,000,000 was spent to perfect the method of manufacture used by Certified Cremo . . . a process that insures uniformly fine cigars . . . safe for your mouth! Crush-proof . . . immaculate . . . foil-wrapped . . . sanitary.

A dispatch from Norway says a Norwegian inventor has devised a queer way to locate fish. A telephone with a long wire is lowered into the water; as the herring, codfish and mackerel schools number thousands their passage through the water causes a swish which can be heard from the telephone in the water and that way the nets can be lowered at the time and the right place.

LAPSED INSURANCE SEEN AS BIG WASTE

Acacia's President Declares Millions of Dollars Are Lost Annually.

RIGGS STOCK REBOUNDS

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Lapsed life insurance constitutes one of this country's greatest economic wastes, according to President William Montgomery, of the Acacia Mutual Life Association. Declaring that in attempting to minimize this large annual loss, life insurance companies will perform notable service. Mr. Montgomery said that last year not less than $7,424,265,426 of life insurance lapsed. The premiums already paid on it, he said, represents a loss to all concerned despite misinformed opinion that a lapsed policy means money in the insurance company's treasury.

Placing a large share of the blame for the enormous volume of lapsed insurance upon methods of insurance selling too frequently employed, he said: "It is an axiom in life insurance that 'the lapse usually begins with the sale.' And it is generally conceded that the intense competition between the companies for business, the enormous pressure upon the agents to get it, and the methods and plans sometimes used to secure it, are the principal contributing factors.

"As most lapses occur in the first and second policy years, the insured gets practically nothing in return for the premiums he has paid thereon. He risks the possibility of losing, through change of health or otherwise, the privilege of obtaining other insurance. If he takes other insurance, he loses the lower rate established for his age when the policy was issued. In addition, the greater part of the premium paid on the new policy goes to pay for the medical examination and the agent's commission thereon, together with the expenses of issuing it; an unnecessary waste because he pays twice for the same service.

"The company loses because the expense of issuing the policy amounts to far more than the premiums received, outside of the time and expense involved in trying to keep the policy in force. The agent loses because he has received only part of the compensation he earned by the sale and the future income on the business.

"The heaviest losers ultimately are those who can least afford it—the loved ones whom the insurance was intended to protect and benefit. The huge figures I have quoted represent, really, a gigantic heartache. In them are wrapped thousands of high hopes unrealized, thousands of bright futures shattered, thousands of cherished memories embittered, thousands of children uneducated and citizenship impaired, thousands of happy families broken.

"One remedy for the lapse problem is agency contracts so constructed that agents have a strong economic interest in selling policies that do not lapse; in other words, compensating agents liberally for business that stays."

Reserve Banks Report Declines.

Declines for the week of $21,000,000 in loans and investments, $59,000,000 in borrowings from Federal Reserve banks and $9,000,000 in time deposits, and a gain of $99,000,000 in net demand deposits were revealed yesterday in the Federal Reserve Board's condition statement of weekly reporting member banks in 101 leading cities on September 11.

Loans on securities decreased $105,000,000 in the New York district. All other loans increased $25,000,000 in the New York district and $45,000,000 at all reporting banks. Holdings of United States Government securities and other securities declined $5,000,000 each.

Net demand deposits which at all reporting banks were $99,000,000 above the September 4 total, increased in nearly all the districts.

Mellon Remains Silent.

When his attention was called yesterday to criticism of the new paper currency by Louis A. Hill, former director of the Bureau of Enraving and Printing, as the poorest, cheapest and most dangerous issue in national history, Secretary of the Treasury Mellon said he did not think he had any comment to make.

Saying the matter had been given thorough consideration, he added he did not think there was anything to be said at the present time.

Riggs Bank Stock Rebounds.

After six advances to new high records in six consecutive sessions aggregating 41 points rise, Riggs National Bank stock dropped 4 points from 621, latest high, in a reactionary session of the Washington Stock Exchange yesterday, then rebounded to its former level. Ten shares of the stock sold at 617 and a final one transferred at 621.

Two other bank stocks were active, 53 shares of National Bank of Washington selling at 305, and one of Federal-American National at 332. Tell the Buyers

"Telling the World" about it won't find a buyer for your automobile. You've got to tell the "man who wants to buy." The Automobiles for Sale column on this page will be read this morning, and every morning, by hundreds of people who are in the market for a good used car. You can't reach the thousands of exclusive readers of The Washington Post through any other newspaper and it is an accepted fact that The Post is the newspaper that is read by the people of Washington and surrounding communities who are ABLE to buy.

5 SPECIALS!

1926 Chrysler Sedan, 58 Model.
For a light, cheap closed car this one can not be beat; excellent tires, guaranteed battery and a motor equal to any moderate priced automobile. You can not go wrong at $250. Convenient G. M. C. A. terms may be had.

1928 Oldsmobile Coach.
As good as new mechanically, only driven 6,500 miles with the best of care; all new features of the '29 model are installed in this car; not a blemish on the paint. Act quickly as there are very few of this model on the used car market.

1927 Pontiac Coach.
Painted a beautiful dark blue, trimmed in cream, original paint without a blemish; five Goodyear tires almost new; the upholstering shows no noticeable wear; as to its mechanical condition we will gladly demonstrate. The price of this car is $375. The financial terms are very easy.

1927 Oldsmobile Coupe.
4-wheel brakes, excellent tires and paint. We have just given the motor a thorough going over and highly recommend this car at $350 as one of our most dependable and sensible buys.

1925 Dodge Coach.
One which should appeal to the party who wants dependability, economy, good clean appearance in a closed car at a very small amount of money. The baked enamel paint is as good as the day it left the factory; 5 balloon tires with practically no wear, upholstery and interior in the best of condition. A fine buy at $265.

ADVICE ON INVESTMENTS
By CHARLES W. STORM

The Post presents an investors' service to provide, from the most authoritative sources, market information for its readers. Inquiries of general interest will be answered in these columns.
Every letter of inquiry must contain the name and address of the writer and a 2-cent stamped envelope. All communications are confidential. The service is without charge.

Stewart-Warner Well Thought Of.

H. A. H.—Why is there no market appreciation in Stewart-Warner, with its long dividend record, exceptionally able management, increasing earnings and yield, including stock dividends, of 13 per cent on its present price of 69?

Answer—This column can not attempt to say why Stewart-Warner does not go up in view of all the favorable features surrounding it, as outlined by you, and all of which are true. It is not within its province to do so. It may be said, however, that Stewart-Warner is very well thought of in most quarters as a speculative investment, especially for long term holding.

General Motors Inviting.

R. T. M.—I have a few thousand dollars I would like to invest in some good common stock. What is your opinion of Middle States Oil? What about Fox Film or General Motors? Does Yellow Truck pay dividends and what are its prospects for the near future?

Answer—The Middle States Oil Co. is now in the process of reorganization. Consequently, its stock does not appear at all attractive, even as a speculation. Fox Film, while speculative, has long-term attraction due to progressive expansion program and increased earnings. General Motors is well thought of in conservative circles, not only on account of present and prospective large earnings, but because of the substantial dividend now being paid. Yellow Truck does not pay any dividend. Despite improvement earings position still leaves much to be desired and the stock must be regarded as decidedly unattractive for investment holding. Of the several stocks named by you, General Motors would appear the most inviting, either viewed from a speculative or an investment standpoint.

As to Investment Trusts.

F. C. L.—I own 20 shares of U. S. & British International Co., Ltd. Please let me know what you think of this investment.

Answer—So much depends upon the judicious investment and reinvestment of the resources of an investment trust, such as is U. S. & British International, that its securities can not be regarded, from an investment viewpoint, in the same light as, for example, high-grade preferred stocks of the railroad or other corporations. The latest income account of this company shows the dividend on the preferred and class A common stock more than fully earned. However, future earnings are of necessity problematical and dependent largely upon the conditions here referred to.

Both Stocks Well Regarded.

G. M. R.—I am looking for a stock or stocks in which I may invest and feel reasonably sure that they will appreciate and give fair dividends. Do General Motors and Shell Union Oil belong in this classification?

Answer—General Motors is at present paying dividends of $3.30 annually, including extras, while Shell Union Oil is paying $1.40 yearly. While in any general upswing in the market it may be reasonably assumed that these stocks will participate in greater or less measure, no assurance can be given on that score. Both stocks, and particularly General Motors, are well regarded for long-term holding, but this column can not say what their immediate market action may be.

Plans for the annual meeting and election of officers of the John Marshall Highway Association were perfected at a luncheon meeting held at the Boulevard Bakery at Clarendon yesterday, according to an announcement given out by Arthur Orr, of Lyon Park, one of the executive officers.

The meeting will be held in Clarendon Tuesday, September 24, the birthday of the late John Marshall. Among the speakers will be Representative R. Walton Moore and John Barton Payne.

The purpose of the organization, as explained by Orr, is aid in having constructed from Washington, and passing through Arlington and Fairfax counties, a memorial highway, which will pass the home of the late John Marshall, near Marshall, Va., extending to the northern entrance to the Shenandoah National Park at Front Royal.

Among those attending the luncheon were: Hugh E. Naylor, of Front Royal, president; J. T. Ramey, of Fauquier County, vice president; Ashton C. Jones, C. W. Clever, Arthur Orr, Lawrence Michael, C. W. Smith, P. F. Woodbridge, Arthur J. Porter, from Arlington County, and M. E. Church and Guy N. Church, from Fairfax County.

Plans were completed yesterday for the formal opening of the new quarters of the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce now located in the Reese Building on the Wilson boulevard through the generous donation made by Ashton C. Jones, member of the board of directors, and one of the prime movers three years ago in its organization.

The walls of the office, which is located on the first floor of the building, have been partly covered with maps showing developments made and proposed by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission. The maps were loaned to the local chapter from the office of Lieut Col. U. S. Grant 3d to show the residents of both Arlington and Fairfax Counties and Alexandria what is planned for this section of Northern Virginia.

The principal map shows the Upper Potomac Park project to preserve the Great Falls and the Palisades of the Potomac River from the Memorial Bridge.

The offices will be thrown open to the public today at 9:30 o'clock.

In the evening there will be a short formal program and entertainment open to members, their wives and guests. The guests will include the executive heads of the service clubs, and neighboring chambers of commerce and other organizations.

Dorsey Hyde, secretary of the Washington Chamber of Commerce, will speak.

Sheriff Howard B. Fields announced yesterday that he will recommend to Judge Howard W. Smith of the Circuit Court of Arlington County the appointment of A. H. Richards, of Jefferson district; Norman Carson, of Washington district, and John E. Conway, of Arlington district, to be special police officers of Arlington County.

The increase in the police force is the result of Sheriff Fields' appearance at the meeting of the county board of supervisors held at the courthouse Saturday when he asked the board for more men that he might properly take care of the many schools, located on the public highways, which opened yesterday.

Charged with operating automobiles without proper license plates, C. M. Johnson, Robert Cameron and Oliver Keeter were each fined $14.25 by Police Judge Harry R. Thomas yesterday.

The case of William Washington, charged with violation of the prohibition laws, was continued until today. Washington was released on $500 bond.

Work will be resumed on the erection of the new firehouse for the Clarendon Fire Department located on Lorton avenue, at Clarendon.

A. J. Porter, of Clarendon, the contractor, announced last night that he will rush the building to completion and hopes to have it ready for occupancy within the next three weeks.

Work on the building has been held up for more than three weeks as the result of opposition to the location and at the request of the county board of supervisors.

It was understood by the fire department that the supervisors would assist in finding a new location but as no action was taken the contractor was instructed yesterday to resume work.

The Daughters of Isabella of St. Charles Catholic Church, at Clarendon, will meet tonight at the home of Mrs. Fred Burrows, Walnut street.

In an effort to complete the construction of the Wilson boulevard through the business section from Clarendon avenue and Oak street the concrete shoulders have been poured as far as Maple street within two blocks of Oak street, and the contractor, John H. Olcott, announces that Brady Brothers, of Frostburg, Md., will start laying the smsalte top next Monday. It is hoped to have that section of the boulevard opened within the next two weeks.

The boulevard will be 44 feet in width from Clarendon to Virginia avenues. From that point to the Military road in Rosslyn it will be 28 feet wide.

While the contractor has been somewhat delayed owing to the extensive underground work which has been done by both the county and public utilities, the work is now going forward according to schedule and Olcott states that he will complete the work in November in accordance with contract.

Up to the present time the road has been closed at no point by the contractor. All detours were made necessary by the underground work and only during the pouring of concrete shoulders will any section be closed.

There will be a bridge and five hundred party tomorrow night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Mitchell, held under the auspices of the ways and means committee of the Clarendon Rebekah Lodge.

The County Health Department announced last night the following list of five-point health pupils entering the several schools this week: Margaret Emma Hurlbut, Macey Price, James W. Engle, jr., Howard Jessenick, Marie Helen Frazier, Barbara Lorraine Janson, Carl John Palmer, Evelyn June Reamy, Kathleen Quinn, Charles Edgar Pangle, jr., Mary Lelia George, Leonard Mathusa, Robert Louis Bacon, Ruth J. Hayes, Robert B. Cole, Dorothy F. Stewart, Louise M. Hann, Betty Jane Sherwood, Nelson A. Powers, William Randolph Robertson, Ralph Rea Sheffa, Burton S. CAPITAL MAN FINED AFTER WILD PARTY

Wilmington Police Respond to Call and Discover Engineer Nude.

GIRLS' SCREAMS HEARD

Special to The Washington Post.

Wilmington, Del., Sept. 16.—A party that started in a cabin in Ardentown Saturday night had its sobering climax today in Magistrate Black's office here when Hughes Martin, of Washington, was fined $3 and costs on a charge of drunken and disorderly conduct.

Martin is the son of Gen. Charles E. Martin, U. S. A., formerly in charge of the United States troops in the Panama Canal Zone. Young Martin is a graduate of Princeton University and, while there, distinguished himself as a track man. He was intercollegiate champion at 440 yards and qualified for the Olympics.

The party which Martin attended started off quietly, late Saturday afternoon. Toward midnight, with his mind pretty well muddled with liquor, he became unusually unruly and pugnacious. The screams of the terrorized young women attracted neighbors.

A self-appointed committee for the morals and uplift of the community appeared on the scene and summoned the police. When the State troopers arrived, Martin had all his clothes torn from his body. The police wrapped a blanket about him and took him to Delaware Hospital, where he was given first aid treatment and six stitches placed on his scalp. Then he was taken to the city jail and released on bail later. Martin today denied the story that two girls had taken him for a ride and then tore his clothes off.

Martin is a structural engineer, employed in the Arlington bridge project at Washington. He is connected in a civilian capacity with the United States Engineers Corporation.

Washington Man Held For Alleged Forgery

Accused of forging a money order sent to another person at the National Soldiers Home, Hampton, Va., Charles F. Gallagher, of Washington, was held in $1,500 bail yesterday for grand jury action following a preliminary hearing before United States Commissioner Frank Supplee, in Baltimore.

Gallagher was arrested at the instance of W. J. Dickson, postal inspector, who said Gallagher came into possession of the $30 money order and then made a purchase with it, obtaining $25 in change.

POLLARD AND ENEMY SPEAK AT CHATHAM

Democrat Talks of Roads; Matthews, Speaking for Brown, Hits Policies.

CROWDS RATHER SMALL

Special to The Washington Post.

Chatham, Va., Sept. 16.—The Virginia gubernatorial campaign got under way here today with the Democratic nominee, Dr. John Garland Pollard, delivering an address on good roads, and W. Kirk Matthews speaking in behalf of William Moseley Brown, coalition candidate. Matthews attacked the Democratic leaders of the State and assailed the "machine."

This being "Old Court Day," which by tradition brings many to attend criminal trials and in olden days to engage in bartering and horse trading, found many planters too busy curing tobacco, and the crowd was smaller than usual.

Dr. Pollard, introduced by Representative Joseph Whitehead, of the Fifth Congressional District, expressed gratification over emerging "from the primary campaign leaving no bitterness behind."

Road Issues Discussed.

He spoke chiefly on the necessity of the further extension of the highway system under the pay-as-you-go plan and the development of feeder roads in the agricultural districts. This, he said, can not be accomplished if present sources of highway revenues are curtailed as advocated by his opponent. "The measures he advocates will curtail the State program by not less than $2,000,000 per annum," Pollard said.

He took issue with the split cent tax on gasoline, which he said is advocated by Brown, and held that it would be unfair to put less in road building when many farmers still on bad roads have contributed to the new arteries.

Matthews was introduced by William Smith, of Chatham, who attacked the State press, charging it with being untruthful. Instead of 15,000 persons being present at the Pollard notification ceremony last Saturday there were 1,115, he said. Judge Matthews, in his address of an hour, held up "Rascobism," attacked the short ballot and touched on prohibition.

Smith Try for Senate Claimed.

He asserted that Senator Royal Copeland, of New York, has been offered an important health commissionership in New York for the purpose of bringing his resignation from the Senate and to permit the appointment of Smith.

He assailed Democratic leaders for their sudden conversion to the Smith candidacy after attending the last convention and asked Pollard why, as the son of a Baptist and a dry, he had stumped the State for him. Eighty-five per cent of the last Virginia General Assembly was wet, he declared.

Judge Matthews stated that Bishop Cannon is not an issue in this campaign. He added, "I pray God he may have more legitimate power in Virginia," and stated that the whole purpose of the coalition movement is to "crush this damnable machine in Virginia." He quoted Pollard's "Political History of Appalachian History," in which the author urged the purification of the Virginia election laws. Dr. Brown, he stated, was "drafted for service and got his degree with emphasis by working for it."

Warehouse Destroyed In Martinsburg Blaze

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Sept. 16.—Fire of undetermined origin today destroyed a store fixture warehouse, stable and garage adjoining, burned one touring car and 50 chickens and ruined the contents of the buildings, causing an estimated damage of several thousand dollars.

The warehouse was the only structure covered by insurance. It was the property of Wolf Kirson, merchant; the stable belonged to Luigi Botti and the garage to D. H. Russler. Firemen believed the blaze started in the stable and was carried by a wind to the adjoining buildings.

VIRGINIANS ASKED TO VISIT ENGLAND

TRIP PLANNED FOR 1930

Richmond, Va., Sept. 16 (A.P.).—Britain's three leading trade organizations have again united in extending the Virginia State Chamber of Commerce an invitation to send a delegation of ten representatives and the Mayor of the City of Richmond and the Governor of Virginia to England for three weeks in May and June of 1930. The invitation has just been received by J. Gordon Bohannon, president of the State Chamber, who has issued a call for a meeting of the board of directors to consider the invitation October 3.

The invitation is signed by the Association of the British Chamber of Commerce, the Federation of British Industries, and the Chamber of Shipping of the United Kingdom. It reads:

"We, the undersigned, on behalf of our respective organizations, whose representatives were so cordially welcomed by his excellency, the Governor of Virginia, and by the people of the Old Dominion during the visit of the all-British delegation to the United States in May-June, 1927, made under the auspices of the Virginia State Chamber of Commerce, hereby extend a most cordial invitation through the president and managing director and the board of directors of the Virginia State Chamber of Commerce, for a delegation of ten representatives of Virginia to be organized by the Virginia State Chamber of Commerce to visit Great Britain in the summer of 1930."

Letter Sent With Bid.

The invitation was transmitted on behalf of the three organizations by Sir Walter Raine, J. P., M. P., the president of the Association of British Chambers of Commerce, who, in a personal letter, said:

"It gives me great pleasure to renew our invitation for the summer of 1930. We do so in equally cordial terms to those which were conveyed to you in our joint letter of September 5, 1928."

The Virginia Chamber was invited to make the trip proposed in the spring of this year, but the invitation was later withdrawn due to troubled conditions in England caused by the general election.

Britons Visited Here.

A delegation of eighteen from Britain visited the United States as guests of the Virginia Chamber of Commerce in 1927, and spent three weeks in Virginia.

In acknowledging receipt of the letter, Mr. Bohannon wrote:

"I am convinced that through a personal exchange of visits of this sort we are contributing in a very substantial way to the development of a better understanding and lasting friendship between the peoples of the United Kingdom and of the United States, especially among our respective business representatives."

The board meeting of October 3 will be held at noon.

U. S. Will Expand Forestry Nursery

Saplings to Be Cultivated Near Cumberland for Allegheny Project.

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., Sept. 16.—Plans are being made to double the capacity of the United States Forest Service nursery at Parsons, W. Va., on the Western Maryland Railway south of here, from 1,200,000 trees to 2,400,000 trees, in order to take care of reforestation in the Allegheny National Forest in Pennsylvania, where the service is going to plant over 1,000,000 trees a year, all of which will be started at the Parsons Nursery.

Plans are being made also by the Forest Service to cultivate black cherry, which is in demand for cabinet work, yellow poplar and white ash. The service has collected, to be used for seedling purposes, 100 bushels of white pine cones and has ahead of it the collection of 300 bushels of red spruce cones. Arrangements are being made to secure 100 bushels of white spruce cones from the Adirondacks, which will be sent to Parsons for cleaning and planting.

Hardwood seeds will be obtained from the national forests in North Carolina and Georgia. The time is rapidly approaching, it is believed by forest officials, when it will be necessary to install in connection with the Parsons Nursery what is known as a seed extraction plant.

Filtration Plant Job Given to Dove

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Sept. 16.—Samuel B. Dove, Annapolis contractor, submitted the lowest bid in a field of eight for the contract to erect a modern filtration plant at the works of the Annapolis Water Co. Mr. Dove's bid was $54,750, nearly $5,000 less than the next low estimate. Frank L. Wagner, of Washington, bid $69,840, which was highest of the group. Bids were opened by water company officials today but the award of contract was deferred pending tabulation of the bids by Engineer Walter C. Munroe.

The filtration plant will be the last unit to improve the supply of water to consumers in the city and adjacent sections. It will also climax a fight for purer water and greater pressure that was waged through a dozen years. Many persons opposed the project, maintaining that the water was of the best and that the city could not stand the expense, but it was finally ratified at a special election two years ago.

Meanwhile, the city erected a million-gallon high-pressure cistern in the western part of the city to provide a greater flow, particularly for fire emergencies.

Attendance Now Stands at 3,145; Many More Pupils Are Expected.

STYLE SHOW IS OPENED

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
312 S. Washington St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

The attendance at the public schools is rapidly increasing, the number now registered being 3,145, according to Superintendent R. C. Bowton. Although the initial registration was less than last year, the figures now show an increase, and the number attending now is equally as large as any previous year, if not larger. Many more pupils are expected to enroll later, and on February 1, the beginning of the second term, a large number will start classes.

The schools are now all organized and since the opening on September 5, considerable progress has been made by the pupils.

The registration by schools now stands: High school, 540; Jefferson School, 612; Lee School, 600; Washington School, 436; Maury School, 229; Parker-Gray School, 680; Seminary School, 43. The old West End School Building, now the property of the George Washington National Memorial Association, is being used for the overflow from the high school, and will be used until it is required by the memorial association.

The American Legion trade exhibit and style show was opened last night in the armory by City Manager Wallace Lawrence, who pushed a button turning on the lights.

In the style show, costumes of the various periods from 1849 to 1929 were shown. The merchants' exhibits are in attractively decorated booths.

The armory was crowded for the opening. The entertainment program included motion pictures, shown by Legionnaire John L. Arnold.

Work of pouring the concrete base for the repaving of King street was begun yesterday. The base will be 2½ inches thick and will be laid over the old base under the vitrified brick pavement, which latter has, in most cases, served for approximately 25 years. Immediately after the concrete settles, the work of laying a top dressing of tar macadam will be started. The section now under improvement extends seven squares, to Patrick. After this is completed the work will be extended westward on King street until the whole of that street has been improved.

The Mount Vernon, Alexandria and Washington Railroad Co. has a force of workmen engaged in removing the vitrified brick pavement between its rails, placing new ties and rails and replacing the pavement.

Everett Ensor, 14, of Lincolnia, Fairfax County, arraigned in police court yesterday on a charge of larceny of a watch from Caleb Hughes, pleaded guilty, and owing to the youth of the lad the case was taken under advisement by Acting Justice Kennedy.

Hughes reported to the police that he gave young Ensor a lift in his automobile, and upon reaching home discovered the loss of his watch, which had been carried in his coat pocket. Ensor was placed under arrest by Sergt. Sims and admitted taking the watch and selling it to a boy named Sam Lloyd for $1. Lloyd, it is claimed, then pawned the watch for $5. The watch was recovered and returned to its owner, and young Lloyd made restitution of the $5 he had received.

The club service committee, of which Fred C. Goodnow is chairman, will have charge of the program at the weekly luncheon of the Rotary Club today. This committee is a new agency of the Rotary, and the members are looking forward to today's program with interest.

The guest of honor at today's luncheon will be the Rev. A. Earl Kernahan, who is in charge of the local religious survey now being conducted under the auspices of the Alexandria Ministerial Association.

The Episcopal High School of Virginia, located in Fairfax County three miles west of this city, opened yesterday evening for registration. The enrollment for the coming session is 219 students.

The Episcopal Theological Seminary of Virginia will open its 107th session Thursday morning, the students assembling Wednesday evening.

With the cooperation of the city health department, a number of experts are in the city to conduct a campaign to rid Alexandria of rats, the work of extermination to begin at once. The movement, it is stated, is similar to a Nation-wide movement urged by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Bureau of Biological Survey, Washington.

John L. Stewart was appointed a member of the local police force yesterday by Police Capt. W. W. Campbell, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Policeman Edward L. Mayhugh.

Demented Mother of Eight Chains Herself to Funeral Pyre.

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Sept. 16.—Crawling into a furnace and kindling a fire after she had placed a chain around her neck and fastened it to an interior bar, Mrs. Frances Insogna, wife of John Insogna, southend merchant, was found burned to death at noon today. Mrs. Insogna had suffered from insanity and had been in various institutions, including the State Hospital at Sykesville the past three years.

Upon several occasions she returned home, when she apparently had recovered her mental faculties but periodically she would express thought of self-destruction. She eluded members of the family and after a half hour search her body was discovered by her daughter, Rosa. The front of the furnace had to be removed by city and county officers, who investigated the death, before the body could be taken from the firebox. She evidently started the fire with paper after she crawled in. Her clothing was burned off and her flesh seared.

Mrs. Insogna, who came here with her husband from Italy 27 years ago, is also survived by eight children ranging in ages from 7 to 23 years.

Mercer and Lee Convicted One Week After Attack on Deaf Mute in Hills.

JURY CASTS TWO VOTES

Special to The Washington Post.

Staunton, Va., Sept. 16.—Following conviction in Augusta Circuit Court here this afternoon of P. N. Mercer and Leslie Lee, and both sentenced to life imprisonment, Judge Richard S. Kerr allowed counsel for the men until Thursday morning to file further motions. In the meantime both men are being held in jail here.

One week after Mercer and Lee, both of Roanoke, are alleged to have attacked a 20-year-old deaf and dumb girl on the Blue Ridge Mountain, in the eastern part of this county, they heard a jury say they must spend the remainder of their days in the State penitentiary.

The crime occurred last Monday. Before nightfall both men were in jail here. The following day Gov. Byrd ordered a special grand jury and trial term of court. Last Friday the men were indicted in the morning and went on trial that afternoon. Morning, afternoon and evening sessions were held Saturday, during which all evidence was presented. Arguments were made this morning.

The jury was out 47 minutes and took two ballots. On the first, it is reported, five members voted for the electric chair, five for life imprisonment, one for ten years and one for fifteen. A verdict of life imprisonment for both was returned on the second ballot.

Plane Hits Tree; Two Are Injured

Special to The Washington Post.

Frederick, Md., Sept. 16.—Two persons were injured and a large airplane was demolished when the plane crashed into the top of a tree on the farm of Burley B. Smith, near Walkersville, yesterday afternoon. The crash was witnessed by several thousand persons, assembled to witness an aerial circus by a trio of pilots from Logan Field, near Baltimore.

The force of impact hurled the plane, with its pilot, Lieut. L. F. White, and its passenger, Mrs. Mason Geiske, Catonsville, to the ground. White and Mrs. Geiske, who were strapped into the cockpits, were removed by members of the circus.

Mrs. Geiske, wife of Lieut. Alfred W. Geiske, member of the Canadian Royal flying corps during the World War, was taken to the Frederick City Hospital, where her injuries, principally lacerations and bruises about the face, were dressed. She returned to her home last night. White suffered a cut on the face, but declined hospital attention.

White, in leaving the ground, failed to notice the large tree in the direct path of his flight. The plane was owned by Douglas Rutheun, Baltimore.
